Plant, was made to the Rowland & Clark, well known theatrical firm of this section of Pennsylvania, recently merged with the Stanley Corporation, was authorized by mail this morning by the purchasers to take bids for the clearing of the debris from the property, preparatory to the construction of a model theatre.

To Start Removing Debris

Bids will be advertised for Wednesday by Mr. Phillips as per his instructions and it is hoped to have the work of clearing the property underway in ten days. Plans for the new theatre are now being per-

Four Deaths Due To Terrific Rain In New York City

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Four persons are dead and scores are suffering from injuries today as a result of the torrential rainstorm which swept New York and the vicinity yesterday.

The damage caused by the storm is estimated at almost $1,000,000.

Two men were killed when they struck the third rail after leaping from the window of a subway train which had been stalled by the sudden cavein of an embankment. At least 40 other occupants of the train suffered more or less serious injuries.

Late last evening a dam holding in check the waters of five ponds in New Brighton, Staten Island, burst, flooding two towns, destroying two bridges and driving 100 families from their homes.

Mrs. Sarah Bauer, 56, who lived in a houseboat, was drowned in the flood.

Mrs. Marie Barrett was swept from the porch of her home and drowned.

Highways and transit lines, blocked directly and indirectly by the rain, delayed approximately 2,000,000 home-coming vacationists for hours.

DISORDERLY HOUSE VISITED BY POLICE

The home of Cy and Carrie Landrum, negroes, was visited early Monday morning by Officers Horner, M. J. Young, Moore, Lockard and Llewellyn, who found a party in progress. Cy and Carrie were arrested as keepers of a disorderly house and fined $50 and $10 respectively. Sentence was suspended on two inmates and two visitors.

RIVER RECEDES AT PITTSBURGH

After Reaching 22 Feet And Claiming Three Lives, River Starts To Recede

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 7.—The toll of the heavy rains of the last 48 hours stood today at three dead and property damage estimated at $250,000 in this district.

James Darlington, 32, the latest victim, bewildered by the torrential downpour, walked from a tent at an Oakmont camp into the Allegheny river and was drowned.

After reaching a crest of 22 feet here ,the waters of the Allegheny river began to recede and were falling steadily this morning. Flood stage here is 25 feet. There was no appreciable rise in the Monongahela river level.

Traffic on the Connemaugh and Fort Wayne divisions of the Pennsylvania railroad suffered heavily from landslides caused by the excessive rain. At Butler especially trains were delayed by tons of earth sliding onto the tracks.

Daugherty Goes On Trial Today

Former Member Of Harding Cabinet Faces Trial On Bribery Charge

CASE UNIQUE IN RECENT HISTORY

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—For the first time in history a former member of a Presidential cabinet goes on trial today. He is Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general of the United States in the Harding administration. He is charged with accepting a bribe of $441,000.

On trial with Daugherty will be Colonel Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian in the same administration. He also is charged with receiving a bribe.

These two, with two others, are accused of accepting $50,000 in cash and $391,000 in Liberty Bonds for returning to German owners of the American Metals Company $8,453,979, realized from sale of the stock of the company after it had been seized in the war.

The two indicted with Daugherty and Miller are dead. One was John T. King, Republican dictator of Bridgeport, Conn., and the other was Jess W. Smith, Daugherty's "shadow" and apartment mate.

Smith killed himself in 1923.

After many legal battles to keep the case from trial it opens before Judge Julian W. Mack and a jury in federal court here today. It is tried in New York because, it is alleged, the bribe was paid here on October 1, 1921. It is expected that the first day will be consumed in selecting a jury.

MAYOR TO CONFER WITH COULTHARD

Jefferson And Grant Street Traffic Conditions To Be Discussed By Officials

James Ellison, constable, First ward, today appeared before council relative to traffic conditions at the Diamond and the southwest corner of Jefferson street and also at Grant street and the P. & L. E. railroad crossing.

He said accidents have resulted at Grant street because of the boarding of cars and discharge of passengers in the close vicinity of the railway crossing. He advocated stopping of the cars east of the present terminal.

Ellison described conditions at the Diamond where considerable time must be consumed by the discharge of passengers. Councilmen described the boarding place on the north side of the Diamond, or at the Y. W. C. A. as dangerous.

Mayor Dunlap was directed to confer with Superintendent C. C. Coulthard relative to the conditions alleged to exist.

Student Army Resumes Work In City Schools

More Than 10,000 Pupils Start Fall Term In Public Schools

SOME CHANGES IN TEACHING FORCE

SUPT. C. C. GREEN

New Castle's student army returned to the front line trenches of the classroom this morning, over 10,000 of them, rested after their three months' vacation, ready to take up the studies they left on that warm day last June when the term ended.

Not a hitch marked the opening of school, so well had the arrangements been made by the school authorities. Every principal, every teacher knew what was expected, and the youngsters filed in and reported much as though they had been back a month or more.

Teaching Staff Complete

One or two of the teachers might have been absent through sickness or some other unavoidable cause, but even this is doubtful as at 9:30 there were no calls in the superintendent's office for relief teachers.

Big Attendance Seen At Schools

HIGH SCHOOL ALSO TAXED FOR ROOM

Long before school opened this morning in the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School there was a line of boys and girls extending out from the main entrance of the building onto Cunningham avenue and from there down to the corner of East Lutton street. It was rather a refutation of the old idea that boys and girls do not like to go to school.

Just what the enrollment in Franklin is, or what it is in any school will take several days to decide. The vital thing today is to get the youngsters assigned to class rooms and this is being done efficiently and with little waste of effort.

High School Full

Senior High School lobby resembled the recess hour of a political convention this morning. Hundreds of animated youngsters milling about and above the crowd a buzz of conversation that sounded much like a hive of bees, if a change may be permitted in the metaphor.

Senior High School is full as was anticipated and the need for the extension appeared this morning. Every inch of space is being utilized until such time as the new

Sports Program Is Carried Out—Threatening Weather Fails To Mar Day

Weather conditions early Monday interfered with attendance at the Labor Day celebration held at Cascade park under the auspices of the Building Trades Council, but failed to dampen the enthusiasm of those in attendance of prevent the carrying out of the main features of the day's program.

The outstanding feature of the celebration was the address given during the afternoon at the band stand by Hon. George T. Weingartner, state senator from the Lawrence-Beaver district.

Taking as his topic, the employe and employer of today and the conditions surrounding their mutual interest in the work of today Senator Weingartner told of the upward trend of labor today and the mutual understanding that is being reached between the man who works and the man who employes others, in a majority of the various types of employment.

Among other things he said that he did not believe in "merely a living wage" which means only exist-

WALLACE FEE IS ALLOWED

Court In Opinion Holds That It Is Not Excessive—Other Decisions

In an opinion handed down this morning on exceptions to the account of Peter G. Cameron, secretary of banking, Judge Hildebrand overrules and dismisses all of the exceptions, except those dealing with tips paid by W. Lewis McKee, a special deputy.

The principal exception taken by stockholders was to the fee of Attorney Robert L. Wallace, as counsel for the banking secretary. This fee was for $10,000. In his opinion Judge Hildebrand finds that it covered over a years service, and that it included service not yet to be rendered.

It is pointed out that Wallace took part in a number of trials against Victor Doyno, president of the bank, sold large parcels of real estate, and performed many other duties incident to the closing of the bank. In view of the work done Judge Hildebrand holds the amount charged is not excessive. The report of Cameron showed an inventory and appraisement of $519,000.

In regard to the tips paid out by McKee, which were principally to taxi drivers, the court holds that the tip practice is one that should be condemned, but that it is a matter for the legislature to take up and not the courts.

COUNCIL MAY CANCEL AWARDS

Smith & McQuiston Criticised For Not Performing Work Promptly

Council is vexed over the delay in starting work on several projects given to Smith & McQuiston and Councilman Genkinger today intimated that in the future he will refuse to vote for the award of contracts to the firm, Councilman Tyler going farther by declaring that "if work doesn't soon start, contracts may be cancelled."

This was the outcome of Solicitor White's conference with officials of the firm relative to contracts not started.

The officials told White that Bonzo street grading has been finished. Councilmen today took issue with the statement.

Smith & McQuiston, White said, declared they would start to finish Junior High street next week and commence work on Calvert street soon.

Nearly Seven Inches Of Rainfall Here During Past Month

The month of August just passed brought to New Castle weather which varied from that peculiar to the hottest summer to that which might be expected in tropical rainy seasons. On three different days the temperature reached 93 degrees while on the last day of the month, August 31, it dropped to 44 degrees.

These figures are contained in the monthly report of the Meteorological station at the Water Works which checks local climatical conditions daily for the United States Department of Agriculture. H. E. hotchkiss, the chemist at the Water Works, is in charge of the station.

It is also stated that rain fell on 19 days of the month for a total of 6.98 inches. Of this the greatest was on August 15 when the rainfall was 1:54 inches for the twenty-four hour period. Fourteen days during the month were clear, seven were partly cloudy and ten were clondy. The prevailing wind direction was southeast.

The amount of rainfall during the month was almost twice the normal amount and exceeded the rainfall for the same period in seven years, reference to the back data of the station since its inception in 1919 reveals. Last summer the rainfall in August was only 1.05 inches.

Pottery Head Writes Of Labor Conditions Found In Germany

In a letter written from Germany to President Fred L. Rentz of the New Castle News, James M. Smith, president of the Shenango Pottery company of this city, now touring abroad, writes from Nurnberg, Germany, of conditions found in that country. He cites wages and living conditions and emphasizes the wonderful conditions that prevail for American workingmen in comparison with the workingmen of that country. The letter follows:

Well, my boy, one certainly must go away from America to appreciate the wonderful blessings that we enjoy. I do not understand how the poor are able to keep body and soul together. Common labor gets $1.75 to $2 per day. Caprenters and bricklayers 30 cents to 50 cents per hour. Eight hours per day but only part time.

Girls work in stores as clerks for $25 per month. Women cleaning offices get $5 per week. Street car conductors for the first year, $37.50 per month; second year, $45 per month; third year, $55 per month. Everyone pays 10 per cent income tax, regardless of how little they earn.

A young man 22 years of age, now on the fifth year with the same firm as an automobile salesman, has a salary of $40 per month, but after paying income tax and sick benefit insurance it nets him $32.50 per month.

We have always had the idea that while wages were low in this country the cost of living was comparatively low, but such is not the case. We quote the following prices: granulated sugar, 10 cents per pound; veal steak, 45 cents; round steak, 45 cents; bacon, sliced, 65 cents; ham, sliced, 87

Voters In Four States Are Casting Ballots For State Candidates

Five Senate Seats Are Held In Balance In Primaries Of Day

Sharp Contests Mark Election In Three Of States Concerned

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Upwards of two million voters are marching to the polls today in widely scattered sections of the country to settle primary contests involving five seats in the United States Senate and a multitude of lesser offices.

In many respects it is the biggest day of the pre-election political season. From New Hampshire, in New England, to Wisconsin in the mid-west, and out to Nevada and Arizona, in the far southwest, the balloting is in progress today.

Sharp Contests.

In three of these states—Wisconsin, New Hampshire and Navada—the contests are sharp and the results may have far-reaching effect on the make-up of the 70th congress. In the other, Arizona, the principal fireworks will be reserved until November.

Political leaders in both parties are chiefly interested in the outcome in Wisconsin, where the La Follette organization is hard after the scalp of Senator Irvine L. Lenroot. The campaign has been a bitter one, even in a state noted for the warmth of its political contests, and the issue between the LaFollette and anti-LaFollette organizations is likely to be close. Senator Lenroot is opposed by Gov. John J. Blaine, a political lieutenant of the late "Fighting Bob".

In Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—Prohibition and the world court were the outstanding issues before voters as they marched to the polls in Wisconsin's primary election today.

The contest that holds the center of interest is between Senator Irvine L. Lenroot and Gov. John J. Blaine for the Republican senatorial nomination.

TWO FIRE ALARMS OVER HOLIDAYS

Firemen were called to two places last night, within a space of a few minutes. The fires were of a slight character. The first alarm was at 10:45 p. m. from box 43 and called the firemen to the Alemite garage in the rear of 344 East Washington street. Some gasoline spilled on the ground had ignited. There was no loss.

The second alarm came in from box 54 at 11 p. m. It called the firemen to the home of Sam Lanbaso, 915 South Mercer street, where a curtain blew over a gas light and ignited. The loss was $10.

It doesn't seem long since I started to school, just a few short years it would seem, yet the calendar's marked many, many years, and they've hurried by like a dream. And this morning I stood at the school room door, and envied each lad and lass, just wishing that I too was entering there, and hunting my proper class. And I moved the clock for a little while, back twenty years or so, and began to look for the pals I had, the fellows I used to know. Bill and Eddie and all the rest who pestered the teachers we had, now both of those fellows have kids in school, a lass or two and a lad. But retrospection wont bring back years, though it be in the school house door, and work reached out with its iron hand, the weather is seventy four.

Three Probes In Colorado Wreck Are Under Way

RESCUERS SEARCH FOR MORE BODIES

Believe Excessive Speed Of Train Caused It To Jump Track And Topple Into River

(International News Service)

DENVER, Sept. 7.—Railroad authorities, county officials and representatives of the state public utilities commission today were probing the disastrous wreck on the Denver, Rio Grande & Western railroad on Sunday which resulted in the death of more than 25, 50 injured and six reported missing.

A careful check-up Monday lasting far into the night disclosed that at least 27 persons met their death when the speeding Scenic Limited left the rails and plunged into the Arkansas river, while six are reported missing and 50 more or less seriously injured.

A coroner's inquest has been postponed until two bodies known to be in the wreckage on the river bed are recovered.

Rescue workers toiled all night Monday through the mass of jumbled steel in search of bodies and the entire afternoon was spent in reaching five bodies which could be plainly seen but could not be reached.

A Pullman and a day coach resting on top of another coach, have so far resisted the efforts of workers to dislodge them and when this has been accomplished it is believed three or four more additional bodies will be located.

President J. S. Pyeatt of the Rio Grande & Western spent the entire day Monday at the scene of the wreck in an attempt to place responsibility for the accident. Early today he issued a statement in which he stated that the conclusion had been reached that the accident was caused by excessive speed, the train traveling around 40 miles an hour which was in excess of the time card rule.

Town Talk

Numerous communities in this district were partially flooded during the unusually heavy downpour of rain on Saturday night. In Mercer county a cloudburst was reported. The Little Neshannock overflowed. In New Castle there was a heavy rain, and the creek rose several feet on Saturday evening. It has receded today to almost normal stage, however.

Another sign that fall is nearing is witnessed in a tour of the country districts surrounding New Castle. New "No Trespassing" signs are making their appearance on many of the farms, in view of the approach of the hunting season.

Unprecedented rainy weather of August has occasioned considerable loss for farmers in this district. In some instances the oats are still in shocks in the field, no chance having been given the farmers to get them hauled in, when they were dry.

New Castle and Lawrence County district experienced probably the "freest from accident" holiday period of many years, over the Labor Day period. While some accidents were reported, there were no fatalities despite the heavy traffic on all highways and streets of the city.

Dr. S. H. Moore, of Florida, former pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, who was scheduled to occupy the pulpit at the Central church on Sunday morning, was an hour late arriving. He was delayed by a slight wreck on the P. & L. E. Railroad between this city and Pittsburgh. In the interim, while the congregation waited, Dr. Charles Jordan, who chanced to be in the audience, filled the pulpit.

Occupants of the big office buildings downtown were all celebrating the Labor Day holiday last night. Nary a light gleamed in any of the offices in some of the largest buildings, a sight that is seldom reported here. Usually a part of the offices are lighted up by night-working occupants.

Owners of flags used in the curb decorative system here are growing careless. In several instances the curb flags were allowed to stand on the street throughout the entire night.

HUSBAND SHOT; WIFE IS HELD

Coroner Probes Unusual Case Of Accident And Shooting Near Wellsburg

(International News Service)

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Albert Graham, 33 of Canton, O., was being held in Brooke county jail here today wrile a jury empannelled by Coroner J. B. Walkinshaw investigated circumstances surrounding the death of her husband, who was found dead, a bullet wound in his right temple, beneath his overturned automobile near Buffalo creek, eight miles from Wellsburg.

Screams of Mrs. Graham, who occupied the front seat of the car with her husband, attracted passersby, who called the coroner. According to Coroner Walkinshaw, the woman told him that she had followed her husband from Canton, after he threatened to desert her and her eight-months old boy.

While seated by his side in their automobile, she said, she picked up a revolver from the car seat, and threatened to commit suicide unless Graham returned to Canton with her. As she was about to fire, she said the car was suddenly jolted, and she pulled the trigger, the shot striking her husband in the right temple.

The car plunged over a small embankment and overturned. She was uninjured.

Victor Graham, a brother of the dead man, and Leonard Mittner, both of Canton, who are alleged to have made a trip to Wellsburg with Graham, were held by police on technical charges, for questioning in connection with the shooting.

Mrs. Graham's eight-months old son is being cared for by Mrs. R. A. Bodner, wife of the jailer.

COURT REFUSES PETITION TO OUST FIVE OF MEMBERS

out having them first approved by the State Board of Education.

The resolution awarding the contracts was passed at a board meeting on December 7, 1925. The Haug contract was dated December 10, 1925, and the Barnes & Clark contract December 28, 1925. Judge Hildebrand holds that the testimony showed that the plans and specifications had been submitted December 16, 1925, and were received back as approved on December 23, 1925.

The minutes of the board showed that the Haug contract was not signed by President James K. Love until January 12, 1926, after the bond had been approved, and that the Barnes & Clark contract had not been signed until February 9, 1926, after the bond had been approved.

"Under these facts," the court concludes, "we could not find that there was any refusal or neglect of duty on the part of respondents to perform any duty imposed upon them by the school code.

Bond Parade

As the dismissal of school for the bond parade on May 17, 1926, in which it was alleged that no resolution of the board authorizing such dismissal had been passed, the court holds that according to the testimony the schools had not in fact been closed, as a teacher had been left at each building to take charge of the pupils who did not wish to march, and the other pupils were in the custody of their teachers. Members of the board, including Withers, knew of the proposed parade and made no protest.

"If the board had officially planned and directed the parade", says the court, "we would have no hesitancy in condemning it. Under conditions of that kind the parade of pupils would not be a voluntary act. The action of those responsible for the parade is open to criticism as an unwarranted exercise of authority in an effort to influence the electorate, but not grounds for removel."

No Refusal or Neglect

As to the resolutions awarding the drawing of plans for a junior high school and additions to the Arthur McGill school to A. L. Thayer, and for plans for additions to the Senior High school to W. G. Eckles, on the grounds that it was contrary to law, since funds had not been provided, it is held that a resolution was passed on January 22, 1926, to pay commissions out of proceeds of the sale of bonds. The resolutions simply show how each member voted. The court is not able to find where any member refused or neglected to perform duties imposed by the school code.

In the absence of any refusal or neglect of duty, it is held that the court is without authority to exercise the discretion which it is given when there is such refusal or neglect of duty. The rule to show cause why the respondents should not be ousted is therefore dismissed.

Few changes were seen in the roster of teachers this year. Here and there a new face could be seen but in the main the same teachers who were there last term were on the job this morning. One new supervisor is seen, Miss Ruth Totman, who replaces Miss Julia Gilbert as supervisor of physical education, Miss Nannie Mitcheltree takes the place of Dwight Connor as principal of the Mahoning and Lawrence schools. The other changes were in the personnel of teachers.

For Dr. G. C. Green, superintendent, it was his first day as superintendent opening a school term. He came to New Castle May 1 and contented himself largely with familiarizing himself with the school system during the closing days of last term.

This year he opens as superintendent and he expressed himself today as wanting to make this term the best New Castle has ever had, and the best he has ever had in his many years as a school man.

POTTERY HEAD WRITES OF LABOR CONDITIONS AS FOUND IN GERMANY

1-2 cents; flour, first quality 7 1-2 cents; flour, second quality, 6 1-2 cents; coal, 62 1-3 cents per hundred pounds.

The average child quits school at 14 years and goes to work. I have never seen as much or as large a percentage of the land under cultivation. The government tells the farmer how much wheat and oats to plant, and if he does not do it the land is given to someone else to cultivate. The oats are now being harvested. Most of it is being cut by hand with old-style scythes. An old man cuts the grain and is usually followed by three old women who rake it together and bind it up in sheaves and shock it. Occasionally one sees an old-style reaper—there are no binders—being drawn mostly by oxen and cows and sometimes by horses, and then the raking and binding are finished by old women. The young men have either been killed in the war or have gone to the cities.

The Germans must have started on reforestation years ago. Millions of acres of spruce and white pine, some of the oldest forests now being cut. The trees were all set out in straight rows, just like an orchard, except they are only about five feet apart.

None of the ordinary people think that the Kaiser will ever return to Germany. They are angry at him for running away. I think he should have stayed in Germany and taken whatever medicine might have been coming to him.

You remember several months ago Germany voted on the proposition as to whether or not the government should confiscate all of the Kaisers' property. No decision because less than 50 per cent of the total possible vote was cast. The majority of the voters did not vote. The failure to vote was really then a vote against confiscation of property, not because of love for the Kaiser, but against the general principal of confiscation of property and suds. Well, believe me, everyone drinks it on all occasions.

I think it is the only thing that keeps them satisfied with their lot in life.

I tried to buy you a necktie in Berlin and also in this city, but could not find one quite loud enough for you. Will try again in Paris, where I hope to be in about a week.

Kindly regards to yourself and wife.

JAMES M. SMITH.

WILL START WORK OF CLEARING SITE OF OLD COLISEUM

fected and it is expected that actual work will be under way in approximately a month.

Previously announced plans for a combination theatre and business block have been changed and Rowland & Clark, acting for the Stanley Corporation will now erect a model theatre without any other features.

The theatre will cost more than $200,000 and will have the largest seating capacity of any theatre in the city, the seating capacity to be in excess of 2,000, it is announced.

While it will be run at the start in keeping with the Rowland and Clark policy of combined vaudeville and picture show, the theatre is to be constructed with the ultimate object of making it available for use of legitimate stage productions.

Building Was Interesting One

The work of clearing the debris from the theatre site is to be rushed and the entire site will be cleared down to the foundation. With its clearing, the last remains of one of the city's most interesting buildings will pass away.

The site will in a large part be available for use in the construction of the new thearte. The property was purchased originally by James Mooney in June 1905 from the Vogel heirs. The foundation was put in with the idea of building a fine hotel structure.

Mr. Mooney changed his plans and constructed in its place the Coliseum building, which was the scene for several years of the famous roller skating game of polo.

Polo lost out in popularity and in 1908 it was changed into a theatrical amusement place by Mr. Mooney and others. In 1911, the late Thomas V. Plant purchased the property and it was conducted from that time as a theatre until March 7th, this year, when it burned to the ground.

The theatre when completed on the Coliseum and adjoining property will be the largest theatrical amusement enterprise in the city, having a frontage of 91 feet six inches on South Mill street and will run back to Apple Way.

LABOR OBSERVES ANNUAL HOLIDAY AT CASCADE PARK

ence for the man who works and those dependent on him, but that he believed in a fair wage, which means more than mere existence and permits the workingman to have some of the better things of life, own an automobile if he wants one and give his children a worthwhile education.

More Fairness Seen.

The workmen of today, he said, were inclined to be more fair with their employers and the same was true of the employer toward his employes. He said that both should be able to get into conference over their difficulties in a spirit of cooperation and without antagonism and reach agreements that are fair to both.

Labor organizations of this country, he stated, are highly American and their members are patriotic. Leaders of the organizations here have not been led astray by Bolshevism and have remained solidly behind the principles and ideals for which this country is known, which has resulted in the improvement of the conditions of the workmen of this country and of the country in general.

T. J. McMichael, general chairman of the Labor Day celebration, was chairman of the meeting at which Senator Weingartner spoke. He announced that James Noonan, president of the International Association of Electrical Workers was unable to be present, according to a telegram received on account of being delayed by flood conditions prevailing in the district through which he must come in order to get here.

Although the threatening weather of the early morning kept down the attendance, when the sun began to get in its work about the middle of the afternoon hundreds of automobiles filled with people began to pour into the park and by evening there were many thousands of people at the park.

Sports Program.

During the afternoon the sport program was carried out near the entrance gate at the end of the street car line. Hundreds of people gathered to witness the events which were handled by members of the Labor Day committee. Cash prizes ranging from 50 cents to $2 were awarded in the various events and to those placing first and second.

The events included a peanut race for girls under 18 years of age, watermelon eating contest for boys under 15 years, 50 yard dash for ladies, sack race for boys under 15 years, ball throwing contest for ladies, 50 yard dash for girls between 12 and 15 years and 100 yard dash for boys between 12 and 15 years.

High water conditions made it impossible to hold water events, according to the announcement of the committee and these events were not held.

The nice appearing and well arranged souvenir program published by the committee in charge of the event was distributed to thousands of people and was accorded general approval. Special Labor Day badges were also disposed of by the committee to the extent of many hundreds.

There was an unusually large number of visitors in attendance, especially from Ohio points and all amusements and novelty stands enjoyed good business especially during the late afternoon and evening. Dancing was one of the favorite pastimes of many of the people and the pavilion was crowded much of the time during the afternoon and evening.

The concluding feature of the day was the fireworks display in the late evening, it was enjoyed by the thousands of people.

BIG ATTENDANCE SEEN AT SCHOOLS

McGill School Crowded

Arthur McGill School is in a bad way. One room has seventy students in it, another 55 and another 45. These three rooms are accommodating a crowd that should be divided into at least 5 rooms. Until the extension to this school is done, the teachers are due for a hard time.

While other schools are full, the McGill School presents the worst problem. Additions to every school will be seen every day for the next two weeks, so that a true enrollment will not be possible until nearly October 1.

Hagfish Third Heart Located In Its Tail

The fish known as the hagfish abounds in Monterey bay, Cal., and is so voracious that not fishing in those waters has been rendered practically impossible.

Hagfishes alone among fishes are truly parasitic. They fasten themselves at the throats of large fishes, work their way into the muscles without tearing the skin, and finally inside, devour all the muscles of the fish, leaving the skin unbroken and the viscera untouched. These fishes become living hulks before they die.

Although the hagfish is blind, it has rudimentary eye spots. These are not, however, sensitive to light. The skin of the adult is continuous over these eye spots, though the areas are characterized by the absence of skin pigment. The rudimentary and sightless eyes themselves are embedded in pits in the cartilage of the skeleton of the head.

The hagfish has three hearts. It has in addition to the regular heart, a special heart for the portal system of veins. This heart has its own incoming and outgoing blood vessels and all are well equipped with valves to insure that the blood takes a one-way course.

It is estimated that 27 per cent. of the people who covet Ford's income blow in more than Henry does.

New Castle Health Conditions Are Good

Health conditions in this city are ideal.

During August only four cases of contagious disease were reported to Health Physician W. L. Steen.

During the past six days three whooping cough cases have been reported, he stated today.

Generally speaking New Castle is teeming with good health, barring abdominal influenza, which is subsiding.

There are no "idle rich". All are kept busy dodging people who want some of it.

You will recognize the advent of Autumn by the showing of advance spring styles.

People are more sincere in a small town. Bluffing won't work; everybody knows how much you make.

SCHOOLS RE-OPEN

NEW CASTLE and Lawrence county schools have reopened for the year, the first sessions being held in the city and township schools this morning.

The year just starting will be one of the most successful experienced by teachers and pupils, both in the city and county, it is believed. Conditions auger well for that record.

In New Castle there is an able teaching force, and splendid facilities for good work. A majority of the school board are for progress and expansion of these facilities where required, so that there is indicated a steady progress during the year as need is shown. Likewise, in the townships, there is every indication of progressive school boards and excellent teaching forces. In two of the townships, Shenango and Hickory, fine new schools are being erected, that in Shenango township being a 21 room centralized school, while that in Hickory township is a new high school at East Brook.

With such facilities as are now provided, and to be provided in the future, the pupils of both the city and township schools will have schooling facilities that offer them many advantages for greater progress than ever before.

In Ellwood City, the same record is being made, as in New Castle and the townships. A fine new high school building is being put into service this fall, giving added room and equipment for the most efficient work that is being accomplished in the schools there.

All in all, New Castle, Ellwood City and Lawrence county, are today embarking upon what should be a most successful year in school history.

CHALLENGES FOLLOW CHANNEL SWIMS

WHEN Gertrude Ederle conquered the English Channel and beat every record made by the men there was a general belief among enthusiasts that her mark would stand for this year at least. Mrs. Corson, who followed "Trudie" in a successful effort to reach England from France, made much slower time. Then from an unexpected quarter appeared a champion who swam the waters in 12 hours 43 minutes as against Miss Ederle's 14 hours 31 minutes. Immediately the American girl cabled congratulations to Otto Vierkoetter with a challenge to meet her in a dual contest next summer.

Since then challenges have been flying thick and fast, according to a metropolitan daily. Mrs. Corson invites Miss Ederle and the German to a cross-channel trial of speed for a purse of $50,000. Henry P. Sullivan, of Lowell, Massachusetts, whose powerful strokes carried him over in 1923, and who was the first American to succeed, wants a race on the ocean off the Atlantic coast. He opens it to everybody from everywhere, both men and women, and has posted $1000 as a guarantee of his good faith.

Miss Belle Barrett, who barely missed connection with the British shore, and is now back home, nurtures a desire for a long-distance swim with Gertrude. A challenge for an around-Manhattan swim attributed to Mrs. Corson has been rejected.

Through Arch Selwyn, theatrical producer, she has also been bombarding the Ederle fortress with a proposition for a championship test from San Perdo, California, to Catalina Island. But, says Dudley Field Malone, Trudie's manager, "Miss Ederle intends to be a swimming champion, not a talking champion, and it will be time enough to talk about a match to settle the championship when some woman breaks her record."

There was a day when flying across the English Channel was deemed to be an exceedingly dangerous experiment, but now there are air lanes with established airplane services. That twenty-mile strip of turbulence has held many terrors for swimmers, but they likewise seem to be disappearing. Indeed, negotiating it bids fair to become a regular sporting event, while swimming contests of all sorts appear to be on the way to popular recognition as permanent fixtures.

THE FRANKING ABUSE

DESPITE the herculean efforts of President Coolidge and his administration at governmental economy and reduction of the administrative personnel of the national government to the minimum permitted by needs of good government, the post office department has annually increased its payroll through the addition of more jobholders. In fact, the civil service commission has discovered that the post office department is taking on employes faster than the other departments can get rid of them.

This does not necessarily mean that there has been an unwarranted increase in the number of postal employes. It will be remembered that the nation's postal system has expanded along several lines under President Coolidge. The mileage covered by rural and city delivery routes has been greatly increased. This administration has given to the country its first air-mail service deserving of the name. And then there is the augmented personnel necessitated by the rapidly growing volume of mail handled through local post offices everywhere.

No doubt certain members of congress will take upon themselves the blame for some of the additional items on the postal payroll. These representatives of the people, if they so willed, could supply some interesting data on the number of postal employes and the cost to the taxpayers of delivering to the constitutency the tons of political propaganda mailed by congressmen under their franking privilege. If members of the two branches of congress proved their friendship to the administration by using their franks in the service of the government and their constituents only, it is feared some administrations would be without friends in congressional halls.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight, 6:23. Sun rises tomorrow, 5:35.

A woman member of congress may make her husband her secretary when the next congress meets. Some men will stand for any humiliation.

A German butcher's daughter has swum the English channel as has also a German baker. Now if a candlestick maker always makes the riffle it will be time to jump out of the rotten potato.

Loose talk gets many a man into a tight place.

While in Gettysburg recently we had occasion to eat and in the dining room of the eating factory we entered we saw the dishes on the table were made in our own Shenango Pottery and not only that but the design on the dishes were the same that our whole family hove on their dishes in this city. It was two pleasant pleasures. The eats were also exceptionally fine.

There is a lot of courtesy due to a stranger when he is in a strange place. And he gets very little of it as travelers will find.

Another good reducing exercise consists in opening the mouth and saying: "No thank you".

There have been business places that have never paid until they busted up and an enterprising advertiser started to advertise in the newspapers and then it was a success. There are many such.

As we suspected, the movement to compel men to wear wedding rings was started by the jewelers. It would place tight or ten million dollars a year more in their jeans. We are against it for other reasons than that also.

There will be so many channel swimmers courting the public purse soon that the one who gets the real stuff will have to have some outstanding feature that overshadows all the others.

It never was intended that a corn roast was to be held in the basement of a church.

For some reacon or other, we hear of a great many cases of ptomaine poisoning this summer. This is the result of slapping a few cans of stuff on a table and calling it a meal or it may come from careless cooking and the preparation of the food. In our party of four last week three who ate fish in a place that charges $14 for the privilege of sleeping in one of it's beds, came near croaking. The one who did not eat the fish escaped torture. If one got shot in one of those places by a waiter there would be some redress, but just letting a waiter poison one seems to be no crime.

A girl often increases a man's happiness by just one word. Occasionally it is "yes," but more frequently it is "no."

When she was young
She got lots of kisses,
But now she gets none,
For she is Mrs.

Our old friend Dr. John Snape called on us last week. He is making good in the great Rockefeller Baptist church in Cleveland. He deserves a lot of success and we wish him well.

The old hotel register is also disappearing. In many of the big hotels there are no registers any more and the guest uses a card and and it is placed in a filing case for the information of the hotel only instead of those who study the registers in order to get a line on the guests, and some times it's the police at that.

Three men were executed in Ohio last week for killing a man to rob him of thirty dollars. This seems terrible at first thought but when it is taken into consideration that three men would murder for that amount of money, the world seems safer without them.

Prehibition has accomplished a lot of things, but still has a lot to do to stop the sale of liquer.

The King of England in order to be exclusive, and he has been in that respect, has always had his pants pressed down the sides instead of down the front. He is now having them pressed down the front. Long live the king!

WHEN VACATION DAYS ARE OVER.

When vacation days are ever at some vaunted summer spot, at the mountains, or the seashore, where they say it wasn't hot, and you step into your dwelling, be it mansion, flat or den, don't you say: "Gee, it is pleasant to back home again?" And it makes but little difference the kind of time you had, if the board was very, very good or very, very bad, when you sit down at your table, never matter what the fare, you say; "By George! the eats I had, with this could not compare." You wander 'reund from room to room, touching this old thing and that; you go put on your common clothes, and wear your old straw hat; and when you wander out of doors, and meet Jim, John and Jack, you say to every one of them; "Od boy, I'm glad I'm back. If a city or a village, or a farm out in the country, 'tis your own home just the same; and when you tumble into bed, as the night's dark shadows fall, you say, as you stretch out your legs; "By Jove, this beats them all."

This poem was written about a New Castle girl who recently spent her vacation in the back country:

She thought that she was all alone,
While bathing in the creek;
And then she chanced to glance around
And saw the mountains peak.

There was a gazabo named Lester
With a wife that nothing could pester;
While cleaning his coat,
She found a mash note,
But the matter did not interest her.

Mice and men do not seem to frighten women as they formerly did.

The lazy man is the one who puts off doing today what he hopes some one else will do tomorrow.

A man is never as smart as he hopes other people thinks he is.

Another class who are now busy holding arms conferences are the young people in the parked cars.

We have read of a writer who talks about life-time imprisonment being a stronger deterrent from crime than the death penalty. When, we'd like to ask this man, did anybody ever spend a life time of any length behind the bars for any crime.

It is claimed that Queen Marie had to wait until the king was away before having her hair bobbed. We were under the impression that when a man became king his wife treated him like other men are treated but maybe there is a difference.

A double dyed enthusiast says that what this country needs is a campaign of education on temperance. We'd like to ask just how much education the modern bootlegger would need to make him quit his meanness.

Judging from what we have read about Harry Thaw's new book, some of the alienists at least were right.

When a married vamp becomes a flirty divorcee would it be correct to refer to her as a re-vamp?

From all we can understand the flapper's summer course covers a good many laps.

Few women ever try to put off today the worrying they can do tomorrow.

It may seem strange to see winter furs displayed in store windows next to bathing suits but at that some girls we have seen in bathing suits looked as though a set of furs might improve them considerably.

There are pretty strong indications that the channel is getting ready to close up for the season.

In Chicago the curfew is rung to chase all the 16 year olds and downward off the streets. It is said that the police have had many embarrassing moments enforcing the ordinance with respect to women. Some of them dressed like 16 are nearer 60 and you can't tell the difference until a good look at the faces is possible.

People who keep out of trouble of various kinds seldom have any occasion to have lapse of memory.

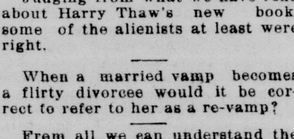
Hay feverites are late in getting their annual sneezing spell this year. But none of them are sorry and all are willing to put off until next year what they expected this year.

It is just possible that the reason Earl Carroll can get $100 a seat for the first night of his show is that a good many may expect him to repeat that bathtub act.

It is surprising how many footballs have come to light the past few days. All the little fellows and many of the big ones are out with the pigskins and having a good time getting in trim for this year's campaign.

Boilermakers and soup tasters are the only ones that are doing more and better work by making more noise.

In the summer season the wonder is how men can stand it to have the women dress as they do and in the winter time the wonder is how can the women stand it.



Happy married people usually laugh at the same joke even if it's the husband.

Kansas City is to hold a world's championship hog calling contest. According to European opinion America will be a sure winner in this contest without any particularly keen competition.

A West Virginia judge declares the automobiles are the damnation of the country. This statement ought to be revised to include some things that can go along in the damning process—knickers for instance.

Good; Bad, Dull, Queer. . Everything Is In The News.
A Wise Child.
A Dead Hand.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1926, by N. Y. American, Inc.

How would you divide news? "Good and bad," "trifling and serious," "commonplace and queer," or how?

At Geneva the world court is planning to swallow Uncle Sam, including his reservations. Prince Arfa Ed-Dowleh, of Persia, told the world court conferences: "If a thing is worth while, don't fear to do it." Uncle Sam will be taken in if he is fool enough to go.

That is dull news.

The King of England has changed his mind and has his trousers pressed with the creases running up and down the front. For years, like his father, King Edward, he wore trousers creased at the side. He has a fierce dragon with red eyes tattooed on his arm, a reminder of the days when he was a sailor with an older brother, and didn't expect to be king. Tattooing is now fashionable in London.

That's important news.

Mussolini means to bring Italian currency back to life and, if possible, to par. He "deflates" the currency, a painful financial process that involves redeeming and retiring hundreds of millions of paper lire a year.

It will mean business depression, 500,000 or 1,000,000 men out of work. That is interesting news and proves again that nobody really understands finance.

A man working, producing wealth, is like a hen laying eggs. If a hen expert had a plan to keep a million hens from laying, you wouldn't think much of him.

But Mussolini's plan may be the right plan. At least he isn't afraid to try it. And courage is the thing after a disaster.

Germany tells the Allies she will pay off 300,000,000 extra gold marks next year, thus saving 200,000,000 gold marks on later payments. That is serious news. It indicates that German prosperity is real. It isn't always the winner of a war that comes out ahead.

With the aid of science any child may know its own father. A high court in Vienna decides that blood resemblance between father and child shown under the microscope is absolute proof and compels the man to support the mother of the child. That is queer news.

Napoleon made it illegal for a woman to try to prove an illegitimate child's paternity. He needed soldiers and wanted to encourage childbirth by making it easy for the fathers.

Very respectable newspapers are agitated because LaFollette, with the consent and approval of voters, fills the Senate seat and carries on the work of his father. They talk about "Mortman" in Washington, wag their heavy heads and worry about "the dead hand of the elder La Follette" ruling through his son.

They don't say anything about "Mortman" when Theodore Roosevelt II runs for governor of New York and is beaten by Al Smith from the sidewalks of New York.

They do not wag their heavy heads in grief because the heir to millions exercises the power of inherited money, which includes more than one vote in the Senate.

La Follete isn't ruling by any dead hand. When he was alive he kicked plutocratic dishonesty. Plutocracy felt the kicks and whines through its paid official whiners.

A young man arrested for robbing the house of Cardinal Dougherty of cash and bonds told the police, "I didn't dare take the cardinal's diamond-studded gold cross, worth $25,000. I was afraid it might jinx me. Something told me they used it in church. I wasn't looking for any trouble like that."

The modernist will call that "superstition", others will see in it proof that religion has power even in the case of a young criminal who tells the police, "I have no religion."

Bible Thought For Today

EVERLASTING LIGHT: — Thy sun shall no more go down; neither shall thy moon withdraw itself; for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended. Isaiah 60: 20.

In Day's News

In a corner of a scientific laboratory in London stands an instrument which wireless enthusiasts ought to seize and erect in some spot at which they could congregate annually for celebrations. It is the first wireless valve, and it was invented 32 years ago by Professor John A. Fleming, who has just retired from his post at the University of London. It was the invention of this valve that really made broadcasting possible. For more than 40 years Professor Fleming has been engaged in experimental physics researches, concerning himself particularly with the technical applications of electricity. Many new theories owe their birth to his mind and genius. Among other things he perfected the system of electric lighting in ships. He has written many important scientific papers and he has delivered many courses of lectures before the Royal Institution in England.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

THE FAITHFUL DOG

Three famous newspaper editors were once asked what news story would interest the most readers.

Two of the three gave the same answer:

"The story of a dog saving the life of a child."

There is more than chance in the presence of the two elements of the story. For next to children, men feel their closeness to dogs.

A cat is the friend of a locality; the dog is essentially the friend of man.

In California a man and his dog were washed off a rock by a ground swell when fishing. The dog made the shore safely. The man, a feeble swimmer, was being carried out to sea when the dog plunged in again and struggled to bring him to shore. Exhausted, he went down, refusing to abandon his master.

Napoleon in his memoirs records an incident, comparatively insignificant, but revealing the fidelity of a dog, which occurred one night on a battlefield.

"Amidst the deep silence of a beautiful moonlit night," he wrote "a dog leaping suddenly from beneath the clothes of his dead master rushed upon us and returned to his hiding place howling piteously. He alternately licked his master's hand and ran toward us.

"I involuntarily stopped to contemplate the scene. 'This man,' thought I, 'has his friends in camp, but he is forsaken by all except his dog.' "

"Endurance, Fidelity", are two of the words inscribed on the monument raised recently in New York City to "Balto", the malmute dog who led the heroic dash to Nome last winter.

The preposition "of" might well be inserted between the two words to describe the nobility of the natures of dogs the world over.

From Wortley, England, comes a twenty-word story relating the tale of a humble and heroic vigil of unending fidelity.

"After living six years among the graves in the cemetery where his master is buried, a black Pomeranian has died," says the cable.

Six years of silent, inviolate, unchanging vigil by a "dumb beast" which loved its master!

It is not to be wondered at that a court in a western state, with all due formality, handed down a legal decision that the dog is man's most faithful friend.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

BRITISH UNIONS AND POLES

British subjects have had brought home to them two unpleasant situations during the General Strike. During this strike, officials of the Labor Party made a personal attack upon Prime Minister Baldwin, because he holds more than 200,000 shares of a British Steel & Coal Company. This put Baldwin on his mettle, and he took the trouble to thoroughly investigate the Trade Unions finances.

Nearly every British Trade Union, with the exception of the Miners' Union, is a registered Union, and as such is compelled to make a financial report to the Government, showing the amount of money received and expended, and how expended. The Miners' Union is a secret organization, and its records have never been made public. Most of the other Unions keep books, which are more or less well kept. Some of them, it was found, had no auditors and their records were not reliable. Taking the returns of the principal Unions, Baldwin has made public some startling figures.

The Railwaymen's Union in 1925 received a revenue of $23,000,000 and expended $1,550,000 for salaries, expenses, and politics, distributing but $750,000 in benefits!

The Transport Workers received $2,400,000, and $950,000 was spent for salaries alone!

The General Workers received $1,750,000 from their members, and spent $1,520,000 in salaries and expenses!

The Electrical Workers received $260,000, and spent $220,000 in salaries and expenses!

In 1923 there were 4,368,000 members of Trades Unions in Great Britain. They received approximately $40,000,000 in dues and paid out approximately $19,000,000 in salaries and expenses. The Trade Union Counsel that year held nineteen meetings. It has only thirty members, but these nineteen meetings cost $10,250.00. Out of every dollar of dues, one spendthrift Union spent 84 cents on salaries and expenses.

Mr. Baldwin found in one case that was brought into Court recently the Union had spent $190,000 in distributing $17,000 in benefits. There are about, all told, ten thousand Union officials in Great Britain. These officials have consolidated themselves into a regular Bureaucracy, and it would seem for the main purpose of promoting their own personal and political interests. The Coal Miners' Union, for instance, has fifty of its officials in Parliament.

The other fact to which the people of Great Britain have closed their eyes heretofore, is that their Nation is expending 458,000,000 pounds each year upon "Doles",—a sum equal to nearly two and a half billion dollars. These "Doles" take the form of payments to the Unemployed.—National Health Insurance, Old Age Pensions, Disability Pensions, and War Pensions. Of this amount, the Unemployed receive the major portion. The British Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, investigating, have reported that the wives and children of striking miners are better fed now than when their husbands and fathers were mining coal. Formerly, a voter receiving such assistance from the Government, was registered as a pauper, and as such had no vote, but now the franchise has been extended to the extent of permitting an idler receiving Government assistance, to vote. In industrial centers these votes can compel the working citizens to support the rest in idleness. There is actually a village in Durham, a district still richly endowed with coal, wherein, a Board of Guardians of the Poor granting lavish allowances,—22 out of 24 are actually striking miners.

Great Britain is now staring at this situation in the face,—where Trades Union dues goes to enrich Trades Unions officials, and taxes derived from incomes and property of the workers are being paid out for the support of idlers.

My Favorite Joke.

Too many people are like the nigh ox that an old farmer told about according to Charles W. Summerfield assistant to the general secretary of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Summerfield just returned from a motor trip through New England. While stopping in a small town he fell into conversation with a farmer and desiring to be pleasant remarked.

"Fine team of oxen you have there my man."

This was obviously a breach of the truth for one was a decrepit animal and they pulled together very poorly.

"Yes" drawled the overall-clad native. "They are a perfect matched pair. That off ox is willing to do all the work and the nigh one is willing to have him do it."

POEMS I LOVE

BY CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

"Auf Wiedersehen" by James Russell Lowell.

No one has better shown the necessity of filching this beautiful phrase from the German, than Lowell. It has become a part of our language, througs constant use; and surely "until we meet again," —or literally, "until we see each other again"—is softer and lovelier than our own definite and iron "farewell" or "good-by."

The little gate was reached at last,
Half hid in lilacs down the lane;
She pushed it wide, and, as she past,
A wistful look she backward cast,
And said,—"Auf wiedersehen!"

With hand on latch, a vision white
Lingered reluctant, and again
Half doubting if she did aright,
Soft as the dews that fell that night,
She said,—"Auf weidersehen!"

The lamp's clear gleam flits up the stair;
I linger in delicious pain;
Ah, in that chamber, whose rich air
To breathe in thought I scarcely dare,
Thinks she,—"Auf wiedersehen!"

'Tis thirteen years; once more I press
The turf that silences the lane;
I hear the rustle of her dress,
I smell the lilacs, and—ah, yes,
I hear,—"Auf wiedersehen!"

Sweet piece of bashful maiden art!
The English words had seemed too fain,
But these—they drew us heart to heart,
Yet held us tenderly apart;
She said,—"Auf wiedersehen!"

RAISE FUNDS FOR CHURCH

Over $160,000 Sold For New Church At Grove City—Other News

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 7.—Bonds to the amount of $160,000 have been sold of the $200,000 bond issue authorized by the congregation of the First Presbyterian church, is the announcement of the treasurer, C. B. Barber. The major portion of the bonds were sold to Grove City residents, Mr. Barber states. For the present the remaining portion of the bonds are being pushed on the market. The bonds are denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000. The first of the issue will mature in five years. The money derived from the sale is being used to defray the expense attendant to the building of a new church and are covered by pledges of the congregation spread over a five-year payment basis. Of the $250,000 pledged for this purpose Mr. Barber announces that the sum of $103,707 has already been paid in. The church is fast nearing completion and a tentative date of the week of October 17 has been set for dedication. It is built of Indiana limestone and is a massive structure.

Bids on the new theatre on Broad street proposed for erection by J. M. Guthrie will be opened about October 1, declares Mr. Guthrie today, who is hopeful that the bids made on the amusement house will be such that a contract may be let. The place of erection will be on the site of the two properties adjoining the Reporter-Herald building purchased several years ago with this plan in view. A 30-foot entrance from the street the length of the theatre to the stage will make it of unique construction. A similar entrance in a theatre at State College is the only other of its kind in western Pennsylvania.

A hut in the heart of the five-acre forest tract at Raymilton was the rendezvous of a group of Grove City lads who were taken in their forest retreat Sunday evening by Chief of Police Ray and brought to Grove City along with $300 worth of stolen goods and the truck belonging to George De France stolen last week. Goods stolen from the Coleman hardware store and other places were recovered as a result of this coup on the part of the local police. Charges were preferred against two of the number, Harold Milner and John Allen, Jr. The other two boys are being kept under surveillance until the police have an opportunity to question the boys further. Chief Ray is in possession of the information that will lead to the arrest of the boy who held up Arthur Moon in the Dixie lunch room at 5 a. m. Sunday and took $50 from the cash register as a result of this arrest and information gleaned. The "stickup" was the work of another member of the crowd, is the statement of Ray, who with full details states that his arrest will occur soon.

The residence of E. B. Harshaw in East End was struck by lightning Saturday afternoon during the storm and damage to the extent of $300 done. A part of the chimney was demolished and a quantity of plaster and frame of the house torn loose by the bolt. No occupant of the house was injured.

Rain was responsible for spoiling the Labor Day program planned at the Grove City Country club. Picnics and outing parties planned as a part of the holiday were also curtailed as a result.

The young people of the Presbyterian church conducted the services at the Odd Fellows home at 3 p. m. Sunday. Services are conducted at this home each Sunday by the Young Peoples society of one of the local churches.

Pennsylvania Has Moving Laboratories To Test Drinking Water For Tourists

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa. Sept. 7.—The Pennsylvania state department of health today was completing an extensive survey designed for the purpose of safeguarding the health of tourists and visitors to the commonwealth.

Huge traveling laboratories, operated by the health department under the supervision of special staffs, have travelled every mile of the state's main highways during the summer testing public drinking water supplies for pollution. Where pollution was found placards were posted, warning the public of the danger in drinking the water.

All highways leading to the Sesqui-Centennial in Philadelphia, over which thousands of tourists traveled during the summer, were the first to be traveled by the water laboratories of the state. Then drinking places along all secondary roads were tested.

The same service has been given to the isolated farm when samples of the drinking water have been sent to the central office of the department. The water has been analyzed free of cost and a complete report sent to the farmers.

Officials of the health department have declared that this system has been responsible for a great reduction in tyhoid prevalence throughout the state during the summer.

Nearly 2500 Loaves Of Bread For Scouts During Summer Camp

A trifling matter of 2,439 loaves of bread upon which were spread 440 pounds of butter, constituted one item of the menu at the Lawrence County Boy Scout Camp during the season just ended, a perusal of Executive J. Lee Calahan's kitchen books today revealed.

Judging from some of the items entered in the ledger, there was no suffering from loss of appetite among the local disciples of Sir Baden Powell, although they had good reasons for contracting dyspepsia.

Any crowd of boys who would consume 8,166 eggs and some five hundred odd pounds of smoked meat during a summer's camping season certainly could be expected to have difficulties with the inner man, but miraculously their health remained excellent.

In addition to the above mentioned matter of flesh food, which consisted of bacon, ham and weiners, 703 pounds of fresh meat and chicken went the way of all good meat and chicken at the camp. Corn cakes were a delicacy which appealed to the boys, too, for they nonchalantly ate hundreds of them. On one single morning they did away with three hundred. The kitchen cooked 303 that morning, but three of them turned out bad.

There are a number of plum trees on the camp property, by the way, and they yielded four bushels of fruit. The culinary department promptly turned them into jelly and the boys in khaki just as promptly spread it on bread and ate it all.

The camp figures show that the meals served the Scouts cost 21c apiece. That makes a total cost of $4.41 per week to feed the lads. They were charged $5 a week, so it was evident that the camp ran into a lot of loss which the treasury was called upon to make up.

Prof. Thacker told of the generosity of the Californians, their continual boosting, of the free entertainment provided, of the fruits and nuts given away and how they expended every resource to show the visitors a good time.

While away Prof. Thacker also visited Southern California and Tia Juana, Mexico, and these were described in detail. Next week Lion Thacker will tell of the convention in San Francisco.

COUNCIL VIEWS MENACING WATER

Inadequate Sewer Causes Intolerance Condition; Genkinger Acts Quickly

Councilman Louis Genkinger today headed colleagues on an inspection trip that may result in life-saving.

The visit carried them to East Long avenue where storm water is ruining properties of J. J. Johnston and Walter Kirkwood.

Every time it rains the cellars fill up—and today there is several feet of water and mud in their cellars.

The water, it is charged, has destroyed a furnace and cellar walls.

It is probable the family will be forced to vacate their home to preserve health.

Genkinger conducted a preliminary investigation and found that an individual had built a sewer which had proved faulty.

No doubt, damages will be asked. Prompt repair to the sewer has been requested.

Three automobiles were reported stolen on the streets of this city on Saturday night and Sunday. Two have been recovered.

Hugh Henry had his car, a Ford touring car, 1923 model, Pennsylvania license C 22-398, parked on South Jefferson street when it was taken. It was found later on the Mt. Jackson road near Hickory Creek by Constable Shoup of Bessemer. It had been stripped of its two front tires and battery.

A new 1926 model Ford coupe, bearing Pennsylvania license X5261, was reported Saturday evening as having been stolen from in front of the Universal Sales Company offices on Croton avenue. It was reported found later.

C. E. Taylor, 205 West Sheridan avenue, reported Sunday that his 1925 model touring car, Pennsylvania license 567-912, had been stolen between eight and 10 p. m. from South street, where it had been parked.

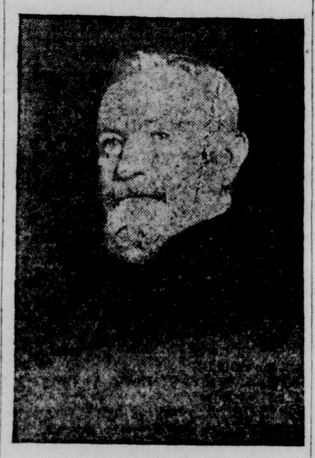
FORMER COUNTY OFFICIAL DIES

James Flynn, 81, Of Union Township Passes Away At Home Of Daughter



JAMES FLYNN

James Flynn, aged 81, former county commissioner of Lawrence county, and one of the oldest and best known residents of this district, died Monday, September 6, 1926 at 12:30 a. m., at the home of his daughter Mrs. C. H. Denny of English avenue, Union township, after an illness due to his advanced age.

Born in Pittsburgh, October 23, 1845, the son of Walter and Mary O'Brien Flynn, Mr. Flynn came to this district in early life and has lived the rest of his long and useful life in this community.

Although a resident of Union township, just outside the city, Mr. Flynn was well known throughout the city and county and took an active part in public and political affairs.

He was elected to the office of county commissioner in which he served in an efficient manner for one term. He was also a supervisor and poor director of Union township for many years.

He was married April 5, 1875, to Elizabeth Winters, who survives him. He was a lifelong member of St. Mary's Catholic church.

Mr. Flynn is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Winters Flynn and the following children, Frank D. and J. Walter Flynn, Mrs. C. H. Denny and Mrs. Archie Smith, all of this city and vicinity. He also leaves two brothers, W. F. Flynn of Cleveland, O., and J. C. Flynn of this city and one sister, Mrs. Theresa Logue of Virginia Beach, Va., and ten grandchildren.

His funeral will be conducted Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at St. Mary's church. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

LABOR DAY THRONG ENJOYS CAPITOL BILL

FLORRINNE

For the many who stayed at home on Labor Day, the theatres offered many attractions, but perhaps the one theatre that attracted through the merits of an unusually good bill was the Capitol, where three acts of vaudeville, a feature picture, a comedy, a news reel, an orchestra and a pipe organ made up a bill that overtaxed the capacity of the theatre.

"Florrinne" an accordionist who flits back and forth over her keyboard like a humming bird in a honeysuckle vine, opened the bill. This talented young lady runs the gamut of musical selections, from "Tesoro Mio" to "Sittin' On Top Of The World," and pleases in every number.

Stokes and Dow, two lads who can really sing, had number two spot on the bill and their stuff went over for an average of four encores per show. The boys have just enough "hokum" to sweeten their act, and enough melody to bring them back. It's a good act, not designed to interest those of the literati perhaps, but good enough to entertain Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen.

Murray Gordon, presented "Buds and Blossoms" a group of boys and girls (they're hardly more than that) in a musical comedy revue. The act is a versatile one, with plenty of dancing, and singing to make it interesting. Action seems the keynote of the act and from curtain to curtain the youngsters are mixing up a likeable portion of melody and dance.

"The Cats' Pajamas", the feature was the right sort of a picture to fit in with a holiday bill and to this, add Snub Pollard in "The Doughboy" and a news reel of current events. The Capitol Orchestra and the Capitol Organ made up the balance of the bill.

It was a big bill, but the crowd that filled the Capitol from one-thirty until eleven was deserving of something big. The pity of it is that the theatre didn't have 1000 more seats.

"Florrinne" and "Stokes and Dow" did one more show than their contract called for. At eight o'clock they were taken to the New Castle Field club and entertained the guests at the dinner dance held there. Today the two boys are out on the golf course, trying to settle a golf argument that is renewed in every town they play.

The same bill played Monday, will continue through Wednesday and on Thursday an entire change of program will be seen.

Dan Cupid's Work Quite Noticeable

The results of Dan Cupid's journey through city hall was noticed today when council convened.

Mrs. Karl Reimold, formerly Miss Edna Hopkins, mayor's stenographer, and recently a bride, fulfilled the duties of Mrs. Thomas Jones, formerly Miss Cordelia Zeigler, city clerk.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones are on a honeymoon.

It is rumored that another young lady of city hall will soon answer "I do," the hint being contained in the employment of a stenographer to learn her duties, so that city work will be carried on in the department when she resigns.

HELP YOURSELF TO HEALTH — W. K. Kellogg

She needed more than beauty-parlor beauty

WHAT a forlorn figure she is . . . haunting the beauty parlors . . . eternally brooding . . . wondering, worrying. Where had her beauty gone? Her glorious complexion? Surely it was not age that lined her face. Why, she was a young woman and she wanted to live. . . .

There are millions of women in the world today who need much more than beauty-parlor beauty—who, if they would correct that great affliction—constipation—would find color in their cheeks instead of pallor, renewed energy in every fiber of their beings, and a new wonderful freedom from sick headaches. What a blessing it is that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure, safe, permanent relief from this vicious disease, because it is 100% bran.

As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN journeys through the body its fiber remains unchanged. Doctors call it a bulk food. ALL-BRAN sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It stimulates the flow of digestive juices. It absorbs and carries moisture into the intestine and prompts it to natural, healthy action. You never have to increase the amount eaten.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief from constipation or your grocer refunds the purchase price. In chronic cases, eat ALL-BRAN with every meal. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit; sprinkle over other cereals or cook with hot cereals; use in soups, or in the recipes on every package.

Insist on the original Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Part-bran products are of doubtful value. Doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN because they know what it will do. At all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

Three Injured In Auto Crash

Bright Lights Blind Driver, Car Leaves Highway And Overturns

THREE CARS DITCHED ON HARLANSBURG ROAD

Three persons were slightly injured and required hospital attention following an auto accident at Stevenson bend, Youngstown-New Castle highway, Saturday night. The patients were discharged from the Shenango Valley hospital Sunday night.

The persons injured were:

Julia Arndt, Olga Arndt and William Schultz, all of Cleveland. Schultz was rendered unconscious and recovered at the hospital. The other two injured were bruised.

According to Corporal Bowman, state highway police, the auto, driven by Theodore Arndt, was descending the hill when it skidded from the road and overturned.

Arndt claims bright lights of an approaching machine affected his vision and the machine left the highway.

Corporal Bowman also reports several accidents in which three cars plunged into a ditch one mile from the city along the Harlansburg road.

The car of Malcolm Cavallero, Ellwood City, overturned and another machine following tried to stop quickly and also plunged in the ditch. A third car did likewise.

Corporal Bowman stationed himself near the cars and signalled all cars to advance without using brakes, owing to the slippery condition of the highway.

Proof that the world is growing better lies in the fact that its conscience hurts a lot more.

Famous "Wet" Section Mopped Up By Raids

Coast Guard Cutter Carrying Prohibition Co-ordinator Stages Big Raid

Three Days And Nights And Notorious "Wet" District Is Turned Into Arid Country

By FRANK H. FRAYSUR
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 7.—The Yamacraw, crack coast guard cutter of the southeastern Atlantic coast, sailed out of Charleston harbor today leaving behind 40 miles of extremely arid territory with a scattered array of broken copper stills, battered memories of a co-ordinated federal land liquor road which ended in the arrest of 38 persons and the seizure of 106,000 gallons of mash and 910 gallons of liquor.

M. O. Dunning, prohibition co-ordinator of the southeast, and collector of customs at Savannah, was going back to Savannah with other high prohibition officials after carrying through one of the most sweeping raids in the history of South Carolina and the Southeast.

From two angles the operations here rated high on the list of enforcement victories of the federal government—they caused the arrests of five alleged corrupt federal and state dry officers, and completely mopped dry the notorious section of Berkeley county which previously stood out as a moonshining and bootleg haven.

Although the raids lasted for three days and nights and exposed more than 50 special agents and coast guards to danger in the thick woods, not a single shot was fired and not a single man injured, except for one who broke his hand wresting a gun from an alleged offender.

Another Arrest In Hall-Mills Murder Likely

Prosecutor Simpson Says Alibi Has Been Cracked, Nothing More

"THIRD MAN" IS FREELY MENTIONED

Find Several Discrepancies In Story Told By Stevens Four Years Ago

(International News Service)

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Sept. 7.—Another arrest in connection with the Hall-Mills murder mystery is believed imminent today, following a guarded statement by Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson.

The prosecutor made two remarks, which he refused to admit had a connection. They were:

"Henry Stevens alibi has been cracked."

"Another arrest is expected soon."

Henry Stevens, brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and Willie Stevens, and cousins of Henry Carpender, the trio now charged with the murder, has been under heavy guard at his home in Lavallette for several days, although as yet no warrant has been issued.

At the time of the double murder four years ago Stevens said he had a perfect alibi, namely that he had been fishing on the night of the killings with some friends fifty miles away from New Brunswick. Now, however, the authorities have found a number of discrepancies, they say, in the stories told by Henry's friends.

Also another witness is said to have been found who links the name of "a third man" directly with the crime.

Questioned

Henry Stevens, brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and brother-in-law of Rev. Edward Hall, was questioned by New Jersey authorities about his knowledge of the Hall-Mills murder.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Handkerchiefs First Used In China

Long before the beginning of the Christian era the handkerchief was commonly used in China in its primitive silk tissue and paper forms. From China it was introduced into Egypt, where it was thought to have talismanic virtues. Then it was copied by the Anglo-Saxons, who bore it at the belt and called it a "sweat cloth". Later these sweat cloths were carried in the hand and became known as the "muckinder", "handcoverchief," "handkercher" and finally "handkerchief". Churchmen were the first to use hankerchiefs in Europe, according to The Pathfinder, and for a time only priests were allowed to carry them.

In its early forms the handkerchief was merely a cloth or towel with which to wipe the face and hands.

It is claimed that the handkerchief has passed through fewer changes than any other accessory of dress. There is only one step from the linen kerchief, fringed with Venetian silk or edged with costly lace and tastefully embroidered to the modern article. Handkerchiefs are made of silk today the same as they were 600 years ago. Besides the United States, where millions of handkerchiefs of all kinds are manufactured annually, England, Ireland, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Malta, India, China and Japan make some of the finest handkerchiefs on the market. The price of a handkerchief depends largely upon the quality of materials used.

At one time it was customary for fashionable ladies to have a particular or special handkerchief of each of their toilets. They had one for morning, another for noon, one for night, one for walking, one for the court, one for the opera, one for the boudoir and one for use while on charity visits. This practice is followed to some extent today. However, the modern dame of fashion has a handkerchief to match or "go with" each of her fashionable gowns.

Soldiering On Job Is Old As Hills

The cynics, who know that the world is getting worse all the time, are sure that idleness and "soldiering on the job" are faults of the Twentith century. In the good old days everyone worked hard and conscientiously.

But there have always been honest workmen and the other kind just as there are today. There is a curious old French epic written by one who called himself the Grocer of Troyes in the Thirteenth century. Here is one passage quoted by M. Langyois in his "Life in France in the Middle Ages":

"When I finally make up my mind to work I take with me a young mate who knows nothing of the job, but I insist on his being paid the full wages of 12 deniers. When, at last, I get on the roof, I ease off and sing a song, then take a siesta between two slopes of the roof. It is then time to knock off for dinner. After that, it is soon supper time, so we leave work for that day. Of course, with piece work it is different: I can do as much in one day as in five days by the hour."

Such is the speech that the Grocer hard put into the mouth of a nn.ycultiO tiler 700 years ago.—Youth's Companion.

Anyway one man's his brother's keeper. Sheriff at Penn Yan, N. Y., arrested his own brother.

Many supposedly erudite gentlemen are merely persons who have nothing to say and never say it.

Father Reports Two Daughters Are Missing

Sam Habib, 508 Locust street, has asked the assistance of the police in locating his two daughters, Emily, aged 18 and Elizabeth, aged 17, who left home Saturday evening about 8 o'clock and have not been heard of since.

At the request of the father, police of Chicago and Pittsburgh, have been asked to be on the lookout for the missing girls.

According to the father, the girls have been talking recently of a desire to enter training as nurses and it is thought they may have gone to some other city in the hope of realizing their ambition.

Emily is described as being 18, years of age, having long dark hair and dark eyes and wearing a light brown coat, while Elizabeth is 17 years of age, has long dark hair, dark eyes and is also attired in a light brown coat.

South American Gold In Solomon's Temple

Ophir, land of rich gold mines that supplied metal for the decorations of King Solomon's temple, was in South America, according to Dr. Van Hauch of Vienna who has been exploring the forests of Peru The fabled country has been the subject of speculation for years, and has been variously located in Arabia, India or South Africa, says a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. In support of his theory the Vienna explorer declares that he found an Indian tribe of 800 whose features bore a Jewish cast and whose language contained many words like those of the ancient Hebrew. The name Solomon had been given to a number of men in the tribe, and legends were told him of a race of seafaring men who landed on the banks of the river Hualla and carried away quantities of gold ore. They called the region around the river Ophira. Dr. Von Hauch believes that the strangers may have been King Solomon's sailors, and that the three years' absence of his fleet mentioned in Biblical accounts is explained by the long journey to Peru. Columbus believed that he had found the source of Solomon's riches when he set foot on the West Indies. The African theory is based on the discovery of ancient mines among ruins south of the Zambesi river, and a Seventeenth century writing to the effect that one was the Abyssinian mine from which the queen of Sheba obtained most of the gold she gave King Solomon.

"Movie" Posse Hunts Bandits

Cameraman Is Left Behind In Hunt In Wilds Of Wyoming

SOME NEWS FROM LOS ANGELES, CAL.

By THOMAS R. CURRAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4. —A motion picture bandit hunt, with the cameramen left behind, was staged by Col. Tim McCoy, Metro-Goldwin-Mayer western star, and a "movie" posse of fifty Apache on a picture in Wyoming.

When two train robbers plundered a registered mail car between Rawlins and Wamsutter, Wyo., Tim McCoy and his company of Indians, many of them expert trackers, took up the trail of the fugitive robbers in the notorious Jackson Hole country of Wyoming.

McCoy was slightly wounded in the neck when a gun carried by one of his Indians was accidently discharged.

Novels, short stories and plays have been ransacked for screen material; the next course of supply will be poetry.

John S. Robertson, now directing Lillian Gish in "Annie Laurie," predicted that his production will start an avalanche of picture plays taken from poems and songs.

"Poetry is practically untouched," Robertson explained, "and nearly every famous poem of any length has an idea that will furnish the groundwork for a real story. Scott's 'Lady of the Lake' would make a beautiful picture, as would Keats' 'Eve of St. Agnes'; Poe's "Anabelle Lee;" Moore's 'Minstrel Boy;' Whittier's 'Maude Muller;' Scott's 'Young Lochinvar;' Tennyson's 'Idyils of the King', and many, many others.

Even the great heroic epic poem of Homer and Virgil would furnish picture material."

Syd Chaplin will soon start on "The Missing Link," his next picture. Chaplin, "Chuck" Reisner, his director; and Darryl Frances Zanuck, scenario writer spent a month on the Santa Cruz Islands working up comedy situations for the play.

Harry Carey, famous Western star, will wear a white collar for the first time in years before the camera in "Alex Smith," his first picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Carey will support Claire Windsor and William Haines.

Later on, Carey will probably revert to western parts as M-G-M recently announced its intention to meet the growing demand for pictures of the wide, open, unfenced spaces.

Changing his mind, Dick Barthelmess started work on "The White Black Sheep," instead of "The Four Feathers," which had at first been considered for his next picture.

May McAvoy, the tiny motion picture actress who is now freelancing, will be able to resume her work before the camera days in a very short time, her physicians declare. Miss McAvoy recently suffered a nervous breakdown.

Marion Davies, Charles Ray, John Gilbert, Mae Murray, King Vidor, Lew Cody, Fred Niblo and Louis B. Mayer have formed a committee to "get out the vote" in the motion picture colony.

The committee members aren't interested in candidates or causes; they want a complete voting representation of the screen industry.

Svend Gade, noted Danish director, does everything except turn the cameraman's crank during the filming of his pictures and Gade knows how to do that, too.

He assists in writing the adaptation and continuity of his pictures, selects the featured players in the cast, chooses costumes for them, and paints and designs his sets.

John T. Murray, for years an Orpheum headliner, will support Louise Fazenda in a comedy series for Warner Brothers.

George Melford, dean of motion picture directors and the director of "The Miracle Man," will direct Bessie Love in "Going Crooked."

Rev. Landis To Give Series Of Talks At Prayer Meeting

Will Give Expositions On The Life Of Christ Based Upon The Four Evangelists

A series of expositions on the life of Christ will be given by George M. Landis, pastor of the First Baptist church, at the Wednesday night service. These outline studies will be based upon a harmony of the four evangelists: Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. The events in the life of the Lord will be taken up in a chronological order and lessons of a devotional and practical nature will be drawn from them. Outline notes of each study will from time to time be published in typewritten form, so that any who desire to preserve them may do so, and have a complete series of outlines on the life of Christ.

The first of the series will be given Wednesday night and will be introductory in its character, dealing with the subject: Why Are There Four Gospels? The fact that we have four separate accounts of our Lord's life is regarded as unnecessary by some critics, who consider them a needless duplication and damaging to the idea that the Bible was inspired by God. These objections will be considered and their merits weighed. Inquiry will be made regarding the differences as well as the similarities of the four gospels; and an effort will be made to see whether the distinctive character of each gospel is not a convincing argument in favor of its Divine inspiration, rather than evidence against it.

The services will begin at 8 o'clock with prayer and praise followed by the Bible study at 8:30, continuing until 9 o'clock. The public is most cordially invited to this service and to avail itself of a splendid opportunity to study the life of the most wonderful Person who ever walked upon this earth.

Head Of Schools Meets Teachers

Conference Is Held On Monday Morning At Ben Franklin School

SAYS TEACHING NEEDS ENTHUSIASM

With few exceptions, every teacher, principal and supervisor of the New Castle Schools met with Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent Monday morning, September 7, when the usual get-together prior to the school opening was held, in the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School.

The program presented was a short one, but two addresses being made, these by Rev. C. J. Williamson, pastor of the Highland United Presbyterian church and by Dr. Green himself. Several group songs were sung, with Thomas A. Johns, supervisor of music directing and Miss Anne Thomas at the piano.

Requires Enthusiasm

"The profession of school teaching requires enthusiasm," said Rev. Williamson. "The class gets out of a lesson what the teacher puts into it, and the minute a teacher lacks her enthusiasm for her work, she is growing old. Not before, for old age is not a matter of years."

He urged the teachers to carry on their work with the vision of service before them, promising them that the rewards in future manhood and womanhood were large.

Dr. Green dwelt largely upon the Curriculum Study course which will be started in the near future. This he said would take many months to complete and would require the combined efforts of every teacher in the system. At the end of the study or survey, it will be possible to chart in an intelligent way, the studies now used in the schools here, and to prepare a syllabus.

The meeting lasted but about 90 minutes. Following it, the principals met their teachers in various rooms of the building.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

IF TO BE CLEVER

If to be clever means that I must sneer
At every honest effort to be good,
Must tear to pieces all the brave revere,
And scorn what isn't clearly understood;
If only what is rotten can be art,
Lord, keep me from the sin of being smart!

If to be clever means that I must jest
At all that men hold sacred, and disdain
The simple teachings telling what is best,
Must serve the passions for my pocket's gain;
If brilliance means an utter lack of heart,
Lord, save me from the sin of being smart!

If to be clever means that I must see
All that is base and vile and call that real,
And finding honor, swear it cannot be
Because I've known some men to lie and steal;
If wit must tear all gentle worth apart
Lord, save me from the sin of being smart.

THERE IS SMALL HOPE—

For the man who will let others do for him what he can do for himself.
For the worker who is satisfied if he just gets by.
For the man who has never learned to take honest criticism thankfully.
For the town that turns a playground into a factory site.
For the church whose religion consists of theology.
For the teacher who can impart information but not a love for knowledge.
For the man who thinks he is good enough.

Her Tragic Mistake

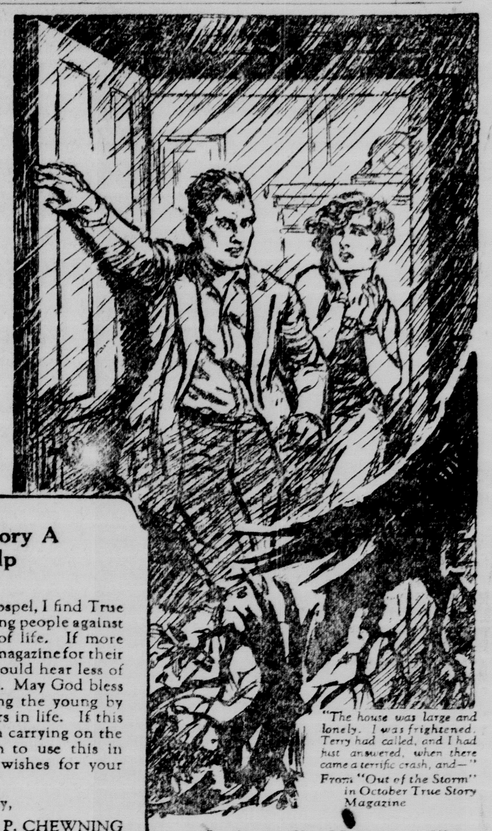
THOSE who knew her would have said: "Such things don't happen to girls like Marion." She was well-educated; she had high ideals; her every thought and word were refinement itself. Yet, she was to find herself subject to the same vicissitudes of Fate that pursue all who blindly try to make right out of wrong.

It all started when she met and fell in love with Terry Dixon, who had twice been engaged to the mad-cap heiress, Helen Carlson, but who swore to Marion that his love for Helen was dead.

But often it is the unexpected that shapes human destiny.

For, having been forced by a terrible storm to seek refuge in a lonely cabin, she had scarcely crossed the threshold with Terry when she found she had taken the first step into a world of terror, desperate conflict and hideous peril.

What she went through is told by Marion herself in "Out of the Storm," in True Story Magazine for October. Don't miss this thrilling, soul-stirring, true-life narrative.



"The house was large and lonely. I was frightened. Terry had called, and I had just answered, when there came a terrific crash, and—"

Finds True Story A Great Help

Dear Sir:

Being a minister of the Gospel, I find True Story a help in warning young people against the trials and temptations of life. If more mothers would provide this magazine for their girls to read we ministers would hear less of the sad stories of fallen girls. May God bless you in your work of helping the young by warning them of the dangers in life. If this is worth anything to you in carrying on the work, I give you permission to use this in any way you see fit. Best wishes for your continued success.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

DISARMAMENT IS SURE, BUT WILL BE LONG TIME COMING

By LORD CECIL,
Secretary Of The League Of Nations In An Interview

In trying to abolish war by persuading the nations to disarm we are dealing with habits and usages which are as old as history. We can succeed in our task only if we remember that success will necessarily be slow.

At present we are on the outer fringes of our problem. The preliminary disarmament commission of the League of Nations is at work on the technical aspects of armaments and we may have an interim report from them at Geneva in September. Their task is purely and exploratory one. They can question governments and draw up recommendations to be submitted to a conference later on, but anything more is outside their field. The political elements which condition disarmament, the elements of national security and national finance, are, of course, utterly beyond their scope.

We have already made a start in the direction of disarmament in the Washington treaty on the limitation of naval armaments. It is true that that treaty limited the construction only of battleships and aircraft-carriers, but that it gave us this definite beginning was promising, most promising.

What we are doing now at Geneva is to make a beginning in the more difficult field of land and air armaments. It will take a long time to get results. The first disarmament treaty may be a very mild one, but there is not the slightest doubt in my mind that eventually the nations will agree to reduce their armaments to those required purely for police purposes.

The tremendous horror of the last war, the knowledge that the next war will be worse, and the growing determination of the Christian churches to assure our ultimate success. The churches have always been opposed to war. They have never been more determined than they are today that war must cease. Christianity will sooner or later abolish war. What is happening now is that we are at last coming to grips with the problem of war. We are only beginning our real task. Patience as well as determination is necessary in the long and intricate task which lies ahead of us.

"CALLES LIKE NERO IN PRESENT WAR ON CATHOLICISM"

A Part Of The Vatican's Reply To President Calles's Defense Of The Actions And Decrees Of His Government

It is evident that the real cause of the present disturbance in Mexico is the anti-religious campaign of the government, and above all the tyrannical nature of the Neronian application of the laws of Calles. There is no tyranny more execrable and odious than that which enters into the sanctuary of conscience.

POPE PIUS XI

From various quarters there comes the question, why to they not come to an agreement, why do not the ecclesiastical and civil authorities arrive at some understanding? We answer: For many years the ecclesiastical authority endeavored in every way possible to arrive at a just and lasting agreement with the Mexican government, but always in vain.

It would not be difficult, even at this late hour, if it were a question of dealing with a government in good faith. But it is a question of dealing with a government bent on persecution and desirous of the suppression of the Catholic church in Mexico. How then is it possible to come to an understanding with a person who is trying to place a rope around your neck to strangle you.

Upon a basis determined by the law of Calles, which destroys the fundamental principles of Catholicism, a settlement of any kind whatsoever is impossible. The Holy See has been obligated to make this declaration. Asked by the faithful in Mexico whether it were permissible, for the purpose of avoiding greater evils, to submit to the demands of the law, the Holy See responded on July 21 of this year that: "It condemned the law and at the same time every act which could signify or be interpreted by the faithful as an acceptance of a recognition of said law."

Wherefore, while the faithful Mexicans are enduring martyrdom —since here we may well speak of a true martyrdom — the entire Catholic church, from the Holy Father to the humblest of the faithful "orat sine intermissione ad Deum pro eis" (pray to God for them without intermission). All our strength and all our hope rest in the invincible arm of prayer, prayed for the persecuted ones whence they may obtain the virture to resist, prayer for the persecutors whence they may come to recognize their error and obtain pardon.

Start Campaign To Restrict Hot Dog Stands Desecrating Beauty Of Roadsides In U. S.

American Automobile Association Aroused At Growth Of Hot Dog Stands

Want Immediate Steps Taken To Restrict "Desecration Of Roadside Beauty"

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.—The beauty of the roadside has been desecrated to such an extent that the American Automobile Association finds itself compelled to launch a nation-wide campaign to throw restrictions around the operations of hot dog venders and their kin along the highways.

In a letter sent out from the A. A. A. National Headquarters today, highway officials in every state of the Union were earnestly urged to formulate plans whereby the "thousands of unwashed, unpainted and unsanitary hot dog stands and lunch counters" would be brought under decent regulation.

The A. A. A. statement was signed by Thos. P. Henry, its president, who made his appeal to state highway officials in the name of the 841 motor clubs affiliated with the national motoring body.

"The situation which is in effect a desecration of the highway is not confined to any one section of the country," declared Mr. Henry. "It is offsetting all that is being done to beautify the highways and millions of motorists are rising in protest. The hot dog vender or the lunch counter keeper has a perfect right to make a living but he has no right to mar the rights of sightseers everywhere. In this respect the rights of the public are paramount."

In the way of further comment on the situation along our highways today, the A. A. A. statement continued:

"No observant motorist can travel from Palm Beach to Miami, from San Francisco to San Mateo, on various roads out of Boston, Los Angeles, New York or Chicago without being appalled at the desecration of good taste and plain civic manners by the thousands of unwashed, unpainted, unsanitary hot dog stands and lunch counters that infest many of our beautiful boulevards.

"This disgraceful appearance of these stands is extended by an unlicensed posting of signs of every size and color upon trees, fences, poles, rocks, barrels and on all other projections between aforesaid stands and counters.

"This is a new condition which has grown upon the authorities, but it is a situation that can be cured. These stands must ordinarily be licensed to do business and it is reasonable to suppose that such restrictions can be thrown around the granting of licenses as will preclude the prospective hot dog merchant from feeling that he can build his future business home out of the signs furnished him by soda pop, candy and cracker manufacturers."

DEATH TOLL NEAR SIXTY

Fire Takes Terrible Toll Among Citizens Of Drumcolliher, County Of Limerick

(International News Service)

LIMERICK, Sept. 7.—The little village of Drumcolliher, County of Limerick, was a vale of tears today.

Hardly a soul in the town but numbers one or more among the 51 men, women and children who perished when fire swept through a loft where a moving picture entertainment was being held.

Practically the entire populace was occupied today in seeking to identify their loved ones among the bodies, or in making preparations for their burial. Some of the victims are so badly burned as to defy identification. These, it is understood, will all be buried together.

Between fifteen and twenty children are among the dead, and it is reported ten persons are still unaccounted for, so that the death toll may reach sixty.

Self Termed Big Factor In Success

Ross Dyar Diagnoses Diseases of Modern Business Men for Advertisers

"Success in business lies primarily in believing in yourself, but too many fail in business because they are afraid," declared Health Evangelist Ross Dyar of Columbus, Ohio, known as the "Billy Sunday of the modern method of advertising of the Business World," in an address on "Making Good in Business recently at the luncheon of the Pittsburgh Advertising club.

"Too many persons you find in business are afflicted with 'know-it-all-itis,' which is only appendicitis of the mind, and also with a carbuncle of conceit," said Mr. Dyar.

"The best way for a business man to have willing workers in his employ is to be one himself. Develop a habit of being good natured, if you want real service from employees. A bump of good nature is a swelling that never gives you pain.

"The best business you can get in is the stock and bond game—sell stock in your self to your customers and friends, and then buy bonds of goodfellowship by being a good friend. There are two many persons in business who are simply commercial sparrows, flitting here and there with no motives in mind except what they can pick up.

"One of the first steps up the ladder is the three H's—matters of the head, heart and hand. As children learn to play, they carry forward their ideals of conduct. The third step deals with the three L's—labor, letters and leisure. The fourth steps, which deals with the three E's—experience, expression and expansion—is the step where most persons stop climbing.

"There are the three P's that must result from climbing the stairway of success—perception power and profit. The real profit that comes is the love of family and the good will of companions.

"We have only three classes of men and women. You are broad and shallow; you are narrow and deep, or you are broad and deep. Your profession is a gymnasium to develop your mental muscle.

"It is not a matter of how much you know, but how you use what you do know. Believe in your work; believe in your fellow worker, and believe in yourself. That will bring you power, profit and pleasure. You can do a lot when you have to do it. Be a dog of faith and not a cur of cowardice. Get out of the ranks of discontent; be up and set the pace you want to go." Come to my meeting, B. & O. Show Grounds, South Mill street, at 8 p. m. every night and learn how to prepare yourself to fight the world's battles.

Wilmington, Highland And Croton Avenues Favored By Speeders

Speeders are not always particular, according to members of the motorcycle force of the city police force, where they indulge in their bursts of speed, as is shown by the fact that persons exceeding the prescribed and safe rate of speed on city streets are arrested in all parts of the city.

But they do sometimes prefer the smoother and straighter streets for that purpose. According to members of the force, the principal streets on which speeding is in vogue is on Highland avenue, Wilmington avenue and Croton avenue.

Of the three, the general opinion would probably be that Wilmington avenue would be the choice because of the fact that it is the widest and one of the smoothest paved streets of the city. This is not true, according to some of the members of the motorcycle force, who state that Croton avenue seems to be the most popular for speeding up.

It is not quite so heavily traveled as a usual thing as the two other principal highways of the speeders and they have a better opportunity of putting on the gas and going fast without interference from other cars. Croton avenue pavement is also in fine shape, another good reason for speeding, if there is any excuse for doing it.

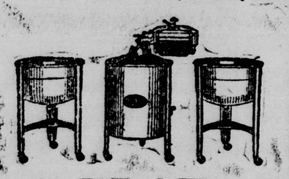
The Big 3

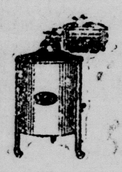
Solves Every Washing Problem

HERE is a really wonderful washer. For mechanical perfection, ease of operation, flexibility and adaptability to any family's washing requirements, it is an outstanding success.



It washes, wrings, rinses and blues mechanically in one uninterrupted series of operations, much better and easier than can be done by hand. It can be operated as a triple or double tub washer, or with just the washer alone.

Fits the Smallest Laundry



No laundry is too small in which to conveniently operate The Big 3. Built compact and light but of standard capacity and strong, it is surprisingly easy to move about and will go through a doorway less than twenty-two inches wide. Its washing principle is vacuum type and has been unchanged for over eighteen years. The daintiest fabrics can be washed without injury. Dirt is forced out gently but thoroughly and quickly, and aerating process removes every trace of washy, musty odor.

PLAN FOR TWO HONOR COURTS

Plans for the holding of two courts of honor, one in Ellwood City and one in New Castle, in November will be taken up at a meeting of the Scout Leaders' club of the Lawrence county Boy Scout council early in October, it was stated at headquarters today.

Football Squad Members Work Out Without Stockings

Years ago, the youth who went out for the football team in his school or college was protected from the unfeeling feet of the rest of the squad by pads, heavy woolens and headguards.

Perhaps the youth of today is tougher, or perhaps football isn't as rough. At any rate practice these days is done with as little impedimenta as possible.

Up at Westminster the squad is working out sans socks, sans headgear, sans guards of almost any description. It may be that it is because Coach Dyke Beede is working the boys so hard, they don't want to carry any extra weight around.

Heat wave has hit Berlin, the thermometer there going up 10 steins in one afternoon.

HEAVY RAINS CAUSE FLOOD

Unprecedented Downpour Is Reported In Vicinity Of Mercer

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 7.—Not since March of 1913 have the residents of this locality witnessed such a flood stage of the three streams that have such a confluence in the East End of the town as that of Saturday evening. A cloudburst of rain which fell between the hours of 3 and 6 p. m. resulted in the quick rise of the Greenville run which flows into Otter creek and that stream which joins with Mill creek on Wilson avenue in forming the Neshannock. Such was the force of the water that the bridge to the Reznor Manufacturing company over the run was carried to the platform edge of the old Bessemer depot. The head of water gained by the flood extended all over this roadway and the railroad tracks adjoining. The Bessemer railroad evening trains were met with passengers and mail at the old Houston Junction. The receding of the flood today showing the bad washing given the ballast testifies to the wisdom of this action. Water covered both the Scrubgrass and Erie-Pittsburgh highways. On the latter road the Mercer police acted as pilots the greater part of the night warning Labor Day tourists of the danger. For some distance to the east of the Millcreek lunchroom the road was covered by 15 inches of water which reached its highest stage at 7 p. m. and for the remainder of the night was receding.

Damage to the sheep flock of Robinson brothers is reported. Nine of a flock of 70 were drowned, valued at $150. The sheep were in the field located adjoining the Butler road bridge. The water at this point covered the roadway and field. Auto wrecks as a result of the storm are too numerous to individualize. Such was the fury of the storm that drivers caught in its pelting force lost control of their cars. Sliding into ditches and collisions are reported. While property damage ran high as a result no injuries are reported. The fruit crop also suffered in broken limbs of overladen trees. That damage will amount to thousands is beyond a doubt.

Full discussion of industrial problems before any action of a definite nature is taken was laid down here Sunday evening in a Labor Day sermon by Bishop Francis McConnel of Pittsburgh as the medium of settling future estrangements of labor and capital. The sermon is of annual occurrence here It is held under the auspices of the East End Fire company. The services were held in the court house assembly room made necessary due to the rainfall. The place of service has always been the lawn of the company's house. A large audience greeted the Pittsburgh clergyman. For years Bishop McConnel has been known for his active interest in labor affairs.

Monday was the third day of continued rain in Mercer county. The rains of Sunday and Monday have been showers, those of Saturday were cloudbursts. The continued downpour has not only been creative of thousands of dollars worth of damage but from its continued fall has the morale at a low ebb. All Labor Day programs were made impossible. The opening date of the Stoneboro Fair was materially affected in its crowd due to the rain.

Examination of babies and children up to six years of age will take place at the Mercer Fair on September 15, is the announcement of Dr. S. J. Dickey, county medical director. Dr. Dickey has arranged for medical experts from the state department of health to be here on this date. They will be established in a booth in a convenient location. The examination is without charge and will be thorough.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

CANCELLATION OF DEBTS NOT GOOD FOR EUROPE OR U. S.

By SIMEON D. FESS, U. S. Senator From Ohio, In An Interview.

Our part in the war was definite and decisive both as to purpose and results. Whatever be the causes which led the entente into war, the United States entered the conflict to defend her rights as a sovereign nation and fought a common enemy not as an ally, but as an associate in war.

We were urged to loan money to these associates upon the solemn pledge that it would be repaid. We poured into France 2,000,000 men and had 2,000,000 more ready to go. Our people subscribed themselves to a wartime tax burden and bought Liberty loans until it hurt, to meet obligations approaching $50,000,000,000 in taxes and loans. No spoils of war were sought nor accepted.

SIMEON D. FESS

As victors, we asked for nothing and got less than we asked. The suggestion that we make a gift of the nearly ten billions of dollars of loans in unwise from every standpoint, both for Europe and America. No government can endure that plays false with its honor and works positive injustice to its people. No country can continue to be either an economic force nor a political power in the world that disrespects its credit, ignores its duty, or abandons its honor.

Hard bargains should not be exacted, but fulfillment of obligations in the degree of ability to pay must be required both in the interests of the creditor as well as the debtor country.

The creditor country, foregoing all spoils of war, cannot be asked to make a gift of the people's money, nor can the debtor countries which have claimed and secured the spoils of war ask for such a gift.

Having voted authority to the administration to make the loans upon the representation that they would be paid, I do not take kindly the proposed cancellation by one who held an important part in that administration.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAYS NEWS

Senator James Reed.

Senator "Jim" Reed of Missouri, from whom the Democrats of his state withheld delegate's badges at the national conventions of 1920 and 1924, is back in high favor with Missouri Democratic leaders. They are booming him now for President in 1928.

It is hard to tell just what caused the change in sentiment. Reed has not changed. He has always been a bitter opponent of the League of Nations and the World Court. He has always been a wet. Perhaps his present popularity may be due to his recent disclosure of primary fund excesses in Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Good politician, that he is, Reed is a Mason, an Elk, a Woodman of the World, a Knight of Pythias. Through his membership in these lodges he has gained a wide personal acquaintance through the state.

He began his public career as a prosecuting attorney in Jackson County, Mo. As a "clean-up mayor" of Kansas City he assailed the public service corporations, and obtained service at lower rates. He was with Champ Clark against Woodrow Wilson for the nomination for the presidency in 1912. He fought Wilson throughout the latter's two terms and was denounced by the President as a marplot.

Reed is 65 years old and has served in U. S. Senate since 1911.

Those who have the things we want never seem to appreciate them as much as we think we would.

Rolling a hoop, spinning a top, or playing marbles are better exercise than golf, but less expensive.

Herbert Bauder Hurt In Accident On West Grant Street Crossing

THREE INJURED ON HILL AT HARBOR

Many Traffic Accidents Reported Over Labor Day Holidays

While no serious accidents were reported over the Labor Day holiday period, in spite of the weather conditions, which made travel dangerous, a number of near serious accidents were reported from various sources and a number of people found it necessary to spend some time in the local hospitals as a result of injuries sustained.

Herbert Bauder of 1026 Beckford street, was injured and narrowly escaped more serious injury, about 2:30 o'clock this morning, at the Pennsylvania grade crossing at West Grant street.

Crashes Into Train

According to the statement made by Mr. Bauder, who is in the Shenango Valley Hospital, he saw a train coming but thought he could make it across before the train. He was not quick enough, however, and the gates were down and his car crashed into them and into the engine of the train, which arrived at the crossing at the same time as his car did. The automobile was wrecked and Mr. Bauder sustained severe cuts and bruises about the head, face and body. They are not considered serious and he will be able to leave the hospital in a short time.

Three persons were injured and taken to the Shenango Valley hospital Sunday night, when their car turned over on the slippery pavement of the Youngstown road, a short distance from the city. The persons injured were: — William Schulz, aged 20, 1593 East 45th street, Cleveland, O., Mrs. Julia Andt and daughter Olga, 4419 Paine avenue, Cleveland, O. The former was unconscious when brought to the hospital but regained consciousness Monday, his condition apparently not being serious. The two women sustained cuts and bruises. All were able to leave for their homes last night.

Hit By Baseball

Perry Laistoria of 1302 Croton avenue, is in the New Castle hospital suffering from severe cuts of the face and head, sustained Monday afternoon, when as he was about to get into his car, which was in front of his home, a baseball being used by boys of the district, crashed through the windshield of his car. The injuries are not serious and he will be able to leave that institution in a short time.

J. W. Harmon, 6808 Hough street, Cleveland O., reported Sunday that as he was driving south on Atlantic avenue, at Etna street, a boy named J. E. Smith, aged 10 years, ran out from the sidewalk into the side of his car and was knocked to the street. Mr. Harmon took the boy to his home, where it was found that his injuries were of a minor character.

The cars of R. J. Krah, Bellevue, Pa., L. E. Edeburn, West Middlesex, Pa., and Emma Carter, 717 Superior street, came together at Liberty street and Mahoning avenue Saturday. All the cars were damaged and H. J. Selby of West Middlesex, Pa., who was in the Edeburn car sustained a cut on the leg.

Hits Fire Hydrant

The car of David G. Massaro, 1332 Croton avenue, this morning about 7:30 o'clock, ran into and destroyed three rural mail boxes at Jones and State streets and then crashed into a fire hydrant at that place, breaking it off at the ground. The place was flooded until the water could be shut off.

P. B. Gordon of 22 East Washington street, reported that his machine collided today at Jefferson and Washington streets with another machine. Some damage was done.

William T. Edmunds of 412 North Liberty street, reported Monday that his car was damaged at Mercer and Washington streets, when he stopped behind another machine and a third machine in his rear hit his machine.

Mrs. Aline Altman of 26 North Mercer street, reported Sunday that her machine was damaged at Washington and Jefferson streets, when the machine of Colonel Hamilton ran into it.

John Offredo, 908½ Pollock avenue, reported Sunday that his machine was damaged when it was in a collision at Montgomery avenue and Lafayette street with a machine bearing Pennsylvania license 642-298.

J. C. Carson of 131 Edison avenue, reported Sunday that his machine was damaged on Jefferson street, when a car bearing Pennsylvania license 248-779 collided with it.

Both cars were damaged Sunday, when the machine of C. V. Gilmore of North Cedar street and R. T. Waddell came together on Liberty street.

Nick Panella, 319 South Beaver street, reported Sunday that his machine was damaged when in a collision with a car bearing Ohio license 941-063 at Long avenue and Moravia street.

J. H. Ellsworth reported Sunday that his machine was damaged when a car bearing Pennsylvania license B 39-315 ran into the rear of his machine at North Jefferson and North streets.

Howard Usselton of 19 Kurtz street, reported Monday that his machine was damaged when a car bearing Pennsylvania license 839-628 ran into it at Home and South Jefferson streets.

J. C. Hays of Polk, Pa., reported Saturday that his car was damaged on North Jefferson street when a car bearing Pennsylvania license 565-389 ran into the rear of his machine.

VOTERS IN FOUR STATES ARE CASTING BALLOTS FOR STATE CANDIDATES

For the past half dozen years the LaFollette faction has been out "to get" Lenroot. Gov. Blaine is the leader of that faction. It is the consensus among political seers that the Blaine-Lenroot contest will be close, with the outcome unknown until all votes are counted.

Blaine is said in some quarters to have the edge over Lenroot because of the efficiency of his well-oiled state machine. Wisconsin is anti-world court and wet, according to all surface indications.

A vote in excess of 400,000 is predicted today on the basis of favorable weather.

In Nevada.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 7.—Political leaders expressed the belief that the heaviest vote in primary election history for the state would be cast today on the Republican ballot, the last effort of E. E. Roberts to take complete control of the state machine from Senator Tasker L. Oddie.

Several thousand Democrats, admittedly anti-world court partisans have switched their party affiliations for the primary and it is considered that all of these will vote against Oddie, who voted for the world court and has stood for the administration in all instances.

Roberts, anti-court candidate and modificationist, has spent four years in building a strong machine in the few populous districts of the state, and if there is no slip-up overnight these areas may give him a majority, it is thought.

In New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—Heavy voting marked progress today in the primary election in New Hampshire.

In the race for the U. S. senate, three Republicans were running. Senator George H. Moses was opposed by former Governor Robert B. Bass and Judge James W. Remick.

Huntley N. Spaulding was opposing Governor John G. Winant in the Republican gubernatorial contest.

In the Democratic primary, Robert C. Murchie, Concord, in the fight for the United States senatorial nomination was opposed by Albert W. Noone, Peterboro.

In the Democratic gubernatorial primary Mayor Eaton D. Sargent, Nashua, was unopposed.

F. Clyde Keefe of Dover opposed Ferdinand Farley of Manchester for the Democratic nomination in the first congressional district and Congressman Fletcher Hale was unopposed in the Republican primary in that district.

There were no contests in the second congressional district. Congressman Edward H. Wason ran alone on the Republican side and George H. Duncan of Jaffrey on the Democratic side.

In Arizona.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 7.—With virtually every candidate opposed to Boulder dam legislation, Arizona voters will decide today one of the most tense primary elections in this state in years.

The race for governor was interesting because Governor Hunt, repudiating an early announcement of retirement, again seeks nomination. His campaign was waged on the charge that California moneyed interests were corrupting the state in an attempt to "put over" Boulder dam.

E. E. Ellinwood and J. J. Cox are also candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor, while E. S. Clark and Thomas Haddock are contesting for the Republican nomination.

The Republicans have no candidate for congress on the ballot. Four Democrats seek congressional office.

Continuity Lacking In Old Indian Legend

One Tells Of Martha's Vineyard Giant, But Fails To Give His Fate

Thomas Cooper a half-breed Indian, in 1792, described the first people at Martha's Vineyard, Mass., to Benjamin Basset of Chilmark. Cooper received the information from his grandmother, who, he says, "was a stout girl" when the English first came to the island. This would seem to establish Thomas' story as a fact.

The first Indian to arrive at the island floated in on a cake of ice with his dog. He found a very large man there whose name was Moshup. This probably is a corruption of Glooscap. Algonquin for "great spirit" or "mystery" and more commonly called manito. Anyway, Moshup had a wife and five children and they all lived in a den. He caught whales with his hands and pulled up trees and roasted his game. As positive proof of Cooper's sincerity is his offer to Bassett to show him the whalebones and the charred remains of the trees. Growing tired of the island Moshup told his children to play ball on the beach joining Norman's Land to Gay Head.

Then he made a mark with his toe at each end of the beach and the water followed and cut away the beach. Four of the children were boys. They lifted their sister above the water so she would not drown. Moshup told them to act as if they were killing whales. They instantly were turned into "killers"—species of whale. His wife made such a nuisance of herself at losing the children that Moshup tossed her away.

She fell on the rocks near Seconet and exacted tribute from all who passed and finally changed into stone. The figure remained lifelike until the English came and broke off the arms and head. Moshup sent whales to the Indians to eat but fades out of the picture without Cooper telling what he started to explain, i. e., where did Moshup go? The yarn is given in full in the "Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society" for the year 1792 and illustrates the lack of continuity of many Indian legends.—From Adventure Magazine.

"Miss Shelby" Crowned At National Tube Co. Picnic

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 7.—Acting upon the suggestion that gentlemen prefer blondes, the judges crowned Miss Agnes Weiskopf, "Miss Shelby" at the bathing beauty contest conducted at the annual picnic given by the National Tube company at Morado park on Labor Day. Miss Shelby is employed at the Steel works, and wore a bathing suit of a mixed material. Miss Leah Fowler, a brunette came in a close second and Miss Irma Dilley came third as a result of the parade of beauties, with their lovely swimming suits and carrying Japanese parasols.

Others participating in the event were: Miss Thelma Straley, Miss Mary Solzberg, Miss Zeda McCandless, Miss Lulu Wimer, Miss Ethel Bair, Miss Genevieve Miller, Miss Betty Pierson, Miss Charlotte Hazen and Miss Thelma Worhl. Besides the parasol, the young women entering this parade were given an added dollars worth of tickets to complete their enjoyment of the park's pleasures during the day.

The picnic was the biggest success ever enjoyed by the Shelbyites with 5000 in attendance. The employes and employers turned out in full force to the natural park, where beauty is the keynote, reinforced by a number of concessions for the kiddies benefit and a great swimming pool which is an added attraction this year, and furnished a splendid background for the beauty contest as well as a number of swimming contests and water events.

Win Contests

Charlotte Hazen and Mrs. Bert Gates won the swimming contest for women and the one for men was won by Joe Gree and Frank Dietrich. There were a number of contestants in the fancy water diving and dashes which followed in line. Prizes were presented for everything. There were 60,000 tickets given out by the committee, saving the owners from having to pay for anything. The Tube company paid more than $3,000 for tickets which acted as a purchasing price for hot dogs, candy, pop, fruit, as well as rides on the merry-go-round and other concessions.

For special prizes Harry Watt received $100 and William McMurdo $25. Another prize of $10 was awarded for the best safety slogan. The prize winning slogan is, "I am practicing Safety in the Mill—Are You?"

Pat Cullinan was in charge of the pitching of horseshoes, which interested a large number of the men during the day. T. H. Brandon won honors in this line.

Largest Family

C. E. Sankey stepped onto a large box and announced that the man present at the picnic with the largest number of children would win the large box of candy which he carried. Frank Cortex who stepped up to the box with fourteen children won the prize, amid ringing applause.

Judges for the bathing beauty contest included: J. W. Offutt, W. R. Johnston and William McGlincey. J. A. Powell was chairman of the committee which was responsible for the splendid success of the picnic. Others on the committee were W. C. Chancellor, H. M. Wasser, G. C. Nicklas, W. R. Johnston, C. E. Sankey, H. E. McClymonds and I. B. McCorkle. Morris Reswick was in charge of publicity.

The rain early in the day did not act as a dampener for long. Crowds began to throng to the park grounds early in the morning. Machines were parked in every available space. Contests followed shortly upon the bathing parade which began early in the afternoon. Joseph Faga and his orchestra furnished splendid music in the park during the day, and later at the dancing pavillion, where employes old and young tripped the light fantastic.

FOR Acid Stomach

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips". Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Mexican Reforms Are Pigeon-Holed

Fail To Locate Senator Or Deputy Willing To Sponsor Episcopal Proposals

HOPE TO HAVE MEASURES AIRED

(International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7. — The constitutional reforms, proposed by the Catholic Episcopate, are pigeon-holed in congress today because no deputy or senator has been found who is willing to sponsor these proposals for reform.

An employe of the Episcopate delivered the proposals to the congress and they were immediately tabled.

The Episcopate is now endeavoring to find some deputy who is willing to brave the displeasure of the government by bringing the measure before congress.

The proposed reforms demand every right and liberty pertaining to the church.

"We demand liberty for all faiths," declared the Episcopate's petition.

The proposed reforms would provide for free education, free religious belief, separation of the church and the state, freedom of the church to maintain charitable institutions, and unrestricted opportunity for church officials to carry on their work.

Large Audiences Greet E. J. Berquist At New Wilmington

Two fine audiences were present at the services at New Wilmington last Sunday and the arrangements for the morning and evening services were greatly appreciated by the mission board.

Excellent music was rendered by some of New Castle's leading soloists who accompanied E. J. Berquist superintendent of the City Mission at these services. The quartet of the First Presbyterian church of New Castle accompanied by Mrs. Paul Browne Patterson sang very beautiful. Solo numbers were rendered by Mrs. Henshaw and the duets which were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Johns of the First Christian church were much enjoyed by the folks who were present.

Question: What is the most serious breach of etiquette?

Answer: Forgetting the wedding anniversary! Leave us the date, and your name and address, and we'll remind you in time.

LAND COMPANY IS GIVEN PRIVILEGE

Community Real Estate Land To Have Advantage Of City Sewer

Council today took a step toward admitting property outside city limits to the city sewer system when the proposition of the Community Real Estate company, owning land on the North Hill, at the end of Highland avenue, was accepted.

According to the proposition the company said it is willing to pay for the advantages to be received from the sewer system and will abide by all building and plumbing laws.

Council deemed the offer fair and foresees a development of land in Audley(Delaware, Fairmont and Highland avenue section.

Councilman Burns voted negatively, not because he desired to, he said, but because he wishes to be consistent as "future requests from non-city property-owners may be received."

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

A Farmer's Profits

By Joella Johnson

"AND this—" Mr. Hoskins drained the last remnant from his third cup of coffee—"coincides neatly with an idea that I've had in mind for some time."

"This" was a legal-looking document which Peter Hoskins passed across the breakfast table to his wife as he spoke.

"With all due respect and affection for Uncle Abner, I've always sorter envied him the possession of that fine old farm of his up in the Vermont hills. Now, being sole heir to his farm, stock and tools, as that paper says, gives me a chance to try out and prove what I've wanted to for several years.

"Maria, what'd you pay for this box of corn celeral? Eighteen cents! H'm, I thought so. And 15 cents for a little can o' beans, and look at the price of oatmeal, and flour enough for a batch o'muffins, even. And still the farmers are grousing about not making ends meet, and working 16 hours a day, and all that bunk."

"But, Peter," mildly interposed his wife, "you don't suppose that cereal grew in the box or the beans in—"

"A can? No, I don't," Peter interrupted with something resembling a snort. "I know your argument—middlemen and manufacturers, and so on—but the farmer gets his share, and don't you forget it! I'm going to prove it, too!

"You read of farmers taking their vacations in automobiles with their families, running over the whole country. And why shouldn't they? I'm going to quit the office right now, like I've been wanting to for years, and after we've put in this Spring and Summer farming we'll be able to take one of those trips, too. Be ready to move up there in two weeks?"

And as Peter exploded this bomb his eyes narrowed and he waited to see its effect upon his wife.

But it proved a dud! Maria Hoskins was born and bred in the hills of old Vermont, and she was not averse at all to sojourning there for what she knew would be a limited time. Moreover, her mental processes were a little bit swifter than Peter's. She had glimpsed ahead to the Winter to come after this experimental farming. They had no financial worries, the children were all grown up, and after Peter's quarter century of faithful service with the firm she knew that they would gladly keep the place open for him, especially if she were to "put a flea" in the ear of Mr. Dunkins, Peter's superior.

So she answered accordingly, and, to Peter quite surprisingly, "Certainly, pa, in one week if you want." And she was as good as her word. At the end of the first week the apartment was spick and span, the best china carefully packed and the furniture all in readiness for its trip to the storage house.

Peter demurred a little at this; he was for having it shipped directly to the farm, but, as Maria pointed out, the old farmhouse was probably overflowing with furnishings already and things would be in a terrible clutter if they tried to crowd another houseful alongside.

An early April evening found them slowly climbing the steep hill that led to their new home, in the rackety station bus. It was not an auspicious day for a homecoming. A slow drizzle of rain had kept up all day and, as the wheels of the bus slumped in and out of the "cradle holes" of Spring and melting snow, Peter hung to his seat, growing paler and quieter all the while.

But Maria's spirits soared in spite of the weather. The ride was so reminiscent of many she had taken in the days gone by. She visualized the cheery, lamp-lighted kitchen and the hot supper that Uncle Abner's old housekeeper would probably have waiting for them.

Her instincts had not failed her. The old farmhouse kitchen, with its lamplight warmth, the red cover on the table, and, last of all, the platter of steaming baked beans flanked by a plate of hot johnnycake on one side and a sugared apple pie on the other, was so like one she had in mind that a mist came before her eyes.

And Peter's spirits rose rapidly as he warmed his chilled fingers at the shining range and comforted the inner man at the supper table.

But, alas for Peter's dream of existing on the products of his farm! For the present, anyway, his plans must be changed. After an inventory, the "products" were found to consist of about a bushel of sprouting potatoes, a few heads of decaying cabbage, a small crock half full of salt pork and a similar crock of dill pickles.

The stock consisted of a couple of dozen really superior Plymouth Rocks (delighting Maria's eyes), a pair of ancient workhorses in fairly good order, and a dozen members of the bovine family, of different ages.

"So," Mrs. Hoskins confided to Peter, after a leisurely breakfast, "unless you think we would really be benefited by a milk diet, perhaps you'd better hitch up and go to town after a few supplies."

And the critters have et the last of their grain," put in Mrs. Willets, the housekeeper.

"All right, all right," asquiesced Peter. He mildly wondered at the price of grain, and after learning it in town he was a bit taken aback. "But of course," he reasoned with himself, "you have to sink a little in any business you undertake, and the returns begin here with our first cream check and the first dozen of eggs that we sell."

Peter was partly right, but, somehow, the grain bill had a way of keeping pace with the cream check, and although Mrs. Hospins had almost phenomenal luck with her growing chicks, they too, had a most represensible habit of consuming vast quantities of feed.

But, all things considered, Peter did well and the first of September found him breaking somewhere near even.

All through dinner on the second day of the month Peter wore an air of ill-concealed excitement. After wiping his mustache on his napkin and pushing back his chair, he leisurely reached into his vest pocket and extracted a bluish slip of paper, which he tossed across the table.

Maria glanced at it. A check for $175!

"Why, Peter, what's this?" she inquired with pleased surprise.

Profits, ma'am, profits" was the triumphant answer. "Sold the two best cows, and pretty good, I call it. Hullo! There's Eb Sanders with the mail. Be back in a minute."

Slowly and triumphantly he sauntered to the mail box, and slowly but not triumphantly he returned, bearing a small oblong piece of thin cardboard. This, too, he tossed on the table before Maria.

Slowly she read the different items, their varying amounts opposite them: To Town, County, and State Tax, To Town School Tax, To Town Highway Tex—less 4 per cent discount if paid on or before Dec 1. Total $176.50!

The Visions of Dr. L.

By Margaret Taylor

THE shrill, piercing voice of authority sounded in the street. A careless motorist is signaled to halt and tyrant and martyr confer. Soon there is a riot of hissing, smoking motors. Then confusion.

Hopelessly hemmed in, a horse-drawn vehicle, slow, cumbersome and now almost a curiosity. Pride of yesterday, relic of tomorrow.

Trailing close behind, a huge motor truck. Impatient at being dedayed the driver gave vent to his contempt and indignation. Mad shrieks of the exhaust whistle.

Up ahead the storm has now fortunately subsided. The czar of the highways signals "Go!" and the waiting cars spit and roar and are off, like so many infuriated beasts dashing for liberty.

A girl stops to appraise an exclusive photographer's display. She is the sweet, modest young person who is reading much about careers and the laudability of ambition, and is greatly encouraged thereby. But knowing nothing of their perils, her aim is perfection of contour, plus a voice that will rival Farrar's.

Her fancy soaring among the clouds, she stands before these imposing portraits, fascinated, her slightest gesture revealing hero worship.

Standing at some distance and looking on, old Dr. L., wealthy and retired, soliloquized and chuckled. For to Dr. L., observing humans and their foibles was what study of insect life was to Fabre. A passion.

Seeing the doctor standing there alone, mumbling to himself, you probably would have classified him as being associated with some quack cult who go in for the dernier cris in isms and complexes.

Not so. The aged physician preserved his health and kept alive the spirit of youth by mingling with excitement. He liked to be alone and believed implicitly in hobbies. Thus, when he felt the urge, Dr. L. would go forth, much like an explorer.

It had been his privilege, as a leading member of his profession, to acquaint himself with the banalities of Main street, as well as the whispered bon mots of the select drawing rooms. While thus contemplating, the doctor felt a timid tug at the tail of his coat. Reluctantly and not a little annoyed, he turned and faced a middle-aged man of doubtful appearance, who asked, in a voice tempered with pleading and menace, for the price of a plate of beans.

The doctor frowned. He had no sympathy with beggars. To him the degraded station implied improvidence of youth, laziness and dissipation; a condition, except in the case of the blind or crippled, as sinful as it was unecessary.

Unwittingly following the practice of a lifetime, Dr. L. analyzed pauperism as a disease, self-inflicted, and the penalty of neglect. . . . Thus, in his professional manner, he prescribed work and a bath, and dismissed the beggar with no cash and ten dollars' worth of advice.

Then, wishing to be alone with his thoughts, the doctor entered a cheap restaurant. Soon he is joined by the smart young man who knows more about Muscle Shoals than the entire Ford engineering staff, who forthwith tries to engage the doctor in conversation. For the victims of the S. Y. M. are the meek, the tolerant listeners who yield to a stranger's craving to air his views, and who lend ear to innumerable insipidties, though they have rebellion in their heart.

But Dr. L. is concerned with thoughts of his own, and the uncrowned savant is silenced with a deprecating wave of the hand.

Alas, how impossible a millenium when the unlearned refuse to be enlightened? Thus he of the twinsix intentions and fiivver capacities. The doctor becomes drowsy and there pass through his mind in rapid succession visions of—

Iscariot, grown contrite and on bended knee, daring to hope, despite the enormity of his crime, that heaven might grant him a painless hanging; of a new Soviet, born of bitter experience, honoring its international obligations and reconciled with the world.

The pictures fade. We seem lost by the pace set by chimerical fancies and by the stern but good man. We stand amazed, incredulous, before this strange tableau.

For Dr. L. is, at heart, the next man—any man—you meet.

The Open Door

By Clyde Weldon

VIRGINIA LATIMER—"Jinny" for short—was one of those fortunate persons who arise with their faces toward the east. Every day was a new day—and a new beginning. A new dawn meant a new grab-bag of events which Jinny opened with eager thrills. A favorite part of her early morning program was to draw her reluctant husband to the open door, face the east, and give exultant thanks for a new day.

Often George Latimer shivered, and told Jinny she was tempting fate to thus give thanks, not knowing what the day might bring forth.

"Don't, Jinny." He drew her within and closed the door. "That deal of Whitehall's comes up today, and I just know I shall lose it. And there are two other men watching Whitehall's move. I dread the day. Besides, the coffee is boiling over."

Mechanically, Jinny set breakfast on the table. It was so like George to close the eastern door. He allowed no glory of sunrise to tinge his day; only the cold, penetrating light of the north suffused his hours. Yet how greatly he longed for sunshine and happiness.

"George, do you like Mr. Whitehall?"

"Like him? You don't like business associates, Jinny—you like their business."

"Well, I am going to like him, and his wife, too," Jinny replied. "And I am going to cook your favorite dinner for tonight to celebrate your luck. I can put it in the fireless cooker before I leave for town. What time are we to meet Mr. and Mrs. Whitehall?"

"Never mind the dinner, Jinny. We are to meet at 12:30, and, as Whitehall is a stickler for punctuality, you must not be late."

Worried lines settled on the face of Jinny Latimer's husband. Punctuality was one thing that Jinny could not—or would not—understand.

"Promise me, Jinny, that you will leave the house at 11 o'clock sharp. That will give you plenty of time to chat with old Mr. Allenby, and to help Mrs. Cornell catch her scattered chickens. You'll start at 11, Jinny?" George anxiously watched the bright face to see if Jinny was listening, or if her mind was wandering off to some elysian fields of her own choosing.

"Yes, George, I'll be ready on the dot of 11." Jinny sent her husband off with an affectionate kiss and her usual endeavors to brighten his somberness.

"It's too bad," she commented to herself as she straightened the little house and prepared the favorite chicken pie. "I'm sure George would have better success if he would only put himself, as well as his mind, into his work. How can I make him see that you cannot deliberately shut a door of your soul, or hang a curtain of selfish desire before a window, and yet expect that contentment and happiness will flood your life?"

Well, she had not time now to study this problem further. The small clock showed the hour to be 10:30.

Happily Jinny dressed in her new bronze frock. Dressing in a new frock was not a weekly or monthly occurrence with Jinny, therefore it must be enjoyed to the fullest extent. True, George had called this frock a "glorified pillowslip," so straight and slim it was. But as the soft material settled beautifully about the slim lines of her fair, young body, the resemblance to a pillowslip vanished, though the glorification remained.

Jinny passed approval on herself, then hurried out the door and clicked it shut behind her—ready on the dot of 11.

At her next step she realized her predicament. A part of that already too narrow skirt was caught in the door!

To her dismay she found she had left her key in her beaded bag on her dresser.

What should she do?

She would have to slip out of her dress, push the screen out of the pantry window, climb in and unlock the door.

But because of that similarity between her dress and a pillowslip, her plan failed. Jinny could neither slip down out of the dress nor step up over it.

She thought of Mrs. Nevers, her next door neighbor, and at that moment this lady marshalled her children across the lawn to Jinny's porch, saying hurriedly:

"Mrs. Latimer, please take care of my children. My sister has been dangerously hurt and—" distractedly she rushed off.

"Well!" thought Jinny. "Did I tempt fate this morning, I wonder?"

With Jinny-like reasoning she decided it must be best for her to miss that luncheon. After the children had, in vain, brought all the keys from their house, they hunted up a tall stool for her, and she settled herself to an afternoon of story-telling.

She became so absorbed she did not notice a car when it stopped in front of the little gate, nor the elderly man and woman who alighted.

The man came to the porch and bluntly demanded to see Mrs. Latimer.

"I am Mrs. Latimer," Jinny, startled, clutched wildly at her dignity, but seeing the man's eyes begin to twinkle, she laughingly explained:

"I am caught in the door. And I'm tired of sitting on this stool."

"How long have you been 'caught,' Mrs. Latimer?" Before disclosing his identity Mr. Whitehall decided to find out if this attractive girl possessed that good habit of punctuality. He was a man who believed in knowing the man's wife before judging the man.

"Since 11 o'clock; I was on my way to meet my husband," Jinny replied ruefully.

The old gentleman nodded, well pleased. Then, after introducing himself and his wife, he produced a bunch of keys, and succeeded in opening the door.

At Jinny's urgent request, Mr. and Mrs. Whitehall stayed to enjoy the chicken pie. On leaving, Mr. Whitehall said:

"Have the papers drawn up tomorrow, Latimer, I want an optimistic fellow like you to look after my business. What with the income tax, indigestion and everything, I have troubles enough without listening to other persons, forcasting them." He hardly realized that for three hours he had been absorbing Jinny's viewpoint.

As the Whitehall car left, Jinny faced her husband to the east.

"But Jinny, the sun is in the west," George demurred.

"Yes, but the moon and the stars are rising. And the sun will rise in the morning."

Willing to Help.

The other day someone asked Kid Cormac, the crochet marvel, if she knew the meaning of the word work.

"Sure I do," she chirped up briskly. "Whatcha doing, a cross-word puzzle?"

"Come, it is quite time you made up your mind. Say which you like best, Alice, who is pretty but poor, or Jeannie, who is plain but rich?"

Nephew (with a sigh)—"I like Alice, but I prefer Jeannie!"

The Younger Generation

By Parke Whitney

I CAN'T be positive in any other way, Horatio. All's fair in love and war."

"Yes, so I've heard. But I can't help thinking that thee is taking an unfair advantage of the young folks. They might behave altogether differently if they knew thee was their grandmother."

"H'm! That's just the point. I've never seen them since they were children. I'm never likely to see them again. My days are numbered, I tell thee, Horatio. I've got to resort of drastic measures to find out who is the proper heir to my property."

"Leave it to all three equally, Deborah."

"Not the homestead, Horatio, not the homestead."

"Well, have thy own way, Deborah. I'll be back by 8, and perhaps by that time thee may have some use for my services. But don't put it off too long," and the old lawyer departed, leaving the friend of his youth standing in the doorway.

Deborah Chilton was in a quandary about the making out of her will. She had two sons in the West, but she had preferred her own little cottage on the shore of the Atlantic. Now two daughters of Hiram's and one of John's were here to help celebrate the Tercentenary.

"I'll leave the door unlocked and leave them a note. They can make themselves at home and I'll see them later." The old lady snatched her bonnet from the hall hat tree, wrote a few lines and hastened down the side path between the hollyhocks, just as three laughing girls and a young man rounded the street corner.

"It's Horatio's grandson!" whispered the old lady, out of breath. "How I wish I might leave everything to Richard. He's a boy after my own heart, and he just loves my home. How many cookies I've fed him after school. And I believe he really loves me. Dear me! How mixed up life is!"

Deborah sank down on the church steps. She had half a mind to give up her project and reveal herself to her grandchildren.

"Well, I don't know but what Horatio was right. Perhaps it is a crazy scheme to carry through, but it is for only a few minutes. Of course, I couldn't keep up a masquerade for long, and I would like to claim my own grandchildren."

She gasped for breath, for the swift walk had tired her exceedingly. And her troubled mind led her to seek seclusion from the chance passer-by. Her ideas of old New England hospitality fought against her Quixotic plan. I'm going to do it if it kills me," she told herself, finally. And she rose stiffly, shook out her long, voluminous skirts, and hurried back home. She entered by the kitchen door, took off her bonnet, and quickly donned her white apron. Now, ladies did not get their own supper in the life the girls lived in the West, neither did they wear white aprons. So who could blame them for mistaking grandma for an old servant? And hadn't they read Grandma Chilton's note?

"Well, I'm glad you came at last! It seems to me Grandma should not allow you to stay so long on your afternoon out. Get our supper immediately, for we are going to see the water sports and wish to get an early start."

The old lady stood in petrified astonishment for one moment. When had she ever been addressed by anyone in Plymouth with such a speech? She, a Chilton, whose ancestors had been the first to set foot upon the new soil! The blood rushed into her fair old face as she went into the pantry. Then she chuckled.

"Well, the stage is set," she thought quickly. "It is just as I planned, but I didn't think it would succeed so surely." By the time she had taken down the best pink lustre dishes she had composed herself. The supper was a merry one. The girls were hungry, and the alert old lady standing in silence behind their chairs.

"I'd hate to live here always; it is so old and shabby," said Sarah, the eldest.

"Oh, but it could be restored! Isn't it quaint? Look at that chest and the cunning little flax wheel!" It was John's girl, the youngest, who spoke.

"I wonder if it will be mine some day," mused Rachel, the younger sister of Sarah, who had ordered Deborah to get supper quickly.

"No," boomed the old grandfather clock on the stairs.

"Well, I'd not care a rap for all the old furniture in Plymouth. I only came for a little excitement. If Grandma Chilton left it to me I'd sell it in a minute." Thus continued Rachel.

"Well, I'm going to stay if Grandma will have me," said Delight, John's daughter and the youngest of the three. "Father is thinking of marrying again and neither he nor his bride will care for my society," and she gave a brave smile through wet lashes at the old lady bending over the table in sudden confusion.

Just then Richard burst into the room in his old-time familiarity.

The girls were leaving for the pageant, but were not quite out of earshot.

"Hello, Grandma Chilton! Get on your scenery! You're going with me to the pageant. Say," he said, lowering his voice, "your youngest grandchild is a pippin! I guided them up from the station. I'm going to marry her some day."

"Well, there's that!" exclaimed Grandma. "Some things simplify themselves. But you run along with the girls. I've important business with your grandfather."

Half Wrong.

Mr. Turner—Do you think I am acting the fool?

Mrs. Turner—Now, John, you know you never could act!

That Precocious Child.

I never met a tot like that,
I never hope to see one,
But since my friend described his son
I know that there must be one.

Luck On the Radio

By Phil Moore

SO long, mother! I'm on my way! Radio's all set for WAAG. Don't touch it and you'll get swell reception. Great concert on tonight. Wish I could stay home and hear it."

Jimmy banged the door, making the pictures dance at the vehemance of his departure.

"It's very queer," mother addressed the dish water, reflectively (she was washing up the supper dishes) "it's very queer! I'm supposed to be capable of keeping the machinery of this house running smoothly. I'm considered capable of helping in every conceivable emergency that arises in the family, from cut fingers to cross-word puzzles, but when it comes to setting the radio, I'm simply not supposed to be capable at all."

Mother emptied the dish water and went on, talking to the dish towels as she put them on the rack to dry. "Tonight," she declared, "I'll have my inning. I'm to be alone until midnight. It's the first night I've had to myself since the radio was installed. I'll play with it all I want to! I'll fish for stations all over the country, and out of it, and nobody shall say me nay. Why, I may even get distance, who can tell?"

She snapped off the kitchen light to the gay tune of "Oh, Katherina!" Then she settled herself before the radio, removed the loud speaker, put on the ear-phones (mother liked the ear-phones best, contrary to the rest of the family), and prepared to change the station. Just as she did so, the pleasant voice of the announcer began:

"We are offering tonight five prizes for the five telegrams received before 10 o'clock stating which selection, in the sender's opinion, the orchestra rendered the best. Winners will be announced at midnight by the leader of the Little Joe Jazz Baby Orchestra who will select the lucky messages, blindfolded, from a box in which all telegrams will be placed. Just send in your telegrams and you may win a trip to Washington for a week, all expenses paid. Take a chance. Steve Brodie did."

"I'm going to take a chance," said mother, aloud. "I've always wanted to gamble and my family wouldn't let me. While the cat's away the mice will play. Let me see which selection do I think they played best? Well—I only heard, "Oh, Katherina."

She despatched her telegram over the phone and came back, replaced her ear-phones and began to "fish" for stations.

"If I could only get distance," she kept saying to herself, "I wish I could! But if Jimmy can't and Helen can't and Pa can't, I don't suppose I can."

Distance with a long D was the one thing the Thurston radio would not get. Although it was a wonderful set, it never had caught anything farther West than Chicago. Jimmy said the aerial was too long. Father said it was too short. Helen said she thought the Rocky Mountains interfered. Be it as it was. Chicago, thus far, was the limit.

Before mother knew it it was 11 o'clock. "My goodness," she said "I must get back to WAAG and hear who wins those prizes."

But where was WAAG? Why, she'd picked it up off and on all the evening. She was sure it was 30 and 45 on the dials. When she set the machine there, however, nothing came but vacuous roars. She reached for the log book that Jimmy had so carefully compiled. Then she remembered WAAG had changed its wave length, and Jimmy hadn't recorded the new numbers. She'd have to hit on it herself.

But she couldn't! In despair she twirled the dials vigorously. Jimmy and Helen and Pa could have cried out at her lack of delicacy in handling the machine.

"Perhaps they're silent for a little while. I'll set it at 30 and 45 and wait. I'm sure it was 30 and 45 before."

So she waited—and waited—and waited—

She awoke with a start. She'd been sound asleep. How long, she wondered? Hark! Somebody was speaking over the radio. She strained her ears. Then:

"This is San Sebastion. Puerto Rico—"

Mother sat bolt upright!

"The next number by the orchestra will be 'La Paloma.' This is KXYU, Puerto Rico!"

"Puerto Rico! I've got Puerto Rico!" Mother forgot she was alone. "Come, come, quick, somebody. I've got Puerto Rico!"

"Did you call, mother?" Jimmy came into the room from without.

"Yes, I've got Puerto Rico."

"Go on! You're kidding." He snatched up a pair of ear-phones and listened a moment.

"My word, ma, you have," he admitted.

"Didn't you hear the telephone ringing?" Helen entered, in a flutter. "It was Mrs. Curtis, mother. She says you won a trip to Washington for a telegram you sent in to WAAG tonight—"

"Goodness, gracious, mercy me!" quavered mother. "But listen, Helen, Puerto Rico—"

"Let's put it on the loud speaker." Jimmy suited the action to the words. "Now, mother, tell us how you got it, anyway."

"Why," replied mother, airily, "I was fishing and fishing, and I just got it, that's all. It was very easy. I wonder you haven't stumbled on it yourself."

"I'm not going to tell 'em how it was," she said to herself. "It's all luck on the radio, anyway, and good fortune was with me, even if I did fall asleep."

"It's mother's night on the radio, all right, tonight," said Helen. "My goodness! I'll say she's some winner."

She's Disobliging.

Mother—Why can't you children play together ten minutes without quarreling?

Bobby—Sister won't jump off the roof when I'm a fireman.

"You said these goods were all wool. Here I find a ticket sewed inside on which is printed, 'All cotton.'"

"Well, don't you see that ticket is sewed on to scare the moths away?"

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

By Nina Florence Smith Vincent

SON OF THE DESERT.

Dromda the Camel went down the mountain and down the mountain. And the pass seemed twice as long to Peter as he had thought it coming up. Perhaps this was because on the journey upward Peter had found Camel's hump comfortable to lean against, while now not only could Peter not lean back against it but the poor Boy had all he could do to stay on Dromda's back. One false move and he would have gone catapulting over Camel's head, which was certainly much lower than his heels!

Jolt, jolt, jolt. Peter had a splendid bird's-eye view of the rocky road before him, but he didn't enjoy the scenery very much. He was too busy trying to keep from reaching the base of the mountain before Dromda. Every road, though, no matter how steep and rough, has its ending. By and by Dromda the Camel stood on level ground.

"Whew!" gasped Peter and took off his cap to mop his brow. Then the Boy's heart stood still. Dromda was making a strange sound. Something was wrong! Had the journey up and down the long, long trail made the Camel ill? Peter bent forward, then bit his lip to keep from laughing out loud, he knew the Camel would not like that! For Dromda the Camel was singing in a queer cracked voice:

"A son of the desert am I, am I,
Back to the desert I roam!
To the shifting sands and the cloudswept sky
Of my childhood's home, sweet home!

ONE FALSE MOVE AND HE WOULD HAVE PITCHED OVER DROMDA'S

"To the heat and cold and the wind monsoon,
To thirst through the long hot day!
At night by the light of the silver moon,
Through the wastes to make my way!

"Glaring sun shines from high, I close my eye,
From the nose shut out the sand,
From my pouch's store I drink when I'm dry.
I know where to find green land!"

Penn State Portals To Open This Week

State College Looking Forward To Big Attendance For Coming Term

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 7.—With the start of "Freshman Week" activities on Thursday, the Pennsylvania State College will officially open its doors for another academic year. Approximately 1,000 freshmen will arrive here on Wednesday to begin the program of instruction that has been arranged for them in advance of the college opening one week later.

Professor W. S. Hoffman, college registrar, announced some time ago that he had filled his quota of 1,000 new students, of whom about 100 are girls. All have been advised to be on hand for the opening assembly of Freshman Week on Thursday. From then until the following Tuesday night the first year students will be kept busy with registration, physical examinations, psychological tests and instruction concerning the use of the library, how to study, history of the college and other phases of college life that will better fit them for the opening of classwork next week.

Indications point to a capacity student body when college convenes on September 15.

TWENTY-THREE LOSE LICENSES

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—The State Department of Highways today announced the revocation of 21 drivers' licenses and the blacklisting of two persons for violation of the motor code for the past week.

The majority of the revocations were for intoxication. There were four revocations for each offense of reckless driving and larceny.

Richard Clarke of Philadelphia lost his license on the charge of being an habitual violator of the laws. Charles Hausman, Allentown, was placed on the blacklist for driving without the consent of the owner. Included in the revocations for reckless driving was George Kiehl of Lancaster.

Old Hotel Register Goes Into Oblivion

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 7. — The hotel register, reminder of the days when large, brass cuspidors dotted the corridors and the proprietor was wont to show Major Hoople, the celebrated explorer and his kin to their rooms, has joined long skirts, good beer and horse-drawn street cars.

The register was withdrawn from the William Penn Hotel yesterday and in its place was an individual card register for each guest, removed after signing to the private hotel files.

One of the reasons for the change, it was said, was to eliminate the practice of individuals perusing the old-fashioned register at their leisure and becoming acquainted with the names of guests.

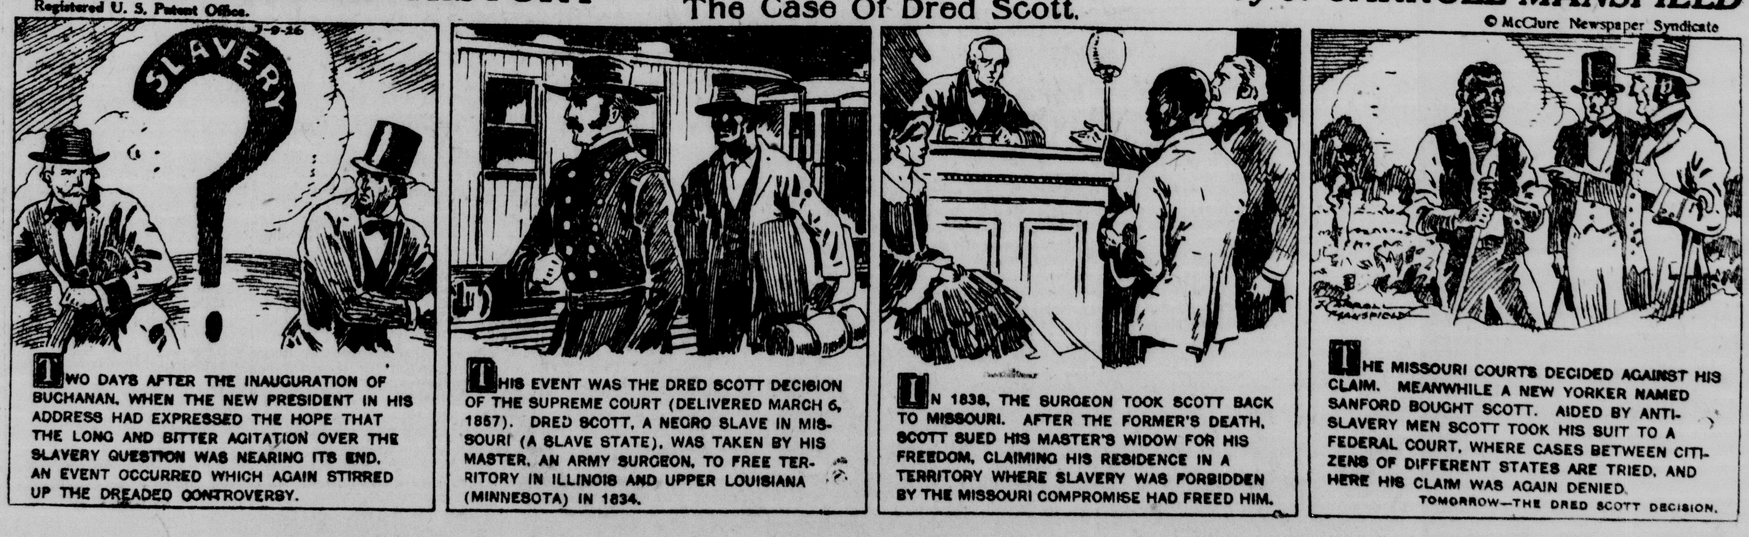
The Case Of Dred Scott.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate



TWO DAYS AFTER THE INAUGURATION OF BUCHANAN, WHEN THE NEW PRESIDENT IN HIS ADDRESS HAD EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT THE LONG AND BITTER AGITATION OVER THE SLAVERY QUESTION WAS NEARING ITS END, AN EVENT OCCURRED WHICH AGAIN STIRRED UP THE DREADED CONTROVERSY.

THIS EVENT WAS THE DRED SCOTT DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT (DELIVERED MARCH 6, 1857). DRED SCOTT, A NEGRO SLAVE IN MISSOURI (A SLAVE STATE), WAS TAKEN BY HIS MASTER, AN ARMY SURGEON, TO FREE TERRITORY IN ILLINOIS AND UPPER LOUISIANA (MINNESOTA) IN 1834.

IN 1838, THE SURGEON TOOK SCOTT BACK TO MISSOURI. AFTER THE FORMER'S DEATH, SCOTT SUED HIS MASTER'S WIDOW FOR HIS FREEDOM, CLAIMING HIS RESIDENCE IN A TERRITORY WHERE SLAVERY WAS FORBIDDEN BY THE MISSOURI COMPROMISE HAD FREED HIM.

THE MISSOURI COURTS DECIDED AGAINST HIS CLAIM. MEANWHILE A NEW YORKER NAMED SANFORD BOUGHT SCOTT. AIDED BY ANTI-SLAVERY MEN SCOTT TOOK HIS SUIT TO A FEDERAL COURT, WHERE CASES BETWEEN CITIZENS OF DIFFERENT STATES ARE TRIED, AND HERE HIS CLAIM WAS AGAIN DENIED.

TOMORROW—THE DRED SCOTT DECISION.

JACK DEMPSEY TRAINS HARD FOR COMING FIGHT

Expects To Beat Tunney Handily

TUNNEY RATED AS BEST BOXER

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor Internat'l News Service

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7. —Can a man who has been out of the ring for three years achieve almost perfect condition and, yet, permanently lose his judgment of distance? This doesn't stand to reason and it is the only question, as I see it, that Jack Dempsey will have to answer between now and the night of Sept. 23.

His condition is excellent. His speed has lost none of the old sparkle during the years of idleness. He is hitting well—whenever the opposing chin is there to be hit. More times than is good for the young man's serenity, the chin is elsewhere. Dempsey is missing a lot of punches, although camp followers assure me that he is doing so with less frequency than at Saratoga.

That is well. If Jack Dempsey is to beat Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship of the world, he must hit him. Nobody ever scored a knockout or earned a decision by fanning the other man's pompadour.

However, if one would believe half he hears and all he sees, this element of uncertainty is the only thing that will serve to make a contest of this fight. Give Dempsey condition, give him his speed and the old will to win, and you have quite a fighter. Add even a dash of his former accuracy and it is difficult to see how any fan of the present era can beat him; least of all a heavyweight whom one might term a rather insincere hitter.

Hitter vs. Boxer

But he can't hurt Tunney without hitting him, if he continues to miss right up to the day of the fight, then it is possible that the challenger might be able to stab his way to the title.

This however, brings back the old argument of the hitter versus the boxer; the former might only have to land one good one to bring the stepper down to his own speed. If he lands it in the first round—which, by the way, always has been Dempsey's best—the fight is usually a brief one. If he lands it in the last round, he can and often does change the entire complexion of the fight. Dempsey will bull's eye at least one of his punches in ten rounds.

Another angle that the critics apparently ignore is that Jack Dempsey in a workout is quite another person from the Jack Dempsey under fire in the ring. He crowds his man, there, hitting short, murderous punches that, naturally, haven't the same chance of missing. This leads that Martin Burke and others were slipping yesterday came at long range.

He boxes that way in the training camp for two reasons. One of them is to develop foot work; the other to conserve the current supply of chins. If Dempsey swarmed over these babies every time out, he'd have the camp to himself overnight. Off-hand, I would say that it is an excellent bet that he will cut loose, without fear or favor, in the last ten days before the fight. By that time he won't care whether the boys leave or how soon.

Champ Not Worried

The intelligentsia also has been at a loss to account for the fact that the champion has been and is being hit with great readiness. I doubt if Dempsey is greatly worried about this state of affairs. Every man he has fought has hit him. All he asks is that they keep on trying, so that he can get a clean shot at the button.

Besides, this is the man who was hit on the jowl by Firpo, Carpentier and Willard and, if he could laugh that collection off, it is difficult to see how Tunney's light hitting can annoy him.

The chances are that Dempsey is figuring on marching right into everything that Gene might have in order to get in close for the killing, if any.

That he will be in condition to absorb punishment is now a foregone conclusion. Dempsey worked forty minutes yesterday and, at the end, breathed as easily as a man in a Morris chair. He perspired profusely in the first minute of play, another favorable sign. A third was the fact that his legs—hard, brown and trim—moved that wonderful body of his about as though operated on steel springs.

As for my original question, it would seem entirely plausible that Dempsey will reclaim some measure of his accuracy within the remaining two weeks. Whatever it may be, it should be enough.

Pittsburgh Pilot Wins At Butler

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 7.—Herman Cress of Pittsburgh, at the helm of a Coffelder Special, won the Labor Day classic at the Butler Fair grounds Labor Day by outlasting Gardner and Wall, the favorites, and finishing the 200 laps in 2:1:0. Cress had no chance to win the Diana Trophy, but was awarded the prize money of $1,000.

Pennant Races In Both Leagues

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. — The positions of the pennant contenders in both of the leagues were unchanged this morning as a result of an epidemic of Mexican stand-offs in the holiday doubleheaders. The Cardinals, still one game ahead of the Reds in the National League race, clash with the faltering pirates again today while the Reds take on the Cubs.

As the Yankees and Indians both split double-headers, New York's lead is still six games. The even break was to New York's advantage, however, as both teams now have only twenty games to play. Washington took third place away from the Athletics, but the Senators trail Cleveland by four games.

Charm Beats Strong Field

Futurity Event Raced On Heavy Track; Guy Ozark Wins

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—Charm, the defeated second choice in the Hambletonian stake at Syracuse last week, made good at the opening of the Grand Circuit meeting in connection with the state fair here Labor Day, beating a high class field in the Horseman Futurity, feature of the race card.

The event was raced over a very heavy track, in spite of which developed into a high class contest. Charm set the pace in the first heat, but John Madden's filly, Catherine, outsprinted her at the end, running in 2:09 1-4.

In the next two, Charm, again off in front, was the best, Catherine finishing fast in the final and only being beaten by a nose. The winner is owned by H. J. Schlesinger of Milwaukee and was driven by Ben White.

Wins Feature Event.

The feature event for the aged horses was the $5,000 stake for 2:08 trotters which was won by Guy Ozark from the Harriman stables. In the first heat Guy Ozark took the lead on the upper turn, but was beaten in a hard drive by the Senator in 2:05 1-4. Guy Ozark again got to the front on the upper turn in the second heat and this time the Senator could not catch him. In the third heat Cox got Cupid's Albingen away flying and the big gelding led all the way, winning easily. The final heat between the three heat winners was raced after dark, Cupid's Albingen breaking and Guy Ozark beating the Senator in a driving finish.

LOCALS DEFEAT ERIE 6 TO 4

Jack Flynn Pitches Steady Game For Locals In Erie Victory Sunday

The New Castle club of the O. & P. league took a fall out of the Erie Sailors at Erie on Sunday afternoon to the tune of 6 to 4, with Jack Flynn pitching a steady game to outpitch Henry and Lauers.

The New Castle team was considerably strengthened by the addition of Jack Reeder, former Virginia league player, who filled in at short and secured a double and scored a run in addition to taking care of three hard chances.

Hoffman with four hits, including two doubles, was the feature clouter of the game, while Buzzard, McCullough and Robertson had two hits apiece for New Castle. For Erie the hitting of Fleming and Munch was a feature.

Flynn limited the Erie sluggers to eight bingles.

The New Castle victory at Erie on Sunday had a very damaging effect on the league standing with the result that Erie was knocked out of first place and Akron slid under the wire winner in the second half of the league. Akron also won the first half and are the O. & P. league champions.

Two Quarterbacks Report At Nittany

State College Blessed With Good Pilots After Three Lean Years

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 7—After three seasons of groping about for a field general to pilot the Penn State eleven Nittany coaches are ready to start the 1926 season with two quarterbacks who gained valuable experience last year.

They are "Cy" Lungren, Philadelphia boy and John Pincura, a Kiski product. Both won their letters last season.

In 1924 and 1925 Coach Bezdek was forced to start the season without a signal caller and to develop some halfback into the position before the start of the big games. Hank Lafferty filled the breach in 1924 and Bill Helbig did likewise last year until Lungren and Pincura could be developed.

This fall the two pilots are starting in where they left off last Thanksgiving day and it looks as though Penn State would be better fortified in field generals than for a number of seasons. Lungren will likely get first call at the start because of his speed, but Pincura is a cool, heady player who can enter the game in a pinch and make good.

High Football Team Resumes Training At Ben Franklin Field

With the opening of the fall term of school today, Coach Phil. H. Bridenbaugh lost no time in getting the football candidates down to intensive training for the opening game with Mars High on Saturday, September 18. The boys were put through a hard workout this afternoon at the Ben Franklin Field in a resumption of activities started during the week spent at the training camp at Muddy Creek Falls.

While nothing definite has been announced as yet by Coach Bridenbaugh it is understood that a least 25 more young hopefuls will be added to the squad with the opening of school. Many of the boys who are to become candidates have been out of town on vacation trips and working in other cities and were unable to get back for the training camp.

"Bill" Cowboy Kirk, has returned from Montana and will make some of the boys step to hold their berths. Kirk has taken on considerable weight this summer and also has grown with the Montana wheat, he stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs around 175 or 180 pounds. Kirk was a second string lineman last year and is expected to hold down a regular job this fall.

The squads, three in number were put through a strenuous rehearsal this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock due to the fact that no school sessions were held today, but every afternoon hereafter the practices will start about 3:30 o'clock said Bridenbaugh.

Earl Turk last year a half-back on the Red and Black team reported for training and its likely to be found at a half-back berth again this season. Turk has been laid up for the past several weeks with a severe cold and also missed the training camp.

Bessemer vs. Energy at Energy. Wampum vs. Neshannocks at Coaltown and Mahoning vs. Ellwood City at Ellwood City.

Penn State Fresh To Report Thursday

Material For Yearling Eleven Remains Unknown As Yet Heads Say

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 7—Just what material will be available for the Penn State varsity eleven of 1927 will be revealed on Thursday when the freshman squad will report to Coach B. M. Hermann. The entire first year class will be on the campus this week for the "Freshman week" activities and candidates for the grid team will be called out at once.

Penn State followers are hoping that some promising timber will be uncovered, for but three members of last year's freshman squad have survived the scholastic axe and advanced to the varsity field.

Cincinnati Reds Cancel Game Here

Business Manager Carm Sacco of the New Castle O. & P. league team made the announcement today that the management of the Cincinnati Reds had dispatched a telegram to this city canceling their scheduled exhibition game here for September 9.

The Reds gave as their reason for canceling the game here Thursday that owing to the fact that they were in the throes of a pennant fight in the National league they would be unable to bring their regular lineup to New Castle for the very simple reason that they could not afford to take any chances on their stars being injured. The Reds, however, promised to send a second string team here for the game, but Sacco wired them that unless they could promise to send their regulars that the game would be stricken off the schedule, and it was.

Cincinnati at the present time is fighting St. Louis and the Pittsburgh Pirates for the supremacy of the Heydler circuit, and according to many of the dopesters they have a fine chance of copping the honors, and it was for that reason alone that they did not wish to make the trip to New Castle, and further than that they have a double bill with the Pittsburgh team for this week and that would be too much of a strain on the players.

The Reds, however, have agreed to give New Castle an open date for next season.

This is the longest fly ever attempted by pigeon owners of Pennsylvania and Littlewood feels elated over the remarkable showing of his bird.

New Players Are Signed For Series

The Ellwood City and New Castle O. & P. league teams scheduled to start the county championship series on Saturday, September 11, at Centennial field announced today the signing of two new players.

The Ellwood City team has added Byak, the hard hitting Energy fielder, to their roster and New Castle has added Jack Reeder, former Virginia league star shortstop, to their list.

Both new men will be in the lineup for the opening game in this city.

The teams are meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of thrashing out every detail relative to the opening of the five-game series.

Scrimmage Work Starts For Westminster Squad

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 7.—If hard work will aid a football team, then the Westminster College grid squad in training here since last Wednesday, is getting some place. With "Dyke" Beede, apt pupil of Wally Steffen, Carnegie Tech tutor, and John Lawther, a former Westminster star, in charge of the coaching duties, the gridders have been sent through practice drills which have left them weary at their close. Each day the work has been heavier but it is evident that the blue and white jerseyed lads are beginning to see what it is all about.

The squad received the surprise of its life Saturday afternoon when Beede order a scrimmage session. This delicacy was served after only three days of preliminary training. However, the boys jumped into the play with a vim that was delightful to see. The drill continued for almost two hours.

Although the scrimmage was strenuous, casualties were few, Joe Smith, a center candidate from Youngstown, lost several teeth, while several others received bruises which were forgotten when Monday's work started.

Labor Day was no holiday for Beede's charges. Practice was called at 9:30 a. m. Despite a heavy rain and a field that was covered with pools of water, no let-up was permitted until 12 o'clock. They were then told to be back on the field at 2:30 p. m.

Several new lads reported over the week-end, Among them were Gerry Sweet, a product of Academy High School, Erie. He is a lineman and when he weighed in, tipped the scales at 248. Freed, a Youngstown lad, Campbell, Pittsburgh youth, and Henderson of Akron, O., have also joined the squad.

New Castle Wins At Beaver Falls

Manager Bill Steen Relieves Rodenbaugh In First Inning; Wins 5-4 Victory

After Rodenbaugh blew up in the first inning at Beaver Falls on Monday afternoon, Manager "Bill" Steen relieved the former County League hurler and pitched New Castle to a 5 to 4 victory over the Beaver Falls Elks in a ten inning game.

Steen took up the burden in the first chapter after the Elks had scored three runs off Rodenbaugh and with only two gone, Steen gave but four hits for the remainder of the game and in addition banged out a double and single that produced three tallies. Semler was on the hill for the Elks and allowed the locals eight bingles of which McCullough led the attack with a double and two singles, while Weimer and Steen had two hits apiece.

Hughes and McGinley were the only Harvey players to solve Steen and Rodenbaugh for more than one safe hit.

With two bases occupied in the fourth inning Manager Steen doubled and two men scored, in the sixth Steen's single scored another run, while New Castle took the victory in the first of the tenth inning. Ross walked, Weimer got an infield single, Grabfelder forced Ross at third, Buzzard lined to Romele but Buffington allowed the toss to get away from him and Weimer scored from second. Steen pitched a steady game in the tenth and the Elks could not get a man on base.

Romele starred in the field for the Elks taking care of eight chances without an error. Grabfelder and Hoffman starred for New Castle.

Huff Delighted With Tribute Of Friends

Veteran Local Ball Player Thanks Many Friends For Handsome Gift

Jess Huff, for the past 35 years, a star of the New Castle sandlots, was more than pleased with the tribute paid him by local fans Saturday when the old Pennsy Shop team played the Mahoning club of the County league in an exhibition game which featured the "Huff Day" program staged by his many friends and admirers.

In addition to the silent tribute to the veteran infielder by the hundreds in the stands he was presented with a material reminder of the occasion in a handsome gold watch.

Huff is more than delighted with the present and what it stands for and today was profuse in his thanks to the friends who made the thing possible.

"I want to thank all my friends for the honor they accorded me "Huff Day" and to say that I certainly appreciate the fine watch which they so kindly presented me with. Words are rather futile in such a case so I will just confine them to a sincere "Thank You" and hope that everybody will know how much I appreciated the whole program Saturday," Huff said today in asking the News to thank the ball fans for the affair they staged for him.

Famous Catches — By Feg Murray

Copyright, 1926, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service

An athletic event is like almost everything else in life—there's a catch in it somewhere. There are catchers in baseball who are looked upon with great favor by their managers and there are "catchers" in boxing, whose managers would be glad to get rid of them at a dime a dozen. Then again there are certain catches that stand out above others either because of some unusual important incident connected with them.

Such a catch was Harry Hooper's in the last game of the 1912 world series between the Giants and the Red Sox. Hooper's great feat came in the sixth inning when he made a backward leap against the outfield fence to grab Doyle's apparent home run. And it was in the tenth inning that Snodgrass made his famous muff of Engle's fly. The catch that Fred missed was as famous as the one that Harry made.

The other day Babe Ruth who has the happy faculty of keeping his name in the public prints went out to Mitchell field on Long Island and caught a baseball dropped by Capt. H. F. McClelland at an altitude of about 250 feet. The Babe failed on his first six attempts at higher altitudes and it isn't to be wondered at as the plane was traveling 100 miles an hour.

"Brick" Muller famous All-American end of the University of California caught many footballs in his gridiron career but none that went so far as the one dropped from the top of a tall building in San Francisco last year.

Zane Grey the well known author-fisherman made a record catch this summer when he hauled in a 582-pound broad bill swordfish after a five and a half hour struggle at Catalina Island. That broke the record of 528 pounds set by Harry Mallen of Los Angeles in 1924. A short rod and regulation 24 thread line were used.

Feg Murray Says.

The pitcher of the firemen's nine seems to put a lot of smoke on the ball.

PULASKI TAKES DOUBLE BILL

Eighteen Innings Required In First Game Of Labor Day Bill—Eggett Fans 22

It required eighteen innings, the longest game on record in Lawrence county this year, for the Pulaski A. C. to secure a 3 to 2 victory over the New Virginia team on Monday afternoon at the Pulaski grounds. Pulaski also won the second game, a short seven-inning affair, 4 to 2.

One of the features of the long game was the fact that both pitchers went the distance, Eggett for Pulaski and Holdoup for New Virginia, with the former holding a slight edge by holding the New Virginia team to seven hits over the 18 innings, while the Pulaski boys found Holdoup for 14 blows.

Michael, with five hits, led the Pulaski team at bat, while T. Ayers, Rodgers and R. Ayers also hit timely for the winners, with Thomas and Wilhelm the best for New Virginia.

Not an extra base hit was recorded in the long game, which is considered also as a record. Eggett, with 22 strikeouts in the first game, also set a new record for Lawrence county playing this year.

Stowe and Etzrott formed the battery for Pulaski in the second game, while Tollinson and Gough were the battery for New Virginia in the nightcap.

Improve Dairy Barns In Western Counties

Lawrence County Listed For Demonstration By State College Men

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 7.—Twenty-four western Pennsylvania counties are to have barn improvement work demonstrated within their borders during the next two weeks, E. G. Lantz of the Pennsylvania State College agricultural engineering department stated today. The three major problems to be solved are lighting, arrangement of interior and ventilation. Lantz is in charge of the work, which is a co-operative undertaking of the college, the Philadelphia Interstate Dairy Council and the Portland Cement Association.

The counties in which demonstrations are to be staged are: Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Cambria, Cameron, Clarion, Clearfield, Crawford, Elk, Erie, Fayette, Forest, Greene, Indiana Jefferson, Lawrence, McKean, Mercer Somerset, Venango, Warren, Washington and Westmoreland.

Work has been in progress in three southeastern counties, Chester, Delaware and Lancaster, for the past several months. In these counties 28 individual projects are now in progress. Each will stand as a demonstration of what can be done with the old bank barn to make it more convenient and healtful for dairying. All of the barns being used were voluntarily offered by the owners for demonstrations when the proposed work was announced.

"Wherever we find tuberculosis free herds we find a man interested in ventilation", Lantz declared. "Having gone to the expense and trouble to get a clean herd, the dairymen now want to maintain it in a healthy condition."

A new ventilation system which promises to be very successful has been designed by Lantz and his association in the work.

Endorse Refusal To Negotiate New Strike Settlement

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The central committee of the mining association today endorsed the refusal of the executive committee to negotiate a national agreement with the striking coal miners.

The request of Winston Churchill chancellor of the exchequer, that the operators negotiate a national agreement has been referred to the district associations.

The action of the central committee lessens the hopes for resumption of peace negotiations in the coal strike.

New Quakes Felt In Fayal Islands

(International News Service)

LISBON, Sept. 7.—New earthquakes have been felt in Horta, Fayal Island, according to reports received here today.

Although the quakes have been slight they have thrown the population into new panics.

Streets in Horta are still closed due to obstructions from the recent earthquakes and fear that new tremors may cause more buildings to fall.

Pledge to the Public
on Used Car Sales

1 All used cars offered to the public shall be honestly represented.

If a car is suitable only for a mechanic who can rebuild it, or for someone who expects only a few months' rough usage on a camping trip, it must be sold on that basis. Each car must be sold for just what it is.

2 All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

This is possible because tremendous reserve mileage has been built into every Studebaker, which it is impossible to exhaust in years.

3 Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

The public can deal in confidence and safety only with the dealer whose policy is "one price only—the same price to all." For, to sell cars on this basis, every one of them must be honestly priced to begin with.

4 Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used.

It is assumed, of course, that the car has not been smashed up by collision or other accident in the meantime.

© 1925, The Studebaker Corporation of America

YOU can buy any used car from us with complete confidence under the famous Studebaker Pledge. You can feel confident that the car will serve you well—that it's worth the price you pay for it—that we want to keep you permanently satisfied. Here are three exceptional values now waiting for someone.

STUDEBAKER 1924 BIG SIX SEDAN—Sport model, newly painted. Bumpers, stop light and other equipment including trunk. Beautiful and serviceable. Down payment only $625.

STUDEBAKER 1924 SPECIAL SIX TOURING—Just repainted pearly gray, with a fine red stripe. Renickeled and entirely reconditioned by experienced Studebaker mechanics. Brand-new Kelly Springfield tires. Windshield cleaner, mirror and other extras. A beautiful car that will render new car service.

STUDEBAKER 1924 SPECIAL SIX TOURING—Painted blue with gold stripe. 5 excellent tires, bumper, motometer and other extras. This is a fully equipped car that has had exceptionally good care.

Used cars can be bought on a liberal Budget Payment Plan. A small down payment—the balance in convenient monthly installments.

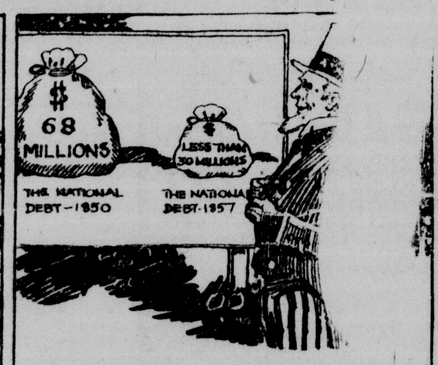
HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

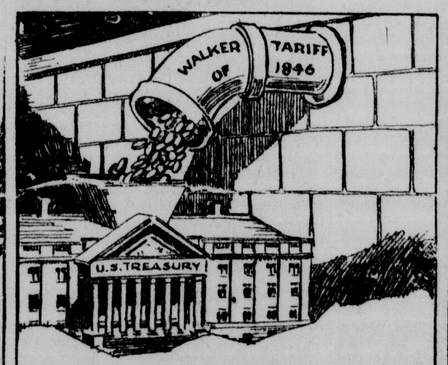
Registered U. S. Patent Office. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The Beginning of Buchanan's Administration.

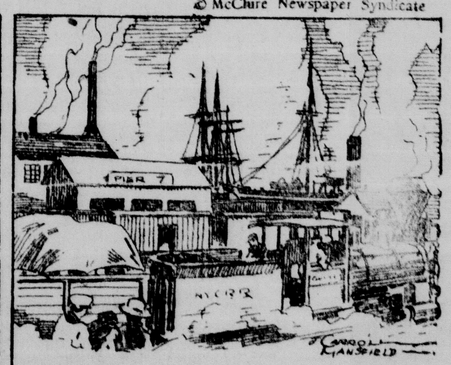
WITH THE INAUGURATION OF JAMES BUCHANAN (MARCH 4, 1857) AS PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, THE NATION LOOKED FORWARD HOPEFULLY TO FOUR YEARS OF PEACE. IN HIS ADDRESS, BUCHANAN PRAYED FOR HARMONY AND AN END TO THE QUARREL OVER SLAVERY.



IN SPITE OF THE TROUBLED POLITICAL SITUATION, THE NATION HAD PROSPERED. THE NATIONAL DEBT, WHICH IN 1850 WAS 68 MILLION DOLLARS, HAD BEEN REDUCED TO LESS THAN 30 MILLIONS.



THERE WAS SUCH A LARGE SURPLUS IN THE TREASURY FROM REVENUES FROM THE WALKER TARIFF OF 1846, THAT IN FEBRUARY, 1857, THE RATES WERE REDUCED BY FROM 20 TO 50 PER CENT.



BUSINESS WAS BOOMING, AND THE COUNTRY WAS ON THE CREST OF A WAVE OF GREAT PROSPERITY. THE ONLY DARK CLOUD ON THE NATIONAL HORIZON WAS THE PERSISTENT SLAVERY CONTROVERSY.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—After a firm opening, in which the railroad, equipment, oil and a few of the utility stocks registered moderate gains, the stock market developed an irregular trend in early trading today.

There was no indication that bullish interests in the railroad stocks would continue the board advance in prices, though New York Central was well bought above 147.

The rise in oil stocks which carried the independent oils to fractionally higher prices, was based on the reports of declining producting in California and Texas, and the firm market for oil products. Atlantic Refining was a leader in this group, with Maryland, Phillips, Pan American and Sinclair responding promtly to more aggressive buying.

Call money renewed at 4½ per cent, and funds were offered in the outside market at fractional concessions from that rate.

A 5 point advance in Pullman to 191 featured the equipment stocks. Rubber and tire stocks were also strong.

Century-Old Firm Finds First Papers

Agreement Between Lord And Taylor Is Discovered In Seattle

From a tin box, carefully put away in a Seattle home, has recently come to light a bit of paper bearing on New York's commercial history. It is a partnership agreement by which was established a business firm which, in the century of its existence has won its way up from a Catherine street basement to a Fifth avenue shopping centre. The agreement reads:

"To all to whom these presents shall come;

"This is to certify that Samuel Lord and George W. Taylor of the City of New York have agreed to form a partnership to be conducted under the name of Lord and Taylor, that the business to be conducted is the dry goods business generally with all its usual appendages, that the said Samuel Lord and George W. Taylor shall be equal partners in the business, each having contributed the sum of one thousand dollars, that the said Partnership is to commence on the second day of May, one thousand eight hundred and twenty six, and terminate by mutual agreement."

The agreement was signed on April 28, 1826. In the previous October, the packet Constitution, from Liverpool, had brought one Samuel Lord. As the forty-fourth on the passenger list he was entered, "male, age 22, occupation iron moulder, England."

Apparently the iron moulding trade was not particularly flourishing in young New York at that time, or perhaps other pursuits offered better prospects. At any rate, the young man from England set up shop-keeping early in February. He carried on business single-handed at 47 Catherine street for three months, until he was joined by George W. Taylor.

Discovery of the original partnership agreement is the reward of a long search under the direction of Samuel W. Reyburn, president of the firm today. The tradition had long held that the firm was established in 1826, but documentary evidence was lacking to prove the date. The first step taken was to locate the earliest advertisements. —New York Times.

Rats In U. S. Equal People In Numbers

Best Of Cats Are Found To Be No Match For Vicious Pests

Man, proud and arrogant, has long looked upon himself as a great huntsman. Wild beasts have been his comparatively easy victims. But where lions and tigers have succumbed, one far less heroic, the rat, grows stronger, bolder, and more numerous despite the unceasing attacks of the great huntsman.

The rat, say those who have made a study of him, is an organized enemy of mankind, disciplined like a soldier, fierce, clever and warlike. According to Prof Henry H. Donaldson of the Wistar Institute, the rat population of the United States is equal to its human population. This makes nearly 120,000,000 rats, an extraordinary figure. And the United States is less tronbled by these pests than are most other nations.

In this connection a classic tale among the hunismen of rats is recalled by Peter Vischer in Popular Science Monthly. The skipper of the British freighter Ethelhilda, had this idea. When he brought his craft from the west coast of Africa into New Orleans not long ago, government officials, suspecting there were rats on board, announced they intended to fumigate with poison gas.

"It's totally unnecessary," protested the skipper, quite incensed. "I have a tom-cat. A rat couldn't live on the same boat with him!"

Nevertheless, the Ethelhilda was fumigated. And through the irony of fate, Tom was left on board in the excitement. But he was found again, dead—completely surrounded by rats. Twenty-four of them lay within five feet of their traditional enemy.

You can wrap things in yesterday's newspaper. But what can the French do with yesterday's cabinet.

All birds have a temperature of 108. Which would kill humans. So don't fly around too much.

Died with Rudy

Peggy Scott, show girl, was found dead from poison in a London apartment shortly after she received news of the death of Rudolph Valentino. Letters indicated an intense attachment for the film actor.

Many Wild Flowers Increase By Picking

Writer Speaks Kind Word For Motorists Who Raid Rural Gardens

Do you love flowers?

In McCall's Dorthy Giles speaks of a subject important to all lovers of wild growing things.

"Many true lovers of wild flowers must shudder at thought of the thousands of automobiles turning cityward on Sunday evening with their running boards piled with wild flowers of all descriptions."

It is reassuring to learn from Dorothy Giles that while some of the most tempting blossoms wither almost immediately, there are many wild plants that are not harmed by being picked.

"Being flowers of the open fields, they do not wither so quickly as to make the cutting of them a wasted effort. The handsome ironweed, which is now so decorative along our roadsides, is one of these, so, too, are the many late summer asters, goldenrod, loosestrife, Bouncing Bet, toadflax—once a garden plant but now escaped to the freedom of the fields; Queen Anne's lace, which with orange field lilies make a particularly lovely bouquet, and one which will last in the house for three or four days.

"Best of all, by picking our wild flowers with economy—and how I wish that every seeker after flowers would carry a pair of scissors or a sharp knife and cut flowers instead of pulling them—we are going to have more and not fewer wild flowers every year.

"Reforestation is going forward in many sections of the country. Only the hiker, who is careless with matches, the picnicker whose gipsy pattern is an empty sardine tin, and those motorbandits who ravage the roadsides of every spray of bittersweet and are not any too careful of the farmers' orchards. When these thoughtless ones—for they are usually more heedless than willful—whose plea is that they 'just love wild flowers' are content to 'love 'em and leave 'em,' there will return to our hills and woods, the beauty that was theirs long ago."

Dr. C. H. Holcomb Says Treatment In France Is Up To Individual

A splendid audience greeted Dr. C. H. Holcomb Sunday night at the 1st Christian church to hear his first mention of his trip abroad.

The following are some observations made while he was spending his summer in Europe.

"The first question asked one on return to the states is how were you treated by the people of France and England. The only answer I can give is that we experienced no difficulty whatever in any section of the country. I think President Coolidge was right when he said that there were some Americans who should stay at home. A person who carries a chip on his shoulder all the time will find some one to knock it off. Americans who boastfully assert themselves in any section of the world will find some one who dares to challenge their importance. It is always policy to so control oneself that while in Rome one can do as Romans do. But the person who boasts his citizenship in hotels on board ships, at depots, or on trains may be sure to find someone who loves his native land just as much as Americans, and why not.

"The way to appreciate the position of a foreigner in America is to go to Europe and become subject to the detailed regulations of immigration officers which are different in every land. When you think America has gone to the Bow-wows, and you have a dark brown taste in your mouth about everything that the government does, the best remedy in the world is to go to Europe.

I observed that even though there are some who believe that there is more drinking in this country since it has gone dry than there was before, I yet prefer our conditions to those of Europe. While we were terrified with the report during the war that many battleship crews were paralyzed for days with drink in London and Liverpool, yet the same condition exists today. But then it was our boys who were drunk and to us that was terrible; today their boys and girls, men and women are drinking as never before in the history of England. There are three million men out of work in England and beggars are everywhere.

My little French guide told me as we passed over the battlefields that the battle of the Marne was lost by the Germans because they had more bottles than bullets. Drinking in France is on the increase. There is much more work for those who desire it in France than England. They have rebuilt the destroyed towns and cities with great rapidity.

Belgium remains silent, but is steadily working on in sorrow. Germany has 500,000 half-fed children in the rural sections and poor sections of the large cities.

The American foreigner in Paris will note that the latest styles for women are skirts above the knees with knee-pads such as were used by the women of 1830. Sodom in the days of Lot could not possibly have invented so many different ways of wickedness as is found in modern Paris. Yet America rather boasts of accepting styles from Paris.

Most motion pictures are made in America that are now showing in Europe. Religion is considered more as a coat which is put on or taken off at convenience, and it is mostly left off.

American money sounds good to France and they sure work every possible way to get Americans to part with it. Some hotels charge 10 per cent extra for tips, and then when you leave every employe of the hotel will stand at the door with his hand out for more.

The experience of being an American foreigner in Europe is well worth all it costs.

"The Slick Guy"

Nearly every one of us has seen the checkered-suit person with the velvet tongue. How smoothly he once told of the merits of this product or that—and raked in perfectly good coin for purchases that were often worthless.

The "slick guy" is seldom seen today. When the wise person goes to buy, he knows what is good in value and fair in price.

Simply by glancing over the advertisements in your paper, you can see where to go for the best buys. You can compare values and check up prices without even stirring from your easy chair. You know in advance just what you are going to get and how much it will cost. And you can have the satisfaction that comes from knowing your money is wisely and safely spent.

Nowadays, no one need be at the mercy of the "slick guy." There are still a few people who fail to read the advertisements—and "take a chance." Don't be one of them.

Advertised products are safe buys.

GIRL IS STRUCK BY LOCAL CAR

New Castle Driver In Accident At Buffalo On Sunday

(Special To The News)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 7. — Marie Allen, eight year old, of No. 369 Hudson street, this city, is in the Millard Fillmore hospital here in a serious condition from injuries received when she was struck by an automobile here at Hudson near Wadsworth street, late Sunday afternoon. The girl was thrown to the pavement and sustained a fractured skull, scalp wounds and broken left arm and left leg.

The driver of the car, John B. Clark, of No. 809 Chestnut street, New Castle, Pa., reported the accident to the police of the Niagara street station here. He said he was driving his car at a moderate rate of speed here in Hudson street when the girl, perched on the east curb, suddenly dashed into the street directly in the path of the machine. Clark said he applied the brakes but too late to stop the machine from striking the girl. After taking statements from Clark and several witnesses, police released the driver.

DeRivera Reveals Recent Attempt At Spanish Uprising

By GEN. PRIMO DE RIVERA Spanish Prime Minister. Written for International News Service. (Copyright, 1926, by International News Service.)

MADRID, Sept. 7.—The action of the artillery corps was a protest against the royal decree of June 6, concerning promotions.

It was not revolutionary in character nor was it a rebellion against the acts of the government.

Failing to win the support of public opinion, which condemns attempts to disturb the calm and tranquility which has reigned in Spain for three years, the artillery corps surrendered entirely and unconditionally.

The ringleaders of the movement will be judged by special military tribunals, which will decide who were responsible and fix the measure of their guilt.

The Odds

are against young men who are living this month on next month's pay.

Some of these days you will run into a real opportunity which requires a little cash to handle, and, as the saying goes, you will be "out of luck."

If you go to the trouble of investigating the early careers of men who are in prosperous circumstances today, you will find nearly always that they had a Savings Account instantly ready to take advantage of opportunities when they came.

Don't think this is mere preaching. It is an absolute truth, and young men who fail to heed this advice will live to admit the error of their careless spending.

Four Probes In Chicago Wreck

Five Persons Are Killed In Crash In Chicago On Monday Night

TRAIN UNLOADING PASSENGERS HIT

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Four separate inquiries were begun today to fix responsibility for the disastrous wreck on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad here last night in which 5 persons are known to have been killed and at least 50 others injured.

Beside the official railroad investigation, City, County and Federal authorities are conducting inquiries.

Hits Excursion Train

The wreck occurred when a fast southbound suburban train crashed rear-on into a crowded southbound excursion train while the latter was unloading passengers at Clybourn station, inside the Chicago city limits.

The last two coaches of the excursion train were telescoped by the locomotive of the rear train. As soon as the injured could be extricated from the tangled mass of debris, they were rushed to nearby hospitals. Several of the more seriously injured may die.

Louis Smith and Fortune Leidley, engineer and fireman of the rear train, were arrested and ordered to appear for the inquest.

Recover Body Of Man From River

Automobile Topples Off Ferry Boat Into Monogahela River Near Waynesburg

(International News Service)

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—The body of John Guriele, 30, of Bentleyville, today had been taken from the Monongahela river at Rices Landing, near here, following a plunge in which Guriele, together with a brother, a cousin and two other men, toppled off a ferry boat landing in an automobile.

The other men, Steven Guriele brother of John, of Cokesburg; a cousin, also named Guriele, of New York City; Steve Singa of Bentleyville, and Frank Cormik of Crucible were returning from an outing, with Guriele, and had parked on the ferry landing, witnesses said, when the brakes on the car slipped, plunging the car into the water.

All except Guriele were able to swim to shore and suffered no ill effects. Guriele, it was believed, was trapped in the car.

The body and the car were taken from the water an hour after the accident.

Four Deaths Due To Terrific Rain In New York City

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Four persons are dead and scores are suffering from injuries today as a result of the torrential rainstorm which swept New York and the vicinity yesterday.

The damage caused by the storm is estimated at almost $1,000,000.

Two men were killed when they struck the third rail after leaping from the window of a subway train which had been stalled by the sudden cavein of an embankment. At least 40 other occupants of the train suffered more or less serious injuries.

Late last evening a dam holding in check the waters of five ponds in New Brighton, Staten Island, burst, flooding two towns, destroying two bridges and driving 100 families from their homes.

Mrs. Sarah Bauer, 56, who lived in a houseboat, was drowned in the flood.

Mrs. Marie Barrett was swept from the porch of her home and drowned.

DISORDERLY HOUSE VISITED BY POLICE

The home of Cy and Carrie Landrum, negroes, was visited early Monday morning by Officers Horner, M. J. Young, Moore, Lockard and Llewellyn, who found a party in progress. Cy and Carrie were arrested as keepers of a disorderly house and fined $50 and $10 respectively. Sentence was suspended on two inmates and two visitors.

RIVER RECEDES AT PITTSBURGH

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 7.—The toll of the heavy rains of the last 48 hours stood today at three dead and property damage estimated at $350,000 in this district.

James Darlington, 32, the latest victim, bewildered by the torrential downpour, walked from a tent at an Oakmont camp into the Allegheny river and was drowned.

After reaching a crest of 22 feet here ,the waters of the Allegheny river began to recede and were falling steadily this morning. Flood stage here is 25 feet. There was no appreciable rise in the Monongahela river level.

Traffic on the Connemaugh and Fort Wayne divisions of the Pennsylvania railroad suffered heavily from landslides caused by the excessive rain. At Butler especially trains were delayed by tons of earth sliding onto the tracks.

Daugherty Goes On Trial Today

Former Member Of Harding Cabinet Faces Trial On Bribery Charge

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—For the first time in history a former member of a Presidential cabinet goes on trial today. He is Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general of the United States in the Harding administration. He is charged with accepting a bribe of $441,000.

On trial with Daugherty will be Colonel Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian in the same administration. He also is charged with receiving a bribe.

These two, with two others, are accused of accepting $50,000 in cash and $391,000 in Liberty Bonds for returning to German owners of the American Metals Company $6,453,979, realized from sale of the stock of the company after it had been seized in the war.

The two indicted with Daugherty and Miller are dead. One was John T. King, Republican dictator of Bridgeport, Conn., and the other was Jess W. Smith, Daugherty's "shadow" and apartment mate.

Smith killed himself in 1923.

After many legal battles to keep the case from trial it opens before Judge Julian W. Mack and a jury in federal court here today. It is tried in New York because, it is alleged, the bribe was paid here on October 1, 1921. It is expected that the first day will be consumed in selecting a jury.

MAYOR TO CONFER WITH COULTHARD

Jefferson And Grant Street Traffic Conditions To Be Discussed By Officials

James Ellison, constable, First ward, today appeared before council relative to traffic conditions at the Diamond and the southwest corner of Jefferson street and also at Grant street and the P. & L. E. railroad crossing.

He said accidents have resulted at Grant street because of the boarding of cars and discharge of passengers in the close vicinity of the railway crossing. He advocated stopping of the cars east of the present terminal.

Ellison described conditions at the Diamond where considerable time must be consumed by the discharge of passengers. Councilmen described the boarding place on the north side of the Diamond, or at the Y. W. C. A. as dangerous.

Mayor Dunlap was directed to confer with Superintendent C. C. Coulthard relative to the conditions alleged to exist.

SUPT. C. C. GREEN

New Castle's student army returned to the front line trenches of the classroom this morning, over 10,000 of them, rested after their three months' vacation, ready to take up the studies they left on that warm day last June when the term ended.

Not a hitch marked the opening of school, so well had the arrangements been made by the school authorities. Every principal, every teacher knew what was expected, and the youngsters filed in and reported much as though they had been back a month or more.

Teaching Staff Complete

One or two of the teachers might have been absent through sickness or some other unavoidable cause, but even this is doubtful as at 9:30 there were no calls in the superintendent's office for relief teachers.

Big Attendance Seen At Schools

HIGH SCHOOL ALSO TAXED FOR ROOM

Long before school opened this morning in the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School there was a line of boys and girls extending out from the main entrance of the building onto Cunningham avenue and from there down to the corner of East Lutton street. It was rather a refutation of the old idea that boys and girls do not like to go to school.

Just what the enrollment in Franklin is, or what it is in any school will take several days to decide. The vital thing today is to get the youngsters assigned to class rooms and this is being done efficiently and with little waste of effort.

High School Full

Senior High School lobby resembled the recess hour of a political convention this morning. Hundreds of animated youngsters milling about and above the crowd a buzz of conversation that sounded much like a hive of bees, if a change may be permitted in the metaphor.

Senior High School is full as was anticipated and the need for the extension appeared this morning. Every inch of space is being utilized until such time as the new

Weather conditions early Monday interfered with attendance at the Labor Day celebration held at Cascade park under the auspices of the Building Trades Council, but failed to dampen the enthusiasm of those in attendance of prevent the carrying out of the main features of the day's program.

The outstanding feature of the celebration was the address given during the afternoon at the band stand by Hon. George T. Weingartner, state senator from the Lawrence-Beaver district.

Taking as his topic, the employe and employer of today and the conditions surrounding their mutual interest in the work of today Senator Weingartner told of the upward trend of labor today and the mutual understanding that is being reached between the man who works and the man who employes others, in a majority of the various types of employment.

Among other things he said that he did not believe in "merely a living wage" which means only exist-

WALLACE FEE IS ALLOWED

Court In Opinion Holds That It Is Not Excessive—Other Decisions

In an opinion handed down this morning on exceptions to the account of Peter G. Cameron, secretary of banking, Judge Hildebrand overrules and dismisses all of the exceptions, except those dealing with tips paid by W. Lewis McKee, a special deputy.

The principal exception taken by stockholders was to the fee of Attorney Robert L. Wallace, as counsel for the banking secretary. This fee was for $10,000. In his opinion Judge Hildebrand finds that it covered over a years service, and that it included service not yet to be rendered.

It is pointed out that Wallace took part in a number of trials against Victor Doyno, president of the bank, sold large parcels of real estate, and performed many other duties incident to the closing of the bank. In view of the work done Judge Hildebrand holds the amount charged is not excessive. The report of Cameron showed an inventory and appraisement of $519,000.

In regard to the tips paid out by McKee, which were principally to taxi drivers, the court holds that the tip practice is one that should be condemned, but that it is a matter for the legislature to take up and not the courts.

COUNCIL MAY CANCEL AWARDS

Smith & McQuiston Criticised For Not Performing Work Promptly

Council is vexed over the delay in starting work on several projects given to Smith & McQuiston and Councilman Genkinger today intimated that in the future he will refuse to vote for the award of contracts to the firm, Councilman Tyler going farther by declaring that "if work doesn't soon start, contracts may be cancelled."

This was the outcome of Solicitor White's conference with officials of the firm relative to contracts not started.

The officials told White that Bonzo street grading has been finished. Councilmen today took issue with the statement.

Nearly Seven Inches Of Rainfall Here During Past Month

The month of August just passed brought to New Castle weather which varied from that peculiar to the hottest summer to that which might be expected in tropical rainy seasons. On three different days the temperature reached 93 degrees while on the last day of the month, August 31, it dropped to 44 degrees.

These figures are contained in the monthly report of the Meteorological station at the Water Works which checks local climatical conditions daily for the United States Department of Agriculture. H. E. hotchkiss, the chemist at the Water Works, is in charge of the station.

It is also stated that rain fell on 19 days of the month for a total of 6.98 inches. Of this the greatest was on August 15 when the rainfall was 1:54 inches for the twenty-four hour period. Fourteen days during the month were clear, seven were partly cloudy and ten were cloudy. The prevailing wind direction was southeast.

The amount of rainfall during the month was almost twice the normal amount and exceeded the rainfall for the same period in seven years, reference to the back data of the station since its inception in 1919 reveals. Last summer the rainfall in August was only 1.05 inches.

Pottery Head Writes Of Labor Conditions Found In Germany

In a letter written from Germany to President Fred L. Rentz of the New Castle News, James M. Smith, president of the Shenango Pottery company of this city, now touring abroad, writes from Nurnberg, Germany, of conditions found in that country. He cites wages and living conditions and emphasizes the wonderful conditions that prevail for American workingmen in comparison with the workingmen of that country. The letter follows:

Well, my boy, one certainly must go away from America to appreciate the wonderful blessings that we enjoy. I do not understand how the poor are able to keep body and soul together. Common labor gets $1.75 to $2 per day. Caprenters and bricklayers 30 cents to 50 cents per hour. Eight hours per day but only part time.

Girls work in stores as clerks for $25 per month. Women cleaning offices get $5 per week. Street car conductors for the first year, $37.50 per month; second year, $45 per month; third year, $55 per month. Everyone pays 10 per cent income tax, regardless of how little they earn.

A young man 22 years of age, now on the fifth year with the same firm as an automobile salesman, has a salary of $40 per month, but after paying income tax and sick benefit insurance it nets him $32.50 per month.

We have always had the idea that while wages were low in this country the cost of living was comparatively low, but such is not the case. We quote the following prices: granulated sugar, 10 cents per pound; veal steak, 45 cents; round steak, 45 cents; bacon, sliced, 65 cents; ham, sliced, 87

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Upwards of two million voters are marching to the polls today in widely scattered sections of the country to settle primary contests involving five seats in the United States Senate and a multitude of lesser offices.

In many respects it is the biggest day of the pre-election political season. From New Hampshire, in New England, to Wisconsin in the mid-west, and out to Nevada and Arizona, in the far southwest, the balloting is in progress today.

Sharp Contests.

In three of these states—Wisconsin, New Hampshire and Nevada—the contests are sharp and the results may have far-reaching effect on the make-up of the 70th congress. In the other, Arizona, the principal fireworks will be reserved until November.

Political leaders in both parties are chiefly interested in the outcome in Wisconsin, where the La Follette organization is hard after the scalp of Senator Irvine L. Lenroot. The campaign has been a bitter one, even in a state noted for the warmth of its political contests, and the issue between the LaFollette and anti-LaFollette organizations is likely to be close. Senator Lenroot is opposed by Gov. John J. Blaine, a political lieutenant of the late "Fighting Bob".

In Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—Prohibition and the world court were the outstanding issues before voters as they marched to the polls in Wisconsin's primary election today.

The contest that holds the center of interest is between Senator Irvine L. Lenroot and Gov. John J. Blaine for the Republican senatorial nomination.

TWO FIRE ALARMS OVER HOLIDAYS

Firemen were called to two places last night, within a space of a few minutes. The fires were of a slight character. The first alarm was at 10:45 p. m. from box 43 and called the firemen to the Alemite garage in the rear of 344 East Washington street. Some gasoline spilled on the ground had ignited. There was no loss.

The second alarm came in from box 54 at 11 p. m. It called the firemen to the home of Sam Lanbaso, 915 South Mercer street, where a curtain blew over a gas light and ignited. The loss was $10.

It doesn't seem long since I started to school, just a few short years it would seem, yet the calendar's marked many, many years, and they've hurried by like a dream. And this morning I stood at the school room door, and envied each lad and lass, just wishing that I too was entering there, and hunting my proper class. And I moved the clock for a little while, back twenty years or so, and began to look for the pals I had, the fellows I used to know. Bill and Eddie and all the rest who pestered the teachers we had, now both of those fellows have kids in school, a lass or two and a lad. But retrospection wont bring back years, though it be in the school house door, and work reached out with its iron hand, the weather is seventy four.

Three Probes In Colorado Wreck Are Under Way

Believe Excessive Speed Of Train Caused It To Jump Track And Topple Into River

(International News Service)

DENVER, Sept. 7.—Railroad authorities, county officials and representatives of the state public utilities commission today were probing the disastrous wreck on the Denver, Rio Grande & Western railroad on Sunday which resulted in the death of more than 25, 50 injured and six reported missing.

A careful check-up Monday lasting far into the night disclosed that at least 27 persons met their death when the speeding Scenic Limited left the rails and plunged into the Arkansas river, while six are reported missing and 50 more or less seriously injured.

A coroner's inquest has been postponed until two bodies known to be in the wreckage on the river bed are recovered.

Rescue workers toiled all night Monday through the mass of jumbled steel in search of bodies and the entire afternoon was spent in reaching five bodies which could be plainly seen but could not be reached.

A Pullman and a day coach resting on top of another coach, have so far resisted the efforts of workers to dislodge them and when this has been accomplished it is believed three or four more additional bodies will be located.

President J. S. Pyeatt of the Rio Grande & Western spent the entire day Monday at the scene of the wreck in an attempt to place responsibility for the accident. Early today he issued a statement in which he stated that the conclusion had been reached that the accident was caused by excessive speed, the train traveling around 40 miles an hour which was in excess of the time card rule.

Town Talk

Numerous communities in this district were partially flooded during the unusually heavy downpour of rain on Saturday night. In Mercer county a cloudburst was reported. The Little Neshannock overflowed. In New Castle there was a heavy rain, and the creek rose several feet on Saturday evening. It has receded today to almost normal stage, however.

Another sign that fall is nearing is witnessed in a tour of the country districts surrounding New Castle. New "No Trespassing" signs are making their appearance on many of the farms, in view of the approach of the hunting season.

Unprecedented rainy weather of August has occasioned considerable loss for farmers in this district. In some instances the oats are still in shocks in the field, no chance having been given the farmers to get them hauled in, when they were dry.

New Castle and Lawrence County district experienced probably the "freest from accident" holiday period of many years, over the Labor Day period. While some accidents were reported, there were no fatalities despite the heavy traffic on all highways and streets of the city.

Dr. S. H. Moore, of Florida, former pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, who was scheduled to occupy the pulpit at the Central church on Sunday morning, was an hour late arriving. He was delayed by a slight wreck on the P. & L. E. Railroad between this city and Pittsburgh. In the interim, while the congregation waited, Dr. Charles Jordan, who chanced to be in the audience, filled the pulpit.

Occupants of the big office buildings downtown were all celebrating the Labor Day holiday last night. Nary a light gleamed in any of the offices in some of the largest buildings, a sight that is seldom reported here. Usually a part of the offices are lighted up by night-working occupants.

Owners of flags used in the curb decorative system here are growing careless. In several instances the curb flags were allowed to stand on the street throughout the entire night.

HUSBAND SHOT; WIFE IS HELD

Coroner Probes Unusual Case Of Accident And Shooting Near Wellsburg

(International News Service)

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Albert Graham, 33 of Canton, O., was being held in Brooke county jail here today wrile a jury empannelled by Coroner J. B. Walkinshaw investigated circumstances surrounding the death of her husband, who was found dead, a bullet wound in his right temple, beneath his overturned automobile near Buffalo creek, eight miles from Wellsburg.

Screams of Mrs. Graham, who occupied the front seat of the car with her husband, attracted passersby, who called the coroner. According to Coroner Walkinshaw, the woman told him that she had followed her husband from Canton, after he threatened to desert her and her eight-months old boy.

While seated by his side in their automobile, she said, she picked up a revolver from the car seat, and threatened to commit suicide unless Graham returned to Canton with her. As she was about to fire, she said the car was suddenly jolted, and she pulled the trigger, the shot striking her husband in the right temple.

The car plunged over a small embankment and overturned. She was uninjured.

Victor Graham, a brother of the dead man, and Leonard Mittner, both of Canton, who are alleged to have made a trip to Wellsburg with Graham, were held by police on technical charges, for questioning in connection with the shooting.

Mrs. Graham's eight-months old son is being cared for by Mrs. R. A. Bodner, wife of the jailer.

out having them first approved by the State Board of Education.

The resolution awarding the contracts was passed at a board meeting on December 7, 1925. The Haug contract was dated December 10, 1925, and the Barnes & Clark contract December 28, 1925. Judge Hildebrand holds that the testimony showed that the plans and specifications had been submitted December 16, 1925, and were received back as approved on December 23, 1925.

The minutes of the board showed that the Haug contract was not signed by President James K. Love until January 12, 1926, after the bond had been approved, and that the Barnes & Clark contract had not been signed until February 8, 1926, after the bond had been approved.

"Under these facts," the court concludes, "we could not find that there was any refusal or neglect of duty on the part of respondents to perform any duty imposed upon them by the school code.

Bond Parade

As the dismissal of school for the bond parade on May 17, 1926, in which it was alleged that no resolution of the board authorizing such dismissal had been passed, the court holds that according to the testimony the schools had not in fact been closed, as a teacher had been left at each building to take charge of the pupils who did not wish to march, and the other pupils were in the custody of their teachers. Members of the board, including Withers, knew of the proposed parade and made no protest.

"If the board had officially planned and directed the parade", says the court, "we would have no hesitancy in condemning it. Under conditions of that kind the parade of pupils would not be a voluntary act. The action of those responsible for the parade is open to criticism as an unwarranted exercise of authority in an effort to influence the electorate, but not grounds for removel."

No Refusal or Neglect

As to the resolutions awarding the drawing of plans for a junior high school and additions to the Arthur McGill school to A. L. Thayer, and for plans for additions to the Senior High school to W. G. Eckles, on the grounds that it was contrary to law, since funds had not been provided, it is held that a resolution was passed on January 22, 1926, to pay commissions out of proceeds of the sale of bonds. The resolutions simply show how each member voted. The court is not able to find where any member refused or neglected to perform duties imposed by the school code.

In the absence of any refusal or neglect of duty, it is held that the court is without authority to exercise the discretion which it is given when there is such refusal or neglect of duty. The rule to show cause why the respondents should not be ousted is therefore dismissed.

Few changes were seen in the roster of teachers this year. Here and there a new face could be seen but in the main the same teachers who were there last term were on the job this morning. One new supervisor is seen, Miss Ruth Totman, who replaces Miss Julia Gilbert as supervisor of physical education. Miss Nannie Mitcheltree takes the place of Dwight Connor as principal of the Mahoning and Lawrence schools. The other changes were in the personnel of teachers.

For Dr. S. C. Green, superintendent, it was his first day as superintendent opening a school term. He came to New Castle May 1 and contented himself largely with familiarizing himself with the school system during the closing days of last term.

This year he opens as superintendent and he expressed himself today as wanting to make this term the best New Castle has ever had, and the best he has ever had in his many years as a school man.

1-2 cents; flour, first quality 7 1-2 cents; flour, second quality, 6 1-2 cents; coal, 62 1-2 cents per hundred pounds.

The average child quits school at 14 years and goes to work. I have never seen as much or as large a percentage of the land under cultivation. The government tells the farmer how much wheat and oats to plant, and if he does not do it the land is given to someone else to cultivate. The oats are now being harvested. Most of it is being cut by hand with old-style scythes. An old man cuts the grain and is usually followed by three old women who rake it together and bind it up in sheaves and shock it. Occasionally one sees an old-style reaper—there are no binders—being drawn mostly by oxen and cows and sometimes by horses, and then the raking and binding are finished by old women. The young men have either been killed in the war or have gone to the cities.

The Germans must have started on reforestation years ago. Millions of acres of spruce and white pine, some of the oldest forests now being cut. The trees were all set out in straight rows, just like an orchard, except they are only about five feet apart.

None of the ordinary people think that the Kaiser will ever return to Germany. They are angry at him for running away. I think he should have stayed in Germany and taken whatever medicine might have been coming to him.

You remember several months ago Germany voted on the proposition as to whether or not the government should confiscate all of the Kaisers' property. No decision because less than 50 per cent of the total possible vote was cast. The majority of the voters did not vote. The failure to vote was really then a vote against confiscation of property, not because of love for the Kaiser, but against the general principal of confiscation of property and suds. Well, believe me, everyone drinks it on all occasions.

I think it is the only thing that keeps them satisfied with their lot in life.

I tried to buy you a necktie in Berlin and also in this city, but could not find one quite loud enough for you. Will try again in Paris, where I hope to be in about a week.

Kindly regards to yourself and wife.

fected and it is expected that actual work will be under way in approximately a month.

Previously announced plans for a combination theatre and business block have been changed and Rowland & Clark, acting for the Stanley Corporation will now erect a model theatre without any other features.

The theatre will cost more than $200,000 and will have the largest seating capacity of any theatre in the city, the seating capacity to be in excess of 2,000, it is announced.

While it will be run at the start in keeping with the Rowland and Clark policy of combined vaudeville and picture show, the theatre is to be constructed with the ultimate object of making it available for use of legitimate stage productions.

Building Was Interesting One

The work of clearing the debris from the theatre site is to be rushed and the entire site will be cleared down to the foundation. With its clearing, the last remains of one of the city's most interesting buildings will pass away.

The site will in a large part be available for use in the construction of the new thearte. The property was purchased originally by James Mooney in June 1905 from the Vogel heirs. The foundation was put in with the idea of building a fine hotel structure.

Mr. Mooney changed his plans and constructed in its place the Coliseum building, which was the scene for several years of the famous roller skating game of polo.

Polo lost out in popularity and in 1908 it was changed into a theatrical amusement place by Mr. Mooney and others. In 1911, the late Thomas V. Plant purchased the property and it was conducted from that time as a theatre until March 7th, this year, when it burned to the ground.

The theatre when completed on the Coliseum and adjoining property will be the largest theatrical amusement enterprise in the city, having a frontage of 91 feet six inches on South Mill street and will run back to Apple Way.

ence for the man who works and those dependent on him, but that he believed in a fair wage, which means more than mere existence and permits the workingman to have some of the better things of life, own an automobile if he wants one and give his children a worthwhile education.

More Fairness Seen.

The workmen of today, he said, were inclined to be more fair with their employers and the same was true of the employer toward his employes. He said that both should be able to get into conference over their difficulties in a spirit of cooperation and without antagonism and reach agreements that are fair to both.

Labor organizations of this country, he stated, are highly American and their members are patriotic. Leaders of the organizations here have not been led astray by Bolshevism and have remained solidly behind the principles and ideals for which this country is known, which has resulted in the improvement of the conditions of the workmen of this country and of the country in general.

T. J. McMichael, general chairman of the Labor Day celebration, was chairman of the meeting at which Senator Weingartner spoke. He announced that James Noonan, president of the International Association of Electrical Workers was unable to be present, according to a telegram received on account of being delayed by flood conditions prevailing in the district through which he must come in order to get here.

Although the threatening weather of the early morning kept down the attendance, when the sun began to get in its work about the middle of the afternoon hundreds of automobiles filled with people began to pour into the park and by evening there were many thousands of people at the park.

Sports Program.

During the afternoon the sport program was carried out near the entrance gate at the end of the street car line. Hundreds of people gathered to witness the events which were handled by members of the Labor Day committee. Cash prizes ranging from 50 cents to $2 were awarded in the various events and to those placing first and second.

The events included a peanut race for girls under 18 years of age, watermelon eating contest for boys under 15 years, 50 yard dash for ladies, sack race for boys under 15 years, ball throwing contest for ladies, 50 yard dash for girls between 12 and 15 years and 100 yard dash for boys between 12 and 15 years.

High water conditions made it impossible to hold water events, according to the announcement of the committee and these events were not held.

The nice appearing and well arranged souvenir program published by the committee in charge of the event was distributed to thousands of people and was accorded general approval. Special Labor Day badges were also disposed of by the committee to the extent of many hundreds.

There was an unusually large number of visitors in attendance, especially from Ohio points and all amusements and novelty stands enjoyed good business especially during the late afternoon and evening. Dancing was one of the favorite pastimes of many of the people and the pavilion was crowded much of the time during the afternoon and evening.

The concluding feature of the day was the fireworks display in the late evening, it was enjoyed by the thousands of people.

rooms are added to relieve the congestion.

McGill School Crowded

Arthur McGill School is in a bad way. One room has seventy students in it, another 55 and another 45. These three rooms are accommodating a crowd that should be divided into at least 5 rooms. Until the extension to this school is done, the teachers are due for a hard time.

While other schools are full, the McGill School presents the worst problem. Additions to every school will be seen every day for the next two weeks, so that a true enrollment will not be possible until nearly October 1.

Hagfish Third Heart Located In Its Tail

The fish known as the hagfish abounds in Monterey bay, Cal., and is so voracious that not fishing in those waters has been rendered practically impossible.

Hagfishes alone among fishes are truly parasitic. They fasten themselves at the throats of large fishes, work their way into the muscles without tearing the skin, and finally inside, devour all the muscles of the fish, leaving the skin unbroken and the viscera untouched. These fishes become living hulks before they die.

Although the hagfish is blind, it has rudimentary eye spots. These are not, however, sensitive to light. The skin of the adult is continuous over these eye spots, though the areas are characterized by the absence of skin pigment. The rudimentary and sightless eyes themselves are embedded in pits in the cartilage of the skeleton of the head.

The hagfish has three hearts. It has in addition to the regular heart, a special heart for the portal system of veins. This heart has its own incoming and outgoing blood vessels and all are well equipped with valves to insure that the blood takes a one-way course.

It is estimated that 27 per cent. of the people who covet Ford's income blow in more than Henry does.

New Castle Health Conditions Are Good

Health conditions in this city are ideal.

During August only four cases of contagious disease were reported to Health Physician W. L. Steen.

During the past six days three whooping cough cases have been reported, he stated today.

Generally speaking New Castle is teeming with good health, barring abdominal influenza, which is subsiding.

There are no "idle rich". All are kept busy dodging people who want some of it.

You will recognize the advent of Autumn by the showing of advance spring styles.

People are more sincere in a small town. Bluffing won't work; everybody knows how much you make.

SCHOOLS RE-OPEN

NEW CASTLE and Lawrence county schools have reopened for the year, the first sessions being held in the city and township schools this morning.

The year just starting will be one of the most successful experienced by teachers and pupils, both in the city and county, it is believed. Conditions auger well for that record.

In New Castle there is an able teaching force, and splendid facilities for good work. A majority of the school board are for progress and expansion of these facilities where required, so that there is indicated a steady progress during the year as need is shown. Likewise, in the townships, there is every indication of progressive school boards and excellent teaching forces. In two of the townships, Shenango and Hickory, fine new schools are being erected, that in Shenango township being a 21 room centralized school, while that in Hickory township is a new high school at East Brook.

With such facilities as are now provided, and to be provided in the future, the pupils of both the city and township schools will have schooling facilities that offer them many advantages for greater progress than ever before.

In Ellwood City, the same record is being made, as in New Castle and the townships. A fine new high school building is being put into service this fall, giving added room and equipment for the most efficient work that is being accomplished in the schools there.

All in all, New Castle, Ellwood City and Lawrence county, are today embarking upon what should be a most successful year in school history.

CHALLENGES FOLLOW CHANNEL SWIMS

WHEN Gertrude Ederle conquered the English Channel and beat every record made by the men there was a general belief among enthusiasts that her mark would stand for this year at least. Mrs. Corson, who followed "Trudie" in a successful effort to reach England from France, made much slower time. Then from an unexpected quarter appeared a champion who swam the waters in 12 hours 43 minutes as against Miss Ederle's 14 hours 31 minutes. Immediately the American girl cabled congratulations to Otto Vierkoetter with a challenge to meet her in a dual contest next summer.

Since then challenges have been flying thick and fast, according to a metropolitan daily. Mrs. Corson invites Miss Ederle and the German to a cross-channel trial of speed for a purse of $50,000. Henry P. Sullivan, of Lowell, Massachusetts, whose powerful strokes carried him over in 1923, and who was the first American to succeed, wants a race on the ocean off the Atlantic coast. He opens it to everybody from everywhere, both men and women, and has posted $1000 as a guarantee of his good faith.

Miss Belle Barrett, who barely missed connection with the British shore, and is now back home, nurtures a desire for a long-distance swim with Gertrude. A challenge for an around-Manhattan swim attributed to Mrs. Corson has been rejected.

Through Arch Selwyn, theatrical producer, she has also been bombarding the Ederle fortress with a proposition for a championship test from San Perdo, California, to Catalina Island. But, says Dudley Field Malone, Trudie's manager, "Miss Ederle intends to be a swimming champion, not a talking champion, and it will be time enough to talk about a match to settle the championship when some woman breaks her record."

There was a day when flying across the English Channel was deemed to be an exceedingly dangerous experiment, but now there are air lanes with established airplane services. That twenty-mile strip of turbulence has held many terrors for swimmers, but they likewise seem to be disappearing. Indeed, negotiating it bids fair to become a regular sporting event, while swimming contests of all sorts appear to be on the way to popular recognition as permanent fixtures.

THE FRANKING ABUSE

DESPITE the herculean efforts of President Coolidge and his administration at governmental economy and reduction of the administrative personnel of the national government to the minimum permitted by needs of good government, the post office department has annually increased its payroll through the addition of more jobholders. In fact, the civil service commission has discovered that the post office department is taking on employes faster than the other departments can get rid of them.

This does not necessarily mean that there has been an unwarranted increase in the number of postal employes. It will be remembered that the nation's postal system has expanded along several lines under President Coolidge. The mileage covered by rural and city delivery routes has been greatly increased. This administration has given to the country its first air-mail service deserving of the name. And then there is the augmented personnel necessitated by the rapidly growing volume of mail handled through local post offices everywhere.

No doubt certain members of congress will take upon themselves the blame for some of the additional items on the postal payroll. These representatives of the people, if they so willed, could supply some interesting data on the number of postal employes and the cost to the taxpayers of delivering to the constitutency the tons of political propaganda mailed by congressmen under their franking privilege. If members of the two branches of congress proved their friendship to the administration by using their franks in the service of the government and their constituents only, it is feared some administrations would be without friends in congressional halls.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight, 6:23. Sun rises tomorrow, 5:35.

A woman member of congress may make her husband her secretary when the next congress meets. Some men will stand for any humiliation.

A German butcher's daughter has swum the English channel as has also a German baker. Now if a candlestick maker always makes the riffle it will be time to jump out of the rotten potato.

Loose talk gets many a man into a tight place.

While in Gettysburg recently we had occasion to eat and in the dining room of the eating factory we entered we saw the dishes on the table were made in our own Shenango Pottery and not only that but the design on the dishes were the same that our whole family hove on their dishes in this city. It was two pleasant pleasures. The eats were also exceptionally fine.

There is a lot of courtesy due to a stranger when he is in a strange place. And he gets very little of it as travelers will find.

Another good reducing exercise consists in opening the mouth and saying: "No thank you".

There have been business places that have never paid until they busted up and an enterprising advertiser started to advertise in the newspapers and then it was a success. There are many such.

As we suspected, the movement to compel men to wear wedding rings was started by the jewelers. It would place tight or ten million dollars a year more in their jeans. We are against it for other reasons than that also.

There will be so many channel swimmers courting the public purse soon that the one who gets the real stuff will have to have some outstanding feature that overshadows all the others.

It never was intended that a corn roast was to be held in the basement of a church.

For some reacon or other, we hear of a great many cases of ptomaine poisoning this summer. This is the result of slapping a few cans of stuff on a table and calling it a meal or it may come from careless cooking and the preparation of the food. In our party of four last week three who ate fish in a place that charges $14 for the privilege of sleeping in one of it's beds, came near croaking. The one who did not eat the fish escaped torture. If one got shot in one of those places by a waiter there would be some redress, but just letting a waiter poison one seems to be no crime.

A girl often increases a man's happiness by just one word. Occasionally it is "yes," but more frequently it is "no."

When she was young
She got lots of kisses,
But now she gets none,
For she is Mrs.

Our old friend Dr. John Snape called on us last week. He is making good in the great Rockefeller Baptist church in Cleveland. He deserves a lot of success and we wish him well.

The old hotel register is also disappearing. In many of the big hotels there are no registers any more and the guest uses a card and and it is placed in a filing case for the information of the hotel only instead of those who study the registers in order to get a line on the guests, and some times it's the police at that.

Three men were executed in Ohio last week for killing a man to rob him of thirty dollars. This seems terrible at first thought but when it is taken into consideration that three men would murder for that amount of money, the world seems safer without them.

Prohibition has accemplished a lot of things, but still has a lot to do to stop the sale of liquor.

The King of England in order to be exclusive, and he has been in that respect, has always had his pants pressed down the sides instead of down the front. He is now having them pressed down the front. Long live the king!

WHEN VACATION DAYS ARE OVER.

When vacation days are ever at some vaunted summer spot, at the mountains, or the seashore, where they say it wasn't hot, and you step into your dwelling, be it mansion, flat or den, don't you say: "Gee, it is pleasant to back home again?" And it makes but little difference the kind of time you had, if the board was very, very good or very, very bad, when you sit down at your table, never matter what the fare, you say; "By George! the eats I had, with this could not compare." You wander 'round from room to room, touching this old thing and that; you go put on your common clothes, and wear your old straw hat; and when you wander out of doors, and meet Jim, John and Jack, you say to every one of them: "Od boy, I'm glad I'm back. If a city or a village, or a farm out in the country, 'tis your own home just the same; and when you tumble into bed, as the night's dark shadows fall, you say, as you stretch out your legs: "By Jove, this beats them all."

This poem was written about a New Castle girl who recently spent her vacation in the back country:

She thought that she was all alone,
While bathing in the creek;
And then she chanced to glance around
And saw the mountains peak.

There was a gazabo named Lester
With a wife that nothing could pester;
While cleaning his coat,
She found a mash note,
But the matter did not interest her.

Mice and men do not seem to frighten women as they formerly did.

The lazy man is the one who puts off doing today what he hopes some one else will do tomorrow.

A man is never as smart as he hopes other people thinks he is.

Another class who are now busy holding arms conferences are the young people in the parked cars.

We have read of a writer who talks about life-time imprisonment being a stronger deterrent from crime than the death penalty. When, we'd like to ask this man, did anybody ever spend a life time of any length behind the bars for any crime.

It is claimed that Queen Marie had to wait until the king was away before having her hair bobbed. We were under the impression that when a man became king his wife treated him like other men are treated but maybe there is a difference.

A double dyed enthusiast says that what this country needs is a campaign of education on temperance. We'd like to ask just how much education the modern bootlegger would need to make him quit his meanness.

Judging from what we have read about Harry Thaw's new book, some of the alienists at least were right.

When a married vamp becomes a flirty divorcee would it be correct to refer to her as a re-vamp?

From all we can understand the flapper's summer course covers a good many laps.

Few women ever try to put off today the worrying they can do tomorrow.

It may seem strange to see winter furs displayed in store windows next to bathing suits but at that some girls we have seen in bathing suits looked as though a set of furs might improve them considerably.

There are pretty strong indications that the channel is getting ready to close up for the season.

In Chicago the curfew is rung to chase all the 16 year olds and downward off the streets. It is said that the police have had many embarrassing moments enforcing the ordinance with respect to women. Some of them dressed like 16 are nearer 60 and you can't tell the difference until a good look at the faces is possible.

People who keep out of trouble of various kinds seldom have any occasion to have lapse of memory.

Hay feverites are late in getting their annual sneezing spell this year. But none of them are sorry and all are willing to put off until next year what they expected this year.

It is just possible that the reason Earl Carroll can get $100 a seat for the first night of his show is that a good many may expect him to repeat that bathtub act.

It is surprising how many footballs have come to light the past few days. All the little fellows and many of the big ones are out with the pigskins and having a good time getting in trim for this year's campaign.

Boilermakers and soup tasters are the only ones that are doing more and better work by making more noise.

In the summer season the wonder is how men can stand it to have the women dress as they do and in the winter time the wonder is how can the women stand it.

Happy married people usually laugh at the same joke even if it's the husband.

Good; Bad, Dull, Queer. . Everything Is In The News. A Wise Child. A Dead Hand.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright, 1926, by N. Y. American, Inc.

How would you divide news? "Good and bad," "trifling and serious," "commonplace and queer," or how?

At Geneva the world court is planning to swallow Uncle Sam, including his reservations. Prince Arfa Ed-Dowleh, of Persia, told the world court conferences: "If a thing is worth while, don't fear to do it." Uncle Sam will be taken in if he is fool enough to go.

That is dull news.

The King of England has changed his mind and has his trousers pressed with the creases running up and down the front. For years, like his father, King Edward, he wore trousers creased at the side. He has a fierce dragon with red eyes tattooed on his arm, a reminder of the days when he was a sailor with an older brother, and didn't expect to be king. Tattooing is now fashionable in London.

That's important news.

Mussolini means to bring Italian currency back to life and, if possible, to par. He "deflates" the currency, a painful financial process that involves redeeming and retiring hundreds of millions of paper lire a year.

It will mean business depression, 500,000 or 1,000,000 men out of work. That is interesting news and proves again that nobody really understands finance.

A man working, producing wealth, is like a hen laying eggs. If a hen expert had a plan to keep a million hens from laying, you wouldn't think much of him.

But Mussolini's plan may be the right plan. At least he isn't afraid to try it. And courage is the thing after a disaster.

Germany tells the Allies she will pay off 300,000,000 extra gold marks next year, thus saving 200,000,000 gold marks on later payments. That is serious news. It indicates that German prosperity is real. It isn't always the winner of a war that comes out ahead.

With the aid of science any child may know its own father. A high court in Vienna decides that blood resemblance between father and child shown under the microscope is absolute proof and compels the man to support the mother of the child. That is queer news.

Napoleon made it illegal for a woman to try to prove an illegitimate child's paternity. He needed soldiers and wanted to encourage childbirth by making it easy for the fathers.

Very respectable newspapers are agitated because LaFollette, with the consent and approval of voters, fills the Senate seat and carries on the work of his father. They talk about "Mortman" in Washington, wag their heavy heads and worry about "the dead hand of the elder La Follette" ruling through his son.

They don't say anything about "Mortman" when Theodore Roosevelt II runs for governor of New York and is beaten by Al Smith from the sidewalks of New York.

They do not wag their heavy heads in grief because the heir to millions exercises the power of inherited money, which includes more than one vote in the Senate.

La Follete isn't ruling by any dead hand. When he was alive he kicked plutocratic dishonesty. Plutocracy felt the kicks and whines through its paid official whiners.

A young man arrested for robbing the house of Cardinal Dougherty of cash and bonds told the police, "I didn't dare take the cardinal's diamond-studded gold cross, worth $25,000. I was afraid it might jinx me. Something told me they used it in church. I wasn't looking for any trouble like that."

The modernist will call that "superstition", others will see in it proof that religion has power even in the case of a young criminal who tells the police, "I have no religion."

Bible Thought For Today

In Day's News

In a corner of a scientific laboratory in London stands an instrument which wireless enthusiasts ought to seize and erect in some spot at which they could congregate annually for celebrations. It is the first wireless valve, and it was invented 32 years ago by Professor John A. Fleming, who has just retired from his post at the University of London. It was the invention of this valve that really made broadcasting possible. For more than 40 years Professor Fleming has been engaged in experimental physics researches, concerning himself particularly with the technical applications of electricity. Many new theories owe their birth to his mind and genius. Among other things he perfected the system of electric lighting in ships. He has written many important scientific papers and he has delivered many courses of lectures before the Royal Institution in England.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

THE FAITHFUL DOG

Three famous newspaper editors were once asked what news story would interest the most readers.

Two of the three gave the same answer:

"The story of a dog saving the life of a child."

There is more than chance in the presence of the two elements of the story. For next to children, men feel their closeness to dogs.

A cat is the friend of a locality; the dog is essentially the friend of man.

In California a man and his dog were washed off a rock by a ground swell when fishing. The dog made the shore safely. The man, a feeble swimmer, was being carried out to sea when the dog plunged in again and struggled to bring him to shore. Exhausted, he went down, refusing to abandon his master.

Napoleon in his memoirs records an incident, comparatively insignificant, but revealing the fidelity of a dog, which occurred one night on a battlefield.

"Amidst the deep silence of a beautiful moonlit night," he wrote "a dog leaping suddenly from beneath the clothes of his dead master rushed upon us and returned to his hiding place howling piteously. He alternately licked his master's hand and ran toward us.

"I involuntarily stopped to contemplate the scene. 'This man,' thought I, 'has his friends in camp, but he is forsaken by all except his dog.' "

"Endurance, Fidelity", are two of the words inscribed on the monument raised recently in New York City to "Balto", the malmute dog who led the heroic dash to Nome last winter.

The preposition "of" might well be inserted between the two words to describe the nobility of the natures of dogs the world over.

From Wortley, England, comes a twenty-word story relating the tale of a humble and heroic vigil of unending fidelity.

"After living six years among the graves in the cemetery where his master is buried, a black Pomeranian has died," says the cable.

Six years of silent, inviolate, unchanging vigil by a "dumb beast" which loved its master!

It is not to be wondered at that a court in a western state, with all due formality, handed down a legal decision that the dog is man's most faithful friend.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

BRITISH UNIONS AND POLES

British subjects have had brought home to them two unpleasant situations during the General Strike. During this strike, officials of the Labor Party made a personal attack upon Prime Minister Baldwin, because he holds more than 200,000 shares of a British Steel & Coal Company. This put Baldwin on his mettle, and he took the trouble to thoroughly investigate the Trade Unions finances.

Nearly every British Trade Union, with the exception of the Miners' Union, is a registered Union, and as such is compelled to make a financial report to the Government, showing the amount of money received and expended, and how expended. The Miners' Union is a secret organization, and its records have never been made public. Most of the other Unions keep books, which are more or less well kept. Some of them, it was found, had no auditors and their records were not reliable. Taking the returns of the principal Unions, Baldwin has made public some startling figures.

The Railwaymen's Union in 1925 received a revenue of $23,000,000 and expended $1,550,000 for salaries, expenses, and politics, distributing but $750,000 in benefits!

The Transport Workers received $2,400,000, and $950,000 was spent for salaries alone!

The General Workers received $1,750,000 from their members, and spent $1,520,000 in salaries and expenses!

The Electrical Workers received $260,000, and spent $220,000 in salaries and expenses!

In 1923 there were 4,368,000 members of Trades Unions in Great Britain. They received approximately $40,000,000 in dues and paid out approximately $19,000,000 in salaries and expenses. The Trade Union Counsel that year held nineteen meetings. It has only thirty members, but these nineteen meetings cost $10,250.00. Out of every dollar of dues, one spendthrift Union spent 84 cents on salaries and expenses.

Mr. Baldwin found in one case that was brought into Court recently the Union had spent $190,000 in distributing $17,000 in benefits. There are about, all told, ten thousand Union officials in Great Britain. These officials have consolidated themselves into a regular Bureaucracy, and it would seem for the main purpose of promoting their own personal and political interests. The Coal Miners' Union, for instance, has fifty of its officials in Parliament.

The other fact to which the people of Great Britain have closed their eyes heretofore, is that their Nation is expending 458,000,000 pounds each year upon "Doles",—a sum equal to nearly two and a half billion dollars. These "Doles" take the form of payments to the Unemployed,—National Health Insurance, Old Age Pensions, Disability Pensions, and War Pensions. Of this amount, the Unemployed receive the major portion. The British Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, investigating, have reported that the wives and children of striking miners were better fed now than when their husbands and fathers were mining coal. Formerly, a voter receiving such assistance from the Government, was registered as a pauper, and as such had no vote, but now the franchise has been extended to the extent of permitting an idler receiving Government assistance, to vote. In industrial centers these votes can compel the working citizens to support the rest in idleness. There is actually a village in Durham, a district still richly endowed with coal, wherein, a Board of Guardians of the Poor granting lavish allowances,—22 out of 24 are actually striking miners.

Great Britain is now staring at this situation in the face,—where Trades Union dues goes to enrich Trades Unions officials, and taxes derived from incomes and property of the workers are being paid out for the support of idlers.

My Favorite Joke.

Too many people are like the nigh ox that an old farmer told about according to Charles W. Summerfield assistant to the general secretary of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Summerfield just returned from a motor trip through New England. While stopping in a small town he fell into conversation with a farmer and desiring to be pleasant remarked.

"Fine team of oxen you have there my man."

This was obviously a breach of the truth for one was a decrepit animal and they pulled together very poorly.

"Yes" drawled the overall-clad native. "They are a perfect matched pair. That off ox is willing to do all the work and the nigh one is willing to have him do it."

POEMS I LOVE

"Auf Wiedersehen" by James Russell Lowell.

No one has better shown the necessity of filching this beautiful phrase from the German, than Lowell. It has become a part of our language, througs constant use; and surely "until we meet again," —or literally, "until we see each other again"—is softer and lovelier than our own definite and iron "farewell" or "good-by."

The little gate was reached at last,
Half hid in lilacs down the lane;
She pushed it wide, and, as she past,
A wistful look she backward cast,
And said,—"Auf wiedersehen!"

With hand on latch, a vision white
Lingered reluctant, and again
Half doubting if she did aright,
Soft as the dews that fell that night,
She said,—"Auf weidersehen!"

The lamp's clear gleam flits up the stair;
I linger in delicious pain;
Ah, in that chamber, whose rich air
To breathe in thought I scarcely dare,
Thinks she,—"Auf wiedersehen!"

'Tis thirteen years; once more I press
The turf that silences the lane;
I hear the rustle of her dress,
I smell the lilacs, and—ah, yes,
I hear,—"Auf wiedersehen!"

Sweet piece of bashful maiden art!
The English words had seemed too fain,
But these—they drew us heart to heart,
Yet held us tenderly apart;
She said,—"Auf wiedersehen!"

RAISE FUNDS FOR CHURCH

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 7.—Bonds to the amount of $160,000 have been sold of the $200,000 bond issue authorized by the congregation of the First Presbyterian church, is the announcement of the treasurer, C. B. Barber. The major portion of the bonds were sold to Grove City residents, Mr. Barber states. For the present the remaining portion of the bonds are being pushed on the market. The bonds are denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000. The first of the issue will mature in five years. The money derived from the sale is being used to defray the expense attendant to the building of a new church and are covered by pledges of the congregation spread over a five-year payment basis. Of the $250,000 pledged for this purpose Mr. Barber announces that the sum of $103,707 has already been paid in. The church is fast nearing completion and a tentative date of the week of October 17 has been set for dedication. It is built of Indiana limestone and is a massive structure.

Bids on the new theatre on Broad street proposed for erection by J. M. Guthrie will be opened about October 1, declares Mr. Guthrie today, who is hopeful that the bids made on the amusement house will be such that a contract may be let. The place of erection will be on the site of the two properties adjoining the Reporter-Herald building purchased several years ago with this plan in view. A 30-foot entrance from the street the length of the theatre to the stage will make it of unique construction. A similar entrance in a theatre at State College is the only other of its kind in western Pennsylvania.

A hut in the heart of the five-acre forest tract at Raymilton was the rendezvous of a group of Grove City lads who were taken in their forest retreat Sunday evening by Chief of Police Ray and brought to Grove City along with $300 worth of stolen goods and the truck belonging to George De France stolen last week. Goods stolen from the Coleman hardware store and other places were recovered as a result of this coup on the part of the local police. Charges were preferred against two of the number, Harold Milner and John Allen, Jr. The other two boys are being kept under surveillance until the police have an opportunity to question the boys further. Chief Ray is in possession of the information that will lead to the arrest of the boy who held up Arthur Moon in the Dixie lunch room at 5 a. m. Sunday and took $50 from the cash register as a result of this arrest and information gleaned. The "stickup" was the work of another member of the crowd, is the statement of Ray, who with full details states that his arrest will occur soon.

The residence of E. B. Harshaw in East End was struck by lightning Saturday afternoon during the storm and damage to the extent of $300 done. A part of the chimney was demolished and a quantity of plaster and frame of the house torn loose by the bolt. No occupant of the house was injured.

Rain was responsible for spoiling the Labor Day program planned at the Grove City Country club. Picnics and outing parties planned as a part of the holiday were also curtailed as a result.

The young people of the Presbyterian church conducted the services at the Odd Fellows home at 3 p. m. Sunday. Services are conducted at this home each Sunday by the Young Peoples society of one of the local churches.

Pennsylvania Has Moving Laboratories To Test Drinking Water For Tourists

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa. Sept. 7—The Pennsylvania state department of health today was completing an extensive survey designed for the purpose of safeguarding the health of tourists and visitors to the commonwealth.

Huge traveling laboratories, operated by the health department under the supervision of special staffs, have travelled every mile of the state's main highways during the summer testing public drinking water supplies for pollution. Where pollution was found placards were posted, warning the public of the danger in drinking the water.

All highways leading to the Sesqui-Centennial in Philadelphia, over which thousands of tourists traveled during the summer, were the first to be traveled by the water laboratories of the state. Then drinking places along all secondary roads were tested.

The same service has been given to the isolated farm when samples of the drinking water have been sent to the central office of the department. The water has been analyzed free of cost and a complete report sent to the farmers.

Officials of the health department have declared that this system has been responsible for a great reduction in tyhoid prevalence throughout the state during the summer.

Nearly 2500 Loaves Of Bread For Scouts During Summer Camp

A trifling matter of 2,439 loaves of bread upon which were spread 440 pounds of butter, constituted one item of the menu at the Lawrence County Boy Scout Camp during the season just ended, a perusal of Executive J. Lee Calahan's kitchen books today revealed.

Judging from some of the items entered in the ledger, there was no suffering from loss of appetite among the local disciples of Sir Baden Powell, although they had good reasons for contracting dyspepsia.

Any crowd of boys who would consume 8,166 eggs and some five hundred odd pounds of smoked meat during a summer's camping season certainly could be expected to have difficulties with the inner man, but miraculously their health remained excellent.

In addition to the above mentioned matter of flesh food, which consisted of bacon, ham and weiners, 703 pounds of fresh meat and chicken went the way of all good meat and chicken at the camp. Corn cakes were a delicacy which appealed to the boys, too, for they nonchalantly ate hundreds of them. On one single morning they did away with three hundred. The kitchen cooked 303 that morning, but three of them turned out bad.

There are a number of plum trees on the camp property, by the way, and they yielded four bushels of fruit. The culinary department promptly turned them into jelly and the boys in khaki just as promptly spread it on bread and ate it all.

The camp figures show that the meals served the Scouts cost 21c apiece. That makes a total cost of $4.41 per week to feed the lads. They were charged $5 a week, so it was evident that the camp ran into a lot of loss which the treasury was called upon to make up.

COUNCIL VIEWS MENACING WATER

Inadequate Sewer Causes Intolerance Condition; Genkinger Acts Quickly

Councilman Louis Genkinger today headed colleagues on an inspection trip that may result in life-saving.

The visit carried them to East Long avenue where storm water is ruining properties of J. J. Johnston and Walter Kirkwood.

Every time it rains the cellars fill up—and today there is several feet of water and mud in their cellars.

The water, it is charged, has destroyed a furnace and cellar walls.

It is probable the family will be forced to vacate their home to preserve health.

Genkinger conducted a preliminary investigation and found that an individual had built a sewer which had proved faulty.

No doubt, damages will be asked. Prompt repair to the sewer has been requested.

REPORT THREE AUTOS STOLEN

Two Of Machines Taken Have Been Recovered By Police

Three automobiles were reported stolen on the streets of this city on Saturday night and Sunday. Two have been recovered.

Hugh Henry had his car, a Ford touring car, 1923 model, Pennsylvania license C 22-398, parked on South Jefferson street when it was taken. It was found later on the Mt. Jackson road near Hickory Creek by Constable Shoup of Bessemer. It had been stripped of its two front tires and battery.

A new 1926 model Ford coupe, bearing Pennsylvania license X5261, was reported Saturday evening as having been stolen from in front of the Universal Sales Company offices on Croton avenue. It was reported found later.

C. E. Taylor, 205 West Sheridan avenue, reported Sunday that his 1925 model touring car, Pennsylvania license 567-912, had been stolen between eight and 10 p. m. from South street, where it had been parked.

STILL ALARM

Firemen from the Central fire station were called to the corner of East and Washington streets, Monday afternoon about 2:15 p. m., to fight a blaze caused by a short circuit in the car of Jesse McCommon. The loss was small.

FORMER COUNTY OFFICIAL DIES

JAMES FLYNN

James Flynn, aged 81, former county commissioner of Lawrence county, and one of the oldest and best known residents of this district, died Monday, September 6, 1926 at 12:30 a. m., at the home of his daughter Mrs. C. H. Denny of English avenue, Union township, after an illness due to his advanced age.

Born in Pittsburgh, October 23, 1845, the son of Walter and Mary O'Brien Flynn, Mr. Flynn came to this district in early life and has lived the rest of his long and useful life in this community.

Although a resident of Union township, just outside the city, Mr. Flynn was well known throughout the city and county and took an active part in public and political affairs.

He was elected to the office of county commissioner in which he served in an efficient manner for one term. He was also a supervisor and poor director of Union township for many years.

He was married April 5, 1875, to Elizabeth Winters, who survives him. He was a lifelong member of St. Mary's Catholic church.

Mr. Flynn is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Winters Flynn and the following children, Frank D. and J. Walter Flynn, Mrs. C. H. Denny and Mrs. Archie Smith, all of this city and vicinity. He also leaves two brothers, W. F. Flynn of Cleveland, O., and J. C. Flynn of this city and one sister, Mrs. Theresa Logue of Virginia Beach, Va., and ten grandchildren.

His funeral will be conducted Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at St. Mary's church. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

LABOR DAY THRONG ENJOYS CAPITOL BILL

FLORRINNE

For the many who stayed at home on Labor Day, the theatres offered many attractions, but perhaps the one theatre that attracted through the merits of an unusually good bill was the Capitol, where three acts of vaudeville, a feature picture, a comedy, a news reel, an orchestra and a pipe organ made up a bill that overtaxed the capacity of the theatre.

"Florrinne" an accordionist who flits back and forth over her keyboard like a humming bird in a honeysuckle vine, opened the bill. This talented young lady runs the gamut of musical selections, from "Tesoro Mio" to "Sittin' On Top Of The World," and pleases in every number.

Stokes and Dow, two lads who can really sing, had number two spot on the bill and their stuff went over for an average of four encores per show. The boys have just enough "hokum" to sweeten their act, and enough melody to bring them back. It's a good act, not designed to interest those of the literati perhaps, but good enough to entertain Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen.

Murray Gordon, presented "Buds and Blossoms" a group of boys and girls (they're hardly more than that) in a musical comedy revue. The act is a versatile one, with plenty of dancing, and singing to make it interesting. Action seems the keynote of the act and from curtain to curtain the youngsters are mixing up a likeable portion of melody and dance.

"The Cats' Pajamas", the feature was the right sort of a picture to fit in with a holiday bill and to this, add Snub Pollard in "The Doughboy" and a news reel of current events. The Capitol Orchestra and the Capitol Organ made up the balance of the bill.

It was a big bill, but the crowd that filled the Capitol from one-thirty until eleven was deserving of something big. The pity of it is that the theatre didn't have 1000 more seats.

"Florrinne" and "Stokes and Dow" did one more show than their contract called for. At eight o'clock they were taken to the New Castle Field club and entertained the guests at the dinner dance held there. Today the two boys are out on the golf course, trying to settle a golf argument that is renewed in every town they play.

The same bill played Monday, will continue through Wednesday and on Thursday an entire change of program will be seen.

Dan Cupid's Work Quite Noticeable

The results of Dan Cupid's journey through city hall was noticed today when council convened.

Mrs. Karl Reimold, formerly Miss Edna Hopkins, mayor's stenographer, and recently a bride, fulfilled the duties of Mrs. Thomas Jones, formerly Miss Cordelia Zeigler, city clerk.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones are on a honeymoon.

It is rumored that another young lady of city hall will soon answer "I do," the hint being contained in the employment of a stenographer to learn her duties, so that city work will be carried on in the department when she resigns.

She needed more than beauty-parlor beauty

WHAT a forlorn figure she is . . . haunting the beauty parlors . . . eternally brooding . . . wondering, worrying. Where had her beauty gone? Her glorious complexion? Surely it was not age that lined her face. Why, she was a young woman and she wanted to live. . . .

There are millions of women in the world today who need much more than beauty-parlor beauty—who, if they would correct that great affliction—constipation—would find color in their cheeks instead of pallor, renewed energy in every fiber of their beings, and a new wonderful freedom from sick headaches. What a blessing it is that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure, safe, permanent relief from this vicious disease, because it is 100% bran.

As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN journeys through the body its fiber remains unchanged. Doctors call it a bulk food. ALL-BRAN sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It stimulates the flow of digestive juices. It absorbs and carries moisture into the intestine and prompts it to natural, healthy action. You never have to increase the amount eaten.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief from constipation or your grocer refunds the purchase price. In chronic cases, eat ALL-BRAN with every meal. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit; sprinkle over other cereals or cook with hot cereals; use in soups, or in the recipes on every package.

Insist on the original Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Part-bran products are of doubtful value. Doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN because they know what it will do. At all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

Three Injured In Auto Crash

THREE CARS DITCHED ON HARLANSBURG ROAD

Three persons were slightly injured and required hospital attention following an auto accident at Stevenson bend, Youngstown-New Castle highway, Saturday night. The patients were discharged from the Shenango Valley hospital Sunday night.

The persons injured were:

Julia Arndt, Olga Arndt and William Schultz, all of Cleveland. Schultz was rendered unconscious and recovered at the hospital. The other two injured were bruised.

According to Corporal Bowman, state highway police, the auto, driven by Theodore Arndt, was descending the hill when it skidded from the road and overturned.

Arndt claims bright lights of an approaching machine affected his vision and the machine left the highway.

Corporal Bowman also reports several accidents in which three cars plunged into a ditch one mile from the city along the Harlansburg road.

The car of Malcolm Cavallero, Ellwood City, overturned and another machine following tried to stop quickly and also plunged in the ditch. A third car did likewise.

Corporal Bowman stationed himself near the cars and signalled all cars to advance without using brakes, owing to the slippery condition of the highway.

Proof that the world is growing better lies in the fact that its conscience hurts a lot more.

Famous "Wet" Section Mopped Up By Raids

Coast Guard Cutter Carrying Prohibition Co-ordinator Stages Big Raid

Three Days And Nights And Notorious "Wet" District Is Turned Into Arid Country

By FRANK H. FRAYSUR
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 7.—The Yamacraw, crack coast guard cutter of the southeastern Atlantic coast, sailed out of Charleston harbor today leaving behind 40 miles of extremely arid territory with a scattered array of broken copper stills, battered memories of a co-ordinated federal land liquor road which ended in the arrest of 38 persons and the seizure of 106,000 gallons of mash and 910 gallons of liquor.

M. O. Dunning, prohibition co-ordinator of the southeast, and collector of customs at Savannah, was going back to Savannah with other high prohibition officials after carrying through one of the most sweeping raids in the history of South Carolina and the Southeast.

From two angles the operations here rated high on the list of enforcement victories of the federal government—they caused the arrests of five alleged corrupt federal and state dry officers, and completely mopped dry the notorious section of Berkeley county which previously stood out as a moonshining and bootleg haven.

Although the raids lasted for three days and nights and exposed more than 50 special agents and coast guards to danger in the thick woods, not a single shot was fired and not a single man injured, except for one who broke his hand wresting a gun from an alleged offender.

Another Arrest In Hall-Mills Murder Likely

Find Several Discrepancies In Story Told By Stevens Four Years Ago

(International News Service)

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Sept. 7.—Another arrest in connection with the Hall-Mills murder mystery is believed imminent today, following a guarded statement by Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson.

The prosecutor made two remarks, which he refused to admit had a connection. They were:

"Henry Stevens alibi has been cracked."

"Another arrest is expected soon."

Henry Stevens, brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and Willie Stevens, and cousins of Henry Carpender, the trio now charged with the murder, has been under heavy guard at his home in Lavallette for several days, although as yet no warrant has been issued.

At the time of the double murder four years ago Stevens said he had a perfect alibi, namely that he had been fishing on the night of the killings with some friends fifty miles away from New Brunswick. Now, however, the authorities have found a number of discrepancies, they say, in the stories told by Henry's friends.

Also another witness is said to have been found who links the name of "a third man" directly with the crime.

Questioned

Henry Stevens, brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and brother-in-law of Rev. Edward Hall, was questioned by New Jersey authorities about his knowledge of the Hall-Mills murder.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 536 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Handkerchiefs First Used In China

Long before the beginning of the Christian era the handkerchief was commonly used in China in its primitive silk tissue and paper forms. From China it was introduced into Egypt, where it was thought to have talismanic virtues. Then it was copied by the Anglo-Saxons, who bore it at the belt and called it a "sweat cloth". Later these sweat cloths were carried in the hand and became known as the "muckinder", "handcoverchief," "handkercher" and finally "handkerchief". Churchmen were the first to use hankerchiefs in Europe, according to The Pathfinder, and for a time only priests were allowed to carry them.

In its early forms the handkerchief was merely a cloth or towel with which to wipe the face and hands.

It is claimed that the handkerchief has passed through fewer changes than any other accessory of dress. There is only one step from the linen kerchief, fringed with Venetian silk or edged with costly lace and tastefully embroidered to the modern article. Handkerchiefs are made of silk today the same as they were 600 years ago. Besides the United States, where millions of handkerchiefs of all kinds are manufactured annually, England, Ireland, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Malta, India, China and Japan make some of the finest handkerchiefs on the market. The price of a handkerchief depends largely upon the quality of materials used.

At one time it was customary for fashionable ladies to have a particular or special handkerchief of each of their toilets. They had one for morning, another for noon, one for night, one for walking, one for the court, one for the opera, one for the boudoir and one for use while on charity visits. This practice is followed to some extent today. However, the modern dame of fashion has a handkerchief to match or "go with" each of her fashionable gowns.

Soldiering On Job Is Old As Hills

The cynics, who know that the world is getting worse all the time, are sure that idleness and "soldiering on the job" are faults of the Twentith century. In the good old days everyone worked hard and conscientiously.

But there have always been honest workmen and the other kind just as there are today. There is a curious old French epic written by one who called himself the Grocer of Troyes in the Thirteenth century. Here is one passage quoted by M. Langyois in his "Life in France in the Middle Ages":

"When I finally make up my mind to work I take with me a young mate who knows nothing of the job, but I insist on his being paid the full wages of 12 deniers. When, at last, I get on the roof, I ease off and sing a song, then take a siesta between two slopes of the roof. It is then time to knock off for dinner. After that, it is soon supper time, so we leave work for that day. Of course, with piece work it is different: I can do as much in one day as in five days by the hour."

Such is the speech that the Grocer hard put into the mouth of a nn.youlti0 tiler 700 years ago.—Youth's Companion.

Anyway one man's his brother's keeper. Sheriff at Penn Yan, N. Y., arrested his own brother.

Many supposedly erudite gentlemen are merely persons who have nothing to say and never say it.

Father Reports Two Daughters Are Missing

Sam Habib, 508 Locust street, has asked the assistance of the police in locating his two daughters, Emily, aged 18 and Elizabeth, aged 17, who left home Saturday evening about 8 o'clock and have not been heard of since.

At the request of the father, police of Chicago and Pittsburgh, have been asked to be on the lookout for the missing girls.

According to the father, the girls have been talking recently of a desire to enter training as nurses and it is thought they may have gone to some other city in the hope of realizing their ambition.

Emily is described as being 18, years of age, having long dark hair and dark eyes and wearing a light brown coat, while Elizabeth is 17 years of age, has long dark hair, dark eyes and is also attired in a light brown coat.

South American Gold In Solomon's Temple

Ophir, land of rich gold mines that supplied metal for the decorations of King Solomon's temple, was in South America, according to Dr. Van Hauch of Vienna who has been exploring the forests of Peru The fabled country has been the subject of speculation for years, and has been variously located in Arabia, India or South Africa, says a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. In support of his theory the Vienna explorer declares that he found an Indian tribe of 300 whose features bore a Jewish cast and whose language contained many words like those of the ancient Hebrew. The name Solomon had been given to a number of men in the tribe, and legends were told him of a race of seafaring men who landed on the banks of the river Hualla and carried away quantities of gold ore. They called the region around the river Ophira. Dr. Von Hauch believes that the strangers may have been King Solomon's sailors, and that the three years' absence of his fleet mentioned in Biblical accounts is explained by the long journey to Peru. Columbus believed that he had found the source of Solomon's riches when he set foot on the West Indies. The African theory is based on the discovery of ancient mines among ruins south of the Zambesi river, and a Seventeenth century writing to the effect that one was the Abyssinian mine from which the queen of Sheba obtained most of the gold she gave King Solomon.

"Movie" Posse Hunts Bandits

Cameraman Is Left Behind In Hunt In Wilds Of Wyoming

SOME NEWS FROM LOS ANGELES, CAL.

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4. —A motion picture bandit hunt, with the cameramen left behind, was staged by Col. Tim McCoy, Metro-Goldwin-Mayer western star, and a "movie" posse of fifty Apache on a picture in Wyoming.

When two train robbers plundered a registered mail car between Rawlins and Wamsutter, Wyo., Tim McCoy and his company of Indians, many of them expert trackers, took up the trail of the fugitive robbers in the notorious Jackson Hole country of Wyoming.

McCoy was slightly wounded in the neck when a gun carried by one of his Indians was accidently discharged.

Novels, short stories and plays have been ransacked for screen material; the next course of supply will be poetry.

John S. Robertson, now directing Lillian Gish in "Annie Laurie," predicted that his production will start an avalanche of picture plays taken from poems and songs.

"Poetry is practically untouched," Robertson explained, "and nearly every famous poem of any length has an idea that will furnish the groundwork for a real story. Scott's 'Lady of the Lake' would make a beautiful picture, as would Keats' 'Eve of St. Agnes'; Poe's "Anabelle Lee;" Moore's 'Minstrel Boy;' Whittier's 'Maude Muller;' Scott's 'Young Lochinvar;' Tennyson's 'Idylls of the King', and many, many others.

Even the great heroic epic poem of Homer and Virgil would furnish picture material."

Syd Chaplin will soon start on "The Missing Link," his next picture. Chaplin, "Chuck" Reisner, his director; and Darryl Frances Zanuck, scenario writer spent a month on the Santa Cruz Islands working up comedy situations for the play.

Harry Carey, famous Western star, will wear a white collar for the first time in years before the camera in "Alex Smith," his first picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Carey will support Claire Windsor and William Haines.

Later on, Carey will probably revert to western parts as M-G-M recently announced its intention to meet the growing demand for pictures of the wide, open, unfenced spaces.

Changing his mind, Dick Barthelmess started work on "The White Black Sheep," instead of "The Four Feathers," which had at first been considered for his next picture.

May McAvoy, the tiny motion picture actress who is now freelancing, will be able to resume her work before the camera days in a very short time, her physicians declare. Miss McAvoy recently suffered a nervous breakdown.

Marion Davies, Charles Ray, John Gilbert, Mae Murray, King Vidor, Lew Cody, Fred Niblo and Louis B. Mayer have formed a committee to "get out the vote" in the motion picture colony.

The committee members aren't interested in candidates or causes; they want a complete voting representation of the screen industry.

Svend Gade, noted Danish director, does everything except turn the cameraman's crank during the filming of his pictures and Gade knows how to do that, too.

He assists in writing the adaptation and continuity of his pictures, selects the featured players in the cast, chooses costumes for them, and paints and designs his sets.

John T. Murray, for years an Orpheum headliner, will support Louise Fazenda in a comedy series for Warner Brothers.

George Melford, dean of motion picture directors and the director of "The Miracle Man," will direct Bessie Love in "Going Crooked."

O, Religion! What politics have been played in thy name!

Rev. Landis To Give Series Of Talks At Prayer Meeting

Will Give Expositions On The Life Of Christ Based Upon The Four Evangelists

A series of expositions on the life of Christ will be given by George M. Landis, pastor of the First Baptist church, at the Wednesday night service. These outline studies will be based upon a harmony of the four evangelists: Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. The events in the life of the Lord will be taken up in a chronological order and lessons of a devotional and practical nature will be drawn from them. Outline notes of each study will from time to time be published in typewritten form, so that any who desire to preserve them may do so, and have a complete series of outlines on the life of Christ.

The first of the series will be given Wednesday night and will be introductory in its character, dealing with the subject: Why Are There Four Gospels? The fact that we have four separate accounts of our Lord's life is regarded as unnecessary by some critics, who consider them a needless duplication and damaging to the idea that the Bible was inspired by God. These objections will be considered and their merits weighed. Inquiry will be made regarding the differences as well as the similarities of the four gospels; and an effort will be made to see whether the distinctive character of each gospel is not a convincing argument in favor of its Divine inspiration, rather than evidence against it.

The services will begin at 8 o'clock with prayer and praise followed by the Bible study at 8:30, continuing until 9 o'clock. The public is most cordially invited to this service and to avail itself of a splendid opportunity to study the life of the most wonderful Person who ever walked upon this earth.

Her Tragic Mistake

THOSE who knew her would have said: "Such things don't happen to girls like Marion." She was well-educated; she had high ideals; her every thought and word were refinement itself. Yet, she was to find herself subject to the same vicissitudes of Fate that pursue all who blindly try to make right out of wrong.

It all started when she met and fell in love with Terry Dixon, who had twice been engaged to the mad-cap heiress, Helen Carlson, but who swore to Marion that his love for Helen was dead.

But often it is the unexpected that shapes human destiny.

For, having been forced by a terrible storm to seek refuge in a lonely cabin, she had scarcely crossed the threshold with Terry when she found she had taken the first step into a world of terror, desperate conflict and hideous peril.

What she went through is told by Marion herself in "Out of the Storm," in True Story Magazine for October. Don't miss this thrilling, soul-stirring, true-life narrative.

"The house was large and lonely. I was frightened. Terry had called, and I had just answered, when there came a terrific crash, and—"

Dear Sir:

Being a minister of the Gospel, I find True Story a help in warning young people against the trials and temptations of life. If more mothers would provide this magazine for their girls to read we ministers would hear less of the sad stories of fallen girls. May God bless you in your work of helping the young by warning them of the dangers in life. If this is worth anything to you in carrying on the work, I give you permission to use this in any way you see fit. Best wishes for your continued success.

Head Of Schools Meets Teachers

Conference Is Held On Monday Morning At Ben Franklin School

SAYS TEACHING NEEDS ENTHUSIASM

With few exceptions, every teacher, principal and supervisor of the New Castle Schools met with Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent Monday morning, September 7, when the usual get-together prior to the school opening was held, in the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School.

The program presented was a short one, but two addresses being made, these by Rev. C. J. Williamson, pastor of the Highland United Presbyterian church and by Dr. Green himself. Several group songs were sung, with Thomas A. Johns, supervisor of music directing and Miss Anne Thomas at the piano.

Requires Enthusiasm

"The profession of school teaching requires enthusiasm," said Rev. Williamson. "The class gets out of a lesson what the teacher puts into it, and the minute a teacher lacks her enthusiasm for her work, she is growing old. Not before, for old age is not a matter of years."

He urged the teachers to carry on their work with the vision of service before them, promising them that the rewards in future manhood and womanhood were large.

Dr. Green dwelt largely upon the Curriculum Study course which will be started in the near future. This he said would take many months to complete and would require the combined efforts of every teacher in the system. At the end of the study or survey, it will be possible to chart in an intelligent way, the studies now used in the schools here, and to prepare a syllabus.

The meeting lasted but about 90 minutes. Following it, the principals met their teachers in various rooms of the building.

Just Folks

IF TO BE CLEVER

If to be clever means that I must sneer
At every honest effort to be good,
Must tear to pieces all the brave revere,
And scorn what isn't clearly understood;
If only what is rotten can be art,
Lord, keep me from the sin of being smart!

If to be clever means that I must jest
At all that men hold sacred, and disdain
The simple teachings telling what is best,
Must serve the passions for my pocket's gain;
If brilliance means an utter lack of heart,
Lord, save me from the sin of being smart!

If to be clever means that I must see
All that is base and vile and call that real,
And finding honor, swear it cannot be
Because I've known some men to lie and steal;
If wit must tear all gentle worth apart
Lord, save me from the sin of being smart.

THERE IS SMALL HOPE—

For the man who will let others do for him what he can do for himself.
For the worker who is satisfied if he just gets by.
For the man who has never learned to take honest criticism thankfully.
For the town that turns a playground into a factory site.
For the church whose religion consists of theology.
For the teacher who can impart information but not a love for knowledge.
For the man who thinks he is good enough.

DISARMAMENT IS SURE, BUT WILL BE LONG TIME COMING

By LORD CECIL, Secretary Of The League Of Nations In An Interview

In trying to abolish war by persuading the nations to disarm we are dealing with habits and usages which are as old as history. We can succeed in our task only if we remember that success will necessarily be slow.

At present we are on the outer fringes of our problem. The preliminary disarmament commission of the League of Nations is at work on the technical aspects of armaments and we may have an interim report from them at Geneva in September. Their task is purely and exploratory one. They can question governments and draw up recommendations to be submitted to a conference later on, but anything more is outside their field. The political elements which condition disarmament, the elements of national security and national finance, are, of course, utterly beyond their scope.

We have already made a start in the direction of disarmament in the Washington treaty on the limitation of naval armaments. It is true that that treaty limited the construction only of battleships and aircraft-carriers, but that it gave us this definite beginning was promising, most promising.

What we are doing now at Geneva is to make a beginning in the more difficult field of land and air armaments. It will take a long time to get results. The first disarmament treaty may be a very mild one, but there is not the slightest doubt in my mind that eventually the nations will agree to reduce their armaments to those required purely for police purposes.

The tremendous horror of the last war, the knowledge that the next war will be worse, and the growing determination of the Christian churches to assure our ultimate success. The churches have always been opposed to war. They have never been more determined than they are today that war must cease. Christianity will sooner or later abolish war. What is happening now is that we are at last coming to grips with the problem of war. We are only beginning our real task. Patience as well as determination is necessary in the long and intricate task which lies ahead of us.

"CALLES LIKE NERO IN PRESENT WAR ON CATHOLICISM"

A Part Of The Vatican's Reply To President Calles's Defense Of The Actions And Decrees Of His Government

It is evident that the real cause of the present disturbance in Mexico is the anti-religious campaign of the government, and above all the tyrannical nature of the Neronian application of the laws of Calles. There is no tyranny more execrable and odious than that which enters into the sanctuary of conscience.

From various quarters there comes the question, why to they not come to an agreement, why do not the ecclesiastical and civil authorities arrive at some understanding? We answer: For many years the ecclesiastical authority endeavored in every way possible to arrive at a just and lasting agreement with the Mexican government, but always in vain.

POPE PIUS XI

It would not be difficult, even at this late hour, if it were a question of dealing with a government in good faith. But it is a question of dealing with a government bent on persecution and desirous of the suppression of the Catholic church in Mexico. How then is it possible to come to an understanding with a person who is trying to place a rope around your neck to strangle you.

Upon a basis determined by the law of Calles, which destroys the fundamental principles of Catholicism, a settlement of any kind whatsoever is impossible. The Holy See has been obligated to make this declaration. Asked by the faithful in Mexico whether it were permissible, for the purpose of avoiding greater evils, to submit to the demands of the law, the Holy See responded on July 21 of this year that: "It condemned the law and at the same time every act which could signify or be interpreted by the faithful as an acceptance of a recognition of said law."

Wherefore, while the faithful Mexicans are enduring martyrdom —since here we may well speak of a true martyrdom — the entire Catholic church, from the Holy Father to the humblest of the faithful "orat sine intermissione ad Deum pro eis" (pray to God for them without intermission). All our strength and all our hope rest in the invincible arm of prayer, prayed for the persecuted ones whence they may obtain the virture to resist, prayer for the persecutors whence they may come to recognize their error and obtain pardon.

Start Campaign To Restrict Hot Dog Stands Desecrating Beauty Of Roadsides In U. S.

Want Immediate Steps Taken To Restrict "Desecration Of Roadside Beauty"

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.—The beauty of the roadside has been desecrated to such an extent that the American Automobile Association finds itself compelled to launch a nation-wide campaign to throw restrictions around the operations of hot dog venders and their kin along the highways.

In a letter sent out from the A. A. A. National Headquarters today, highway officials in every state of the Union were earnestly urged to formulate plans whereby the "thousands of unwashed, unpainted and unsanitary hot dog stands and lunch counters" would be brought under decent regulation.

The A. A. A. statement was signed by Thos. P. Henry, its president, who made his appeal to state highway officials in the name of the 841 motor clubs affiliated with the national motoring body.

"The situation which is in effect a desecration of the highway is not confined to any one section of the country," declared Mr. Henry. "It is offsetting all that is being done to beautify the highways and millions of motorists are rising in protest. The hot dog vender or the lunch counter keeper has a perfect right to make a living but he has no right to mar the rights of sightseers everywhere. In this respect the rights of the public are paramount."

In the way of further comment on the situation along our highways today, the A. A. A. statement continued:

"No observant motorist can travel from Palm Beach to Miami, from San Francisco to San Mateo, on various roads out of Boston, Los Angeles, New York or Chicago without being appalled at the desecration of good taste and plain civic manners by the thousands of unwashed, unpainted, unsanitary hot dog stands and lunch counters that infest many of our beautiful boulevards.

"This disgraceful appearance of these stands is extended by an unlicensed posting of signs of every size and color upon trees, fences, poles, rocks, barrels and on all other projections between aforesaid stands and counters.

"This is a new condition which has grown upon the authorities, but it is a situation that can be cured. These stands must ordinarily be licensed to do business and it is reasonable to suppose that such restrictions can be thrown around the granting of licenses as will preclude the prospective hot dog merchant from feeling that he can build his future business home out of the signs furnished him by soda pop, candy and cracker manufacturers."

DEATH TOLL NEAR SIXTY

(International News Service)

LIMERICK, Sept. 7.—The little village of Drumcolliher, County of Limerick, was a vale of tears today.

Hardly a soul in the town but numbers one or more among the 51 men, women and children who perished when fire swept through a loft where a moving picture entertainment was being held.

Practically the entire populace was occupied today in seeking to identify their loved ones among the bodies, or in making preparations for their burial. Some of the victims are so badly burned as to defy identification. These, it is understood, will all be buried together.

Between fifteen and twenty children are among the dead, and it is reported ten persons are still unaccounted for, so that the death toll may reach sixty.

Deeds For Property Sold On Tax Liens Confirmed By Court

Motions And Petitions Presented To Judge Hildebrand At Opening Session

Sales of property made by City Treasurer Ira Ramsey on tax liens were confirmed by Judge Hildebrand yesterday. Most of the property sold was vacant lots in the Second ward. Owners have a certain time in which to redeem them.

Jose S. Rice, administrator of Ina P. Eberlie, reported having sold property in the sixth ward to Thomas Crozier for $1670. The sale was confirmed.

In the case of the Farmers Savings bank against J. S. Hunt, a petition was presented for an order directing the sheriff to proceed with writ and for judgment of non-pros. Judge Hilderbrand issued a rule returnable on the first Monday of October.

Petition for a guardian was appointed in the estate of Martha E. McKinney. Testimony will be taken on Sept. 20.

Motion for judgment for want of an appearance was made in the case of Ball and Henry against James M. Boughter.

The Peoples Savings and Trust company was appointed guardian of Susanna Patiki and other children of the late John Patiki, the application being made by the mother. Susanna Patiki.

The Safe Deposit and Trust company, guardian of Earl Goslee Zellman, was authorized to pay $30 per month for support of ward, who is 14 years old and in school.

Clarence A. Patterson, W. Leslie Wilson and A. Clyde Shoaff, were appointed viewers to assess the costs and expenses of the Vogan street sewer.

In the case of Peter Christian against John Rung, defendant asked that plaintiff, who lives in Youngstown, be required to give bail for costs. A rule was issued.

Another evil result of recent political activities is that the word "rotten" no longer seems to mean enough.

If nothing else exciting is to happen, perhaps the boxing commission could be persuaded to stage its fights in public.

Ross Dyar Diagnoses Diseases of Modern Business Men for Advertisers

"Success in business lies primarily in believing in yourself, but too many fail in business because they are afraid," declared Health Evangelist Ross Dyar of Columbus, Ohio, known as the "Billy Sunday of the modern method of advertising of the Business World," in an address on "Making Good in Business recently at the luncheon of the Pittsburgh Advertising club.

"Too many persons you find in business are afflicted with 'know-it-all-itis,' which is only appendicitis of the mind, and also with a carbuncle of conceit," said Mr. Dyar.

"The best way for a business man to have willing workers in his employ is to be one himself. Develop a habit of being good natured, if you want real service from employes. A bump of good nature is a swelling that never gives you pain.

"The best business you can get in is the stock and bond game—sell stock in your self to your customers and friends, and then buy bonds of goodfellowship by being a good friend. There are two many persons in business who are simply commercial sparrows, flitting here and there with no motives in mind except what they can pick up.

"One of the first steps up the ladder is the three H's—matters of the head, heart and hand. As children learn to play, they carry forward their ideals of conduct. The third step deals with the three L's—labor, letters and leisure. The fourth steps, which deals with the three E's—experience, expression and expansion—is the step where most persons stop climbing.

"There are the three P's that must result from climbing the stairway of success—perception power and profit. The real profit that comes is the love of family and the good will of companions.

"We have only three classes of men and women. You are broad and shallow; you are narrow and deep, or you are broad and deep. Your profession is a gymnasium to develop your mental muscle.

"It is not a matter of how much you know, but how you use what you do know. Believe in your work; believe in your fellow worker, and believe in yourself. That will bring you power, profit and pleasure. You can do a lot when you have to do it. Be a dog of faith and not a cur of cowardice. Get out of the ranks of discontent; be up and set the pace you want to go." Come to my meeting, B. & O. Show Grounds, South Mill street, at 8 p. m. every night and learn how to prepare yourself to fight the world's battles.

Wilmington, Highland And Croton Avenues Favored By Speeders

Speeders are not always particular, according to members of the motorcycle force of the city police force, where they indulge in their bursts of speed, as is shown by the fact that persons exceeding the prescribed and safe rate of speed on city streets are arrested in all parts of the city.

But they do sometimes prefer the smoother and straighter streets for that purpose. According to members of the force, the principal streets on which speeding is in vogue is on Highland avenue, Wilmington avenue and Croton avenue.

Of the three, the general opinion would probably be that Wilmington avenue would be the choice because of the fact that it is the widest and one of the smoothest paved streets of the city. This is not true, according to some of the members of the motorcycle force, who state that Croton avenue seems to be the most popular for speeding up.

It is not quite so heavily traveled as a usual thing as the two other principal highways of the speeders and they have a better opportunity of putting on the gas and going fast without interference from other cars. Croton avenue pavement is also in fine shape, another good reason for speeding, if there is any excuse for doing it.

The Big 3

Solves Every Washing Problem

HERE is a really wonderful washer. For mechanical perfection, ease of operation, flexibility and adaptability to any family's washing requirements, it is an outstanding success.

It washes, wrings, rinses and blues mechanically in one uninterrupted series of operations, much better and easier than can be done by hand. It can be operated as a triple or double tub washer, or with just the washer alone.

Fits the Smallest Laundry

No laundry is too small in which to conveniently operate The Big 3. Built compact and light but of standard capacity and strong, it is surprisingly easy to move about and will go through a doorway less than twenty-two inches wide. Its washing principle is vacuum type and has been unchanged for over eighteen years. The daintiest fabrics can be washed without injury. Dirt is forced out gently but thoroughly and quickly, and aerating process removes every trace of washy, musty odor.

Football Squad Members Work Out Without Stockings

Years ago, the youth who went out for the football team in his school or college was protected from the unfeeling feet of the rest of the squad by pads, heavy woolens and headguards.

Perhaps the youth of today is tougher, or perhaps football isn't as rough. At any rate practice these days is done with as little impedimenta as possible.

Up at Westminster the squad is working out sans socks, sans headgear, sans guards of almost any description. It may be that it is because Coach Dyke Beede is working the boys so hard, they don't want to carry any extra weight around.

HEAVY RAINS CAUSE FLOOD

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 7.—Not since March of 1913 have the residents of this locality witnessed such a flood stage of the three streams that have such a confluence in the East End of the town as that of Saturday evening. A cloudburst of rain which fell between the hours of 3 and 6 p. m. resulted in the quick rise of the Greenville run which flows into Otter creek and that stream which joins with Mill creek on Wilson avenue in forming the Neshannock. Such was the force of the water that the bridge to the Reznor Manufacturing company over the run was carried to the platform edge of the old Bessemer depot. The head of water gained by the flood extended all over this roadway and the railroad tracks adjoining. The Bessemer railroad evening trains were met with passengers and mail at the old Houston Junction. The receding of the flood today showing the bad washing given the ballast testifies to the wisdom of this action. Water covered both the Scrubgrass and Erie-Pittsburgh highways. On the latter road the Mercer police acted as pilots the greater part of the night warning Labor Day tourists of the danger. For some distance to the east of the Millcreek lunchroom the road was covered by 15 inches of water which reached its highest stage at 7 p. m. and for the remainder of the night was receding.

Damage to the sheep flock of Robinson brothers is reported. Nine of a flock of 70 were drowned, valued at $150. The sheep were in the field located adjoining the Butler road bridge. The water at this point covered the roadway and field. Auto wrecks as a result of the storm are too numerous to individualize. Such was the fury of the storm that drivers caught in its pelting force lost control of their cars. Sliding into ditches and collisions are reported. While property damage ran high as a result no injuries are reported. The fruit crop also suffered in broken limbs of overladen trees. That damage will amount to thousands is beyond a doubt.

Full discussion of industrial problems before any action of a definite nature is taken was laid down here Sunday evening in a Labor Day sermon by Bishop Francis McConnel of Pittsburgh as the medium of settling future estrangements of labor and capital. The sermon is of annual occurrence here. It is held under the auspices of the East End Fire company. The services were held in the court house assembly room made necessary due to the rainfall. The place of service has always been the lawn of the company's house. A large audience greeted the Pittsburgh clergyman. For years Bishop McConnel has been known for his active interest in labor affairs.

Monday was the third day of continued rain in Mercer county. The rains of Sunday and Monday have been showers, those of Saturday were cloudbursts. The continued downpour has not only been creative of thousands of dollars worth of damage but from its continued fall has the morale at a low ebb. All Labor Day programs were made impossible. The opening date of the Stoneboro Fair was materially affected in its crowd due to the rain.

Examination of babies and children up to six years of age will take place at the Mercer Fair on September 15, is the announcement of Dr. S. J. Dickey, county medical director. Dr. Dickey has arranged for medical experts from the state department of health to be here on this date. They will be established in a booth in a convenient location. The examination is without charge and will be thorough.

CANCELLATION OF DEBTS NOT GOOD FOR EUROPE OR U. S.

By SIMEON D. FESS, U. S. Senator From Ohio, In An Interview.

Our part in the war was definite and decisive both as to purpose and results. Whatever be the causes which led the entente into war, the United States entered the conflict to defend her rights as a sovereign nation and fought a common enemy not as an ally, but as an associate in war.

We were urged to loan money to these associates upon the solemn pledge that it would be repaid. We poured into France 2,000,000 men and had 2,000,000 more ready to go. Our people subscribed themselves to a wartime tax burden and bought Liberty loans until it hurt, to meet obligations approaching $50,000,000,000 in taxes and loans. No spoils of war were sought nor accepted.

SIMEON D. FESS

As victors, we asked for nothing and got less than we asked. The suggestion that we make a gift of the nearly ten billions of dollars of loans in unwise from every standpoint, both for Europe and America. No government can endure that plays false with its honor and works positive injustice to its people. No country can continue to be either an economic force nor a political power in the world that disrespects its credit, ignores its duty, or abandons its honor.

Hard bargains should not be exacted, but fulfillment of obligations in the degree of ability to pay must be required both in the interests of the creditor as well as the debtor country.

The creditor country, foregoing all spoils of war, cannot be asked to make a gift of the people's money, nor can the debtor countries which have claimed and secured the spoils of war ask for such a gift.

Having voted authority to the administration to make the loans upon the representation that they would be paid, I do not take kindly the proposed cancellation by one who held an important part in that administration.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAYS NEWS

Senator James Reed.

Senator "Jim" Reed of Missouri, from whom the Democrats of his state withheld delegate's badges at the national conventions of 1920 and 1924, is back in high favor with Missouri Democratic leaders. They are booming him now for President in 1928.

It is hard to tell just what caused the change in sentiment. Reed has not changed. He has always been a bitter opponent of the League of Nations and the World Court. He has always been a wet. Perhaps his present popularity may be due to his recent disclosure of primary fund excesses in Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Good politician, that he is, Reed is a Mason, an Elk, a Woodman of the World, a Knight of Pythias. Through his membership in these lodges he has gained a wide personal acquaintance through the state.

He began his public career as a prosecuting attorney in Jackson County, Mo. As a "clean-up mayor" of Kansas City he assailed the public service corporations, and obtained service at lower rates. He was with Champ Clark against Woodrow Wilson for the nomination for the presidency in 1912. He fought Wilson throughout the latter's two terms and was denounced by the President as a marplot.

Reed is 65 years old and has served in U. S. Senate since 1911.

Those who have the things we want never seem to appreciate them as much as we think we would.

Rolling a hoop, spinning a top, or playing marbles are better exercise than golf, but less expensive.

Herbert Bauder Hurt In Accident On West Grant Street Crossing

Many Traffic Accidents Reported Over Labor Day Holidays

While no serious accidents were reported over the Labor Day holiday period, in spite of the weather conditions, which made travel dangerous, a number of near serious accidents were reported from various sources and a number of people found it necessary to spend some time in the local hospitals as a result of injuries sustained.

Herbert Bauder of 1026 Beckford street, was injured and narrowly escaped more serious injury, about 2:30 o'clock this morning, at the Pennsylvania grade crossing at West Grant street.

Crashes Into Train

According to the statement made by Mr. Bauder, who is in the Shenango Valley Hospital, he saw a train coming but thought he could make it across before the train. He was not quick enough, however, and the gates were down and his car crashed into them and into the engine of the train, which arrived at the crossing at the same time as his car did. The automobile was wrecked and Mr. Bauder sustained severe cuts and bruises about the head, face and body. They are not considered serious and he will be able to leave the hospital in a short time.

Three persons were injured and taken to the Shenango Valley hospital Sunday night, when their car turned over on the slippery pavement of the Youngstown road, a short distance from the city. The persons injured were: — William Schulz, aged 20, 1593 East 45th street, Cleveland, O., Mrs. Julia Andt and daughter Olga, 4419 Paine avenue, Cleveland, O. The former was unconscious when brought to the hospital but regained consciousness Monday, his condition apparently not being serious. The two women sustained cuts and bruises. All were able to leave for their homes last night.

Hit By Baseball

Perry Laistoria of 1302 Croton avenue, is in the New Castle hospital suffering from severe cuts of the face and head, sustained Monday afternoon, when as he was about to get into his car, which was in front of his home, a baseball being used by boys of the district, crashed through the windshield of his car. The injuries are not serious and he will be able to leave that institution in a short time.

J. W. Harmon, 6808 Hough street, Cleveland O., reported Sunday that as he was driving south on Atlantic avenue, at Etna street, a boy named J. E. Smith, aged 10 years, ran out from the sidewalk into the side of his car and was knocked to the street. Mr. Harmon took the boy to his home, where it was found that his injuries were of a minor character.

The cars of R. J. Krah, Bellevue, Pa., L. E. Edeburn, West Middlesex, Pa., and Emma Carter, 717 Superior street, came together at Liberty street and Mahoning avenue Saturday. All the cars were damaged and H. J. Selby of West Middlesex, Pa., who was in the Edeburn car sustained a cut on the leg.

Hits Fire Hydrant

The car of David G. Massaro, 1332 Croton avenue, this morning about 7:30 o'clock, ran into and destroyed three rural mail boxes at Jones and State streets and then crashed into a fire hydrant at that place, breaking it off at the ground. The place was flooded until the water could be shut off.

P. B. Gordon of 22 East Washington street, reported that his machine collided today at Jefferson and Washington streets with another machine. Some damage was done.

William T. Edmunds of 412 North Liberty street, reported Monday that his car was damaged at Mercer and Washington streets, when he stopped behind another machine and a third machine in his rear hit his machine.

Mrs. Aline Altman of 26 North Mercer street, reported Sunday that her machine was damaged at Washington and Jefferson streets, when the machine of Colonel Hamilton ran into it.

John Offredo, 908½ Pollock avenue, reported Sunday that his machine was damaged when it was in a collision at Montgomery avenue and Lafayette street with a machine bearing Pennsylvania license 642-298.

J. C. Carson of 131 Edison avenue, reported Sunday that his machine was damaged on Jefferson street, when a car bearing Pennsylvania license 248-779 collided with it.

Both cars were damaged Sunday, when the machine of C. V. Gilmore of North Cedar street and R. T. Waddell came together on Liberty street.

Nick Panella, 319 South Beaver street, reported Sunday that his machine was damaged when in a collision with a car bearing Ohio license 941-063 at Long avenue and Moravia street.

J. H. Ellsworth reported Sunday that his machine was damaged when a car bearing Pennsylvania license B 39-315 ran into the rear of his machine at North Jefferson and North streets.

Howard Usselton of 19 Kurts street, reported Monday that his machine was damaged when a car bearing Pennsylvania license 839-626 ran into it at Home and South Jefferson streets.

J. C. Hays of Polk, Pa., reported Saturday that his car was damaged on North Jefferson street when a car bearing Pennsylvania license 565-389 ran into the rear of his machine.

For the past half dozen years the LaFollette faction has been out "to get" Lenroot. Gov. Blaine is the leader of that faction. It is the consensus among political seers that the Blaine-Lenroot contest will be close, with the outcome unknown until all votes are counted.

Blaine is said in some quarters to have the edge over Lenroot because of the efficiency of his well-oiled state machine. Wisconsin is anti-world court and wet, according to all surface indications.

A vote in excess of 400,000 is predicted today on the basis of favorable weather.

In Nevada.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 7.—Political leaders expressed the belief that the heaviest vote in primary election history for the state would be cast today on the Republican ballot, the last effort of E. E. Roberts to take complete control of the state machine from Senator Tasker L. Oddie.

Several thousand Democrats, admittedly anti-world court partisans have switched their party affiliations for the primary and it is considered that all of these will vote against Oddie, who voted for the world court and has stood for the administration in all instances.

Roberts, anti-court candidate and modificationist, has spent four years in building a strong machine in the few populous districts of the state, and if there is no slip-up overnight these areas may give him a majority, it is thought.

In New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—Heavy voting marked progress today in the primary election in New Hampshire.

In the race for the U. S. senate, three Republicans were running. Senator George H. Moses was opposed by former Governor Robert B. Bass and Judge James W. Remick.

Huntley N. Spaulding was opposing Governor John G. Winant in the Republican gubernatorial contest.

In the Democratic primary, Robert C. Murchie, Concord, in the fight for the United States senatorial nomination was opposed by Albert W. Noone, Peterboro.

In the Democratic gubernatorial primary Mayor Eaton D. Sargent, Nashua, was unopposed.

F. Clyde Keefe of Dover opposed Ferdinand Farley of Manchester for the Democratic nomination in the first congressional district and Congressman Fletcher Hale was unopposed in the Republican primary in that district.

There were no contests in the second congressional district. Congressman Edward H. Wason ran alone on the Republican side and George H. Duncan of Jaffrey on the Democratic side.

In Arizona.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 7.—With virtually every candidate opposed to Boulder dam legislation, Arizona voters will decide today one of the most tense primary elections in this state in years.

The race for governor was interesting because Governor Hunt, repudiating an early announcement of retirement, again seeks nomination. His campaign was waged on the charge that California moneyed interests were corrupting the state in an attempt to "put over" Boulder dam.

E. E. Ellinwood and J. J. Cox are also candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor, while E. S. Clark and Thomas Haddock are contesting for the Republican nomination.

The Republicans have no candidate for congress on the ballot. Four Democrats seek congressional office.

Continuity Lacking In Old Indian Legend

One Tells Of Martha's Vineyard Giant, But Fails To Give His Fate

Thomas Cooper a half-breed Indian, in 1792, described the first people at Martha's Vineyard, Mass., to Benjamin Basset of Chilmark. Cooper received the information from his grandmother, who, he says, "was a stout girl" when the English first came to the island. This would seem to establish Thomas' story as a fact.

The first Indian to arrive at the island floated in on a cake of ice with his dog. He found a very large man there whose name was Moshup. This probably is a corruption of Glooscap. Algonquin for "great spirit" or "mystery" and more commonly called manito. Anyway, Moshup had a wife and five children and they all lived in a den. He caught whales with his hands and pulled up trees and roasted his game. As positive proof of Cooper's sincerity is his offer to Bassett to show him the whalebones and the charred remains of the trees. Growing tired of the island Moshup told his children to play ball on the beach joining Norman's Land to Gay Head.

Then he made a mark with his toe at each end of the beach and the water followed and cut away the beach. Four of the children were bos. They lifted their sister above the water so she would not drown. Moshup told them to act as if they were killing whales. They instantly were turned into "killers"—species of whale. His wife made such a nuisance of herself at losing the children that Moshup tossed her away.

She fell on the rocks near Seconet and exacted tribute from all who passed and finally changed into stone. The figure remained lifelike until the English came and broke off the arms and head. Moshup sent whales to the Indians to eat but fades out of the picture without Cooper telling what he started to explain, i. e., where did Moshup go? The yarn is given in full in the "Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society" for the year 1792 and illustrates the lack of continuity of many Indian legends.—From Adventure Magazine.

"Miss Shelby" Crowned At National Tube Co. Picnic

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 7.—Acting upon the suggestion that gentlemen prefer blondes, the judges crowned Miss Agnes Weiskopf, "Miss Shelby" at the bathing beauty contest conducted at the annual picnic given by the National Tube company at Morado park on Labor Day. Miss Shelby is employed at the Steel works, and wore a bathing suit of a mixed material. Miss Leah Fowler, a brunette came in a close second and Miss Irma Dilley came third as a result of the parade of beauties, with their lovely swimming suits and carrying Japanese parasols.

Others participating in the event were: Miss Thelma Straley, Miss Mary Solzberg, Miss Zeda McCandless, Miss Lulu Wimer, Miss Ethel Bair, Miss Genevieve Miller, Miss Betty Pierson, Miss Charlotte Hazen and Miss Thelma Worhl. Besides the parasol, the young women entering this parade were given an added dollars worth of tickets to complete their enjoyment of the park's pleasures during the day.

The picnic was the biggest success ever enjoyed by the Shelbyites with 5000 in attendance. The employes and employers turned out in full force to the natural park, where beauty is the keynote, reinforced by a number of concessions for the kiddies benefit and a great swimming pool which is an added attraction this year, and furnished a splendid background for the beauty contest as well as a number of swimming contests and water events.

Win Contests

Charlotte Hazen and Mrs. Bert Gates won the swimming contest for women and the one for men was won by Joe Gree and Frank Dietrich. There were a number of contestants in the fancy water diving and dashes which followed in line. Prizes were presented for everything. There were 60,000 tickets given out by the committee, saving the owners from having to pay for anything. The Tube company paid more than $3,000 for tickets which acted as a purchasing price for hot dogs, candy, pop, fruit, as well as rides on the merry-go-round and other concessions.

For special prizes Harry Watt received $100 and William McMurdo $25. Another prize of $10 was awarded for the best safety slogan. The prize winning slogan is, "I am practicing Safety in the Mill—Are You?"

Pat Cullinan was in charge of the pitching of horseshoes, which interested a large number of the men during the day. T. H. Brandon won honors in this line.

Largest Family

C. E. Sankey stepped onto a large box and announced that the man present at the picnic with the largest number of children would win the large box of candy which he carried. Frank Cortex who stepped up to the box with fourteen children won the prize, amid ringing applause.

Judges for the bathing beauty contest included: J. W. Offutt, W. R. Johnston and William McGlincey. J. A. Powell was chairman of the committee which was responsible for the splendid success of the picnic. Others on the committee were W. C. Chancellor, H. M. Wasser, G. C. Nicklas, W. R. Johnston, C. E. Sankey, H. E. McClymonds and I. B. McCorkle. Morris Reswick was in charge of publicity.

The rain early in the day did not act as a dampener for long. Crowds began to throng to the park grounds early in the morning. Machines were parked in every available space. Contests followed shortly upon the bathing parade which began early in the afternoon. Joseph Faga and his orchestra furnished splendid music in the park during the day, and later at the dancing pavillion, where employes old and young tripped the light fantastic.

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Mexican Reforms Are Pigeon-Holed

Fail To Locate Senator Or Deputy Willing To Sponsor Episcopal Proposals

HOPE TO HAVE MEASURES AIRED

(International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7. — The constitutional reforms, proposed by the Catholic Episcopate, are pigeon-holed in congress today because no deputy or senator has been found who is willing to sponsor these proposals for reform.

An employe of the Episcopate delivered the proposals to the congress and they were immediately tabled.

The Episcopate is now endeavoring to find some deputy who is willing to brave the displeasure of the government by bringing the measure before congress.

The proposed reforms demand every right and liberty pertaining to the church.

"We demand liberty for all faiths," declared the Episcopate's petition.

The proposed reforms would provide for free education, free religious belief, separation of the church and the state, freedom of the church to maintain charitable institutions, and unrestricted opportunity for church officials to carry on their work.

Large Audiences Greet E. J. Berquist At New Wilmington

Two fine audiences were present at the services at New Wilmington last Sunday and the arrangements for the morning and evening services were greatly appreciated by the mission board.

Excellent music was rendered by some of New Castle's leading soloists who accompanied E. J. Berquist superintendent of the City Mission at these services. The quartet of the First Presbyterian church of New Castle accompanied by Mrs. Paul Browne Patterson sang very beautiful. Solo numbers were rendered by Mrs. Henshaw and the duets which were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Johns of the First Christian church were much enjoyed by the folks who were present.

LAND COMPANY IS GIVEN PRIVILEGE

Community Real Estate Land To Have Advantage Of City Sewer

Council today took a step toward admitting property outside city limits to the city sewer system when the proposition of the Community Real Estate company, owning land on the North Hill, at the end of Highland avenue, was accepted.

According to the proposition the company said it is willing to pay for the advantages to be received from the sewer system and will abide by all building and plumbing laws.

Council deemed the offer fair and foresees a development of land in Audley(Delaware, Fairmont and Highland avenue section.

Councilman Burns voted negatively, not because he desired to, he said, but because he wishes to be consistent as "future requests from non-city property-owners may be received."

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

A Farmer's Profits

By Joella Johnson

"AND this—" Mr. Hoskins drained the last remnant from his third cup of coffee—"coincides neatly with an idea that I've had in mind for some time."

"This" was a legal-looking document which Peter Hoskins passed across the breakfast table to his wife as he spoke.

"With all due respect and affection for Uncle Abner, I've always sorter envied him the possession of that fine old farm of his up in the Vermont hills. Now, being sole heir to his farm, stock and tools, as that paper says, gives me a chance to try out and prove what I've wanted to for several years.

"Maria, what'd you pay for this box of corn celeral? Eighteen cents! H'm, I thought so. And 15 cents for a little can o' beans, and look at the price of oatmeal, and flour enough for a batch o'muffins, even. And still the farmers are grousing about not making ends meet, and working 16 hours a day, and all that bunk."

"But, Peter," mildly interposed his wife, "you don't suppose that cereal grew in the box or the beans in—"

"A can? No, I don't," Peter interrupted with something resembling a snort. "I know your argument—middlemen and manufacturers, and so on—but the farmer gets his share, and don't you forget it! I'm going to prove it, too!

"You read of farmers taking their vacations in automobiles with their families, running over the whole country. And why shouldn't they? I'm going to quit the office right now, like I've been wanting to for years, and after we've put in this Spring and Summer farming we'll be able to take one of those trips, too. Be ready to move up there in two weeks?"

And as Peter exploded this bomb his eyes narrowed and he waited to see its effect upon his wife.

But it proved a dud! Maria Hoskins was born and bred in the hills of old Vermont, and she was not averse at all to sojourning there for what she knew would be a limited time. Moreover, her mental processes were a little bit swifter than Peter's. She had glimpsed ahead to the Winter to come after this experimental farming. They had no financial worries, the children were all grown up, and after Peter's quarter century of faithful service with the firm she knew that they would gladly keep the place open for him, especially if she were to "put a flea" in the ear of Mr. Dunkins, Peter's superior.

So she answered accordingly, and, to Peter quite surprisingly, "Certainly, pa, in one week if you want." And she was as good as her word. At the end of the first week the apartment was spick and span, the best china carefully packed and the furniture all in readiness for its trip to the storage house.

Peter demurred a little at this; he was for having it shipped directly to the farm, but, as Maria pointed out, the old farmhouse was probably overflowing with furnishings already and things would be in a terrible clutter if they tried to crowd another houseful alongside.

An early April evening found them slowly climbing the steep hill that led to their new home, in the rackety station bus. It was not an auspicious day for a homecoming. A slow drizzle of rain had kept up all day and, as the wheels of the bus slumped in and out of the "cradle holes" of Spring and melting snow, Peter hung to his seat, growing paler and quieter all the while.

But Maria's spirits soared in spite of the weather. The ride was so reminiscent of many she had taken in the days gone by. She visualized the cheery, lamp-lighted kitchen and the hot supper that Uncle Abner's old housekeeper would probably have waiting for them.

Her instincts had not failed her. The old farmhouse kitchen, with its lamplight warmth, the red cover on the table, and, last of all, the platter of steaming baked beans flanked by a plate of hot johnnycake on one side and a sugared apple pie on the other, was so like one she had in mind that a mist came before her eyes.

And Peter's spirits rose rapidly as he warmed his chilled fingers at the shining range and comforted the inner man at the supper table.

But, alas for Peter's dream of existing on the products of his farm! For the present, anyway, his plans must be changed. After an inventory, the "products" were found to consist of about a bushel of sprouting potatoes, a few heads of decaying cabbage, a small crock half full of salt pork and a similar crock of dill pickles.

The stock consisted of a couple of dozen really superior Plymouth Rocks (delighting Maria's eyes), a pair of ancient workhorses in fairly good order, and a dozen members of the bovine family, of different ages.

"So," Mrs. Hoskins confided to Peter, after a leisurely breakfast, "unless you think we would really be benefited by a milk diet, perhaps you'd better hitch up and go to town after a few supplies."

And the critters have et the last of their grain," put in Mrs. Willets, the housekeeper.

"All right, all right," asquiesced Peter. He mildly wondered at the price of grain, and after learning it in town he was a bit taken aback. "But of course," he reasoned with himself, "you have to sink a little in any business you undertake, and the returns begin here with our first cream check and the first dozen of eggs that we sell."

Peter was partly right, but, somehow, the grain bill had a way of keeping pace with the cream check, and although Mrs. Hospins had almost phenomenal luck with her growing chicks, they too, had a most represensible habit of consuming vast quantities of feed.

But, all things considered, Peter did well and the first of September found him breaking somewhere near even.

All through dinner on the second day of the month Peter wore an air of ill-concealed excitement. After wiping his mustache on his napkin and pushing back his chair, he leisurely reached into his vest pocket and extracted a bluish slip of paper, which he tossed across the table.

Maria glanced at it. A check for $175!

"Why, Peter, what's this?" she inquired with pleased surprise.

Profits, ma'am, profits" was the triumphant answer. "Sold the two best cows, and pretty good, I call it. Hullo! There's Eb Sanders with the mail. Be back in a minute."

Slowly and triumphantly he sauntered to the mail box, and slowly but not triumphantly he returned, bearing a small oblong piece of thin cardboard. This, too, he tossed on the table before Maria.

Slowly she read the different items, their varying amounts opposite them: To Town, County, and State Tax, To Town School Tax, To Town Highway Tex—less 4 per cent discount if paid on or before Dec 1. Total $176.50!

The Open Door

By Clyde Weldon

VIRGINIA LATIMER—"Jinny" for short—was one of those fortunate persons who arise with their faces toward the east. Every day was a new day—and a new beginning. A new dawn meant a new grab-bag of events which Jinny opened with eager thrills. A favorite part of her early morning program was to draw her reluctant husband to the open door, face the east, and give exultant thanks for a new day.

Often George Latimer shivered, and told Jinny she was tempting fate to thus give thanks, not knowing what the day might bring forth.

"Don't, Jinny." He drew her within and closed the door. "That deal of Whitehall's comes up today, and I just know I shall lose it. And there are two other men watching Whitehall's move. I dread the day. Besides, the coffee is boiling over."

Mechanically, Jinny set breakfast on the table. It was so like George to close the eastern door. He allowed no glory of sunrise to tinge his day; only the cold, penetrating light of the north suffused his hours. Yet how greatly he longed for sunshine and happiness.

"George, do you like Mr. Whitehall?"

"Like him? You don't like business associates, Jinny—you like their business."

"Well, I am going to like him, and his wife, too," Jinny replied. "And I am going to cook your favorite dinner for tonight to celebrate your luck. I can put it in the fireless cooker before I leave for town. What time are we to meet Mr. and Mrs. Whitehall?"

"Never mind the dinner, Jinny. We are to meet at 12:30, and, as Whitehall is a stickler for punctuality, you must not be late."

Worried lines settled on the face of Jinny Latimer's husband. Punctuality was one thing that Jinny could not—or would not—understand.

"Promise me, Jinny, that you will leave the house at 11 o'clock sharp. That will give you plenty of time to chat with old Mr. Allenby, and to help Mrs. Cornell catch her scattered chickens. You'll start at 11, Jinny?" George anxiously watched the bright face to see if Jinny was listening, or if her mind was wandering off to some elysian fields of her own choosing.

"Yes, George, I'll be ready on the dot of 11." Jinny sent her husband off with an affectionate kiss and her usual endeavors to brighten his somberness.

"It's too bad," she commented to herself as she straightened the little house and prepared the favorite chicken pie. "I'm sure George would have better success if he would only put himself, as well as his mind, into his work. How can I make him see that you cannot deliberately shut a door of your soul, or hang a curtain of selfish desire before a window, and yet expect that contentment and happiness will flood your life?"

Well, she had not time now to study this problem further. The small clock showed the hour to be 10:30.

Happily Jinny dressed in her new bronze frock. Dressing in a new frock was not a weekly or monthly occurrence with Jinny, therefore it must be enjoyed to the fullest extent. True, George had called this frock a "glorified pillowslip," so straight and slim it was. But as the soft material settled beautifully about the slim lines of her fair, young body, the resemblance to a pillowslip vanished, though the glorification remained.

Jinny passed approval on herself, then hurried out the door and clicked it shut behind her—ready on the dot of 11.

At her next step she realized her predicament. A part of that already too narrow skirt was caught in the door!

To her dismay she found she had left her key in her beaded bag on her dresser.

What should she do?

She would have to slip out of her dress, push the screen out of the pantry window, climb in and unlock the door.

But because of that similarity between her dress and a pillowslip, her plan failed. Jinny could neither slip down out of the dress nor step up over it.

She thought of Mrs. Nevers, her next door neighbor, and at that moment this lady marshalled her children across the lawn to Jinny's porch, saying hurriedly:

"Mrs. Latimer, please take care of my children. My sister has been dangerously hurt and—" distractedly she rushed off.

"Well!" thought Jinny. "Did I tempt fate this morning, I wonder?"

With Jinny-like reasoning she decided it must be best for her to miss that luncheon. After the children had, in vain, brought all the keys from their house, they hunted up a tall stool for her, and she settled herself to an afternoon of story-telling.

She became so absorbed she did not notice a car when it stopped in front of the little gate, nor the elderly man and woman who alighted.

The man came to the porch and bluntly demanded to see Mrs. Latimer.

"I am Mrs. Latimer," Jinny, startled, clutched wildly at her dignity, but seeing the man's eyes begin to twinkle, she laughingly explained:

"I am caught in the door. And I'm tired of sitting on this stool."

"How long have you been 'caught,' Mrs. Latimer?" Before disclosing his identity Mr. Whitehall decided to find out if this attractive girl possessed that good habit of punctuality. He was a man who believed in knowing the man's wife before judging the man.

"Since 11 o'clock; I was on my way to meet my husband," Jinny replied ruefully.

The old gentleman nodded, well pleased. Then, after introducing himself and his wife, he produced a bunch of keys, and succeeded in opening the door.

At Jinny's urgent request, Mr. and Mrs. Whitehall stayed to enjoy the chicken pie. On leaving, Mr. Whitehall said:

"Have the papers drawn up tomorrow, Latimer, I want an optimistic fellow like you to look after my business. What with the income tax, indigestion and everything, I have troubles enough without listening to other persons, forcasting them." He hardly realized that for three hours he had been absorbing Jinny's viewpoint.

As the Whitehall car left, Jinny faced her husband to the east.

"But Jinny, the sun is in the west," George demurred.

"Yes, but the moon and the stars are rising. And the sun will rise in the morning."

Willing to Help.

The other day someone asked Kid Cormac, the crochet marvel, if she knew the meaning of the word work.

"Sure I do," she chirped up briskly. "Whatcha doing, a cross-word puzzle?"

"Come, it is quite time you made up your mind. Say which you like best, Alice, who is pretty but poor, or Jeannie, who is plain but rich?"

Nephew (with a sigh)—"I like Alice, but I prefer Jeannie!"

The Younger Generation

By Parke Whitney

I CAN'T be positive in any other way, Horatio. All's fair in love and war."

"Yes, so I've heard. But I can't help thinking that thee is taking an unfair advantage of the young folks. They might behave altogether differently if they knew thee was their grandmother."

"H'm! That's just the point. I've never seen them since they were children. I'm never likely to see them again. My days are numbered, I tell thee, Horatio. I've got to resort of drastic measures to find out who is the proper heir to my property."

"Leave it to all three equally, Deborah."

"Not the homestead, Horatio, not the homestead."

"Well, have thy own way, Deborah. I'll be back by 8, and perhaps by that time thee may have some use for my services. But don't put it off too long," and the old lawyer departed, leaving the friend of his youth standing in the doorway.

Deborah Chilton was in a quandary about the making out of her will. She had two sons in the West, but she had preferred her own little cottage on the shore of the Atlantic. Now two daughters of Hiram's and one of John's were here to help celebrate the Tercentenary.

"I'll leave the door unlocked and leave them a note. They can make themselves at home and I'll see them later." The old lady snatched her bonnet from the hall hat tree, wrote a few lines and hastened down the side path between the hollyhocks, just as three laughing girls and a young man rounded the street corner.

"It's Horatio's grandson!" whispered the old lady, out of breath. "How I wish I might leave everything to Richard. He's a boy after my own heart, and he just loves my home. How many cookies I've fed him after school. And I believe he really loves me. Dear me! How mixed up life is!"

Deborah sank down on the church steps. She had half a mind to give up her project and reveal herself to her grandchildren.

"Well, I don't know but what Horatio was right. Perhaps it is a crazy scheme to carry through, but it is for only a few minutes. Of course, I couldn't keep up a masquerade for long, and I would like to claim my own grandchildren."

She gasped for breath, for the swift walk had tired her exceedingly. And her troubled mind led her to seek seclusion from the chance passer-by. Her ideas of old New England hospitality fought against her Quixotic plan. I'm going to do it if it kills me," she told herself, finally. And she rose stiffly, shook out her long, voluminous skirts, and hurried back home. She entered by the kitchen door, took off her bonnet, and quickly donned her white apron. Now, ladies did not get their own supper in the life the girls lived in the West, neither did they wear white aprons. So who could blame them for mistaking grandma for an old servant? And hadn't they read Grandma Chilton's note?

"Well, I'm glad you came at last! It seems to me Grandma should not allow you to stay so long on your afternoon out. Get our supper immediately, for we are going to see the water sports and wish to get an early start."

The old lady stood in petrified astonishment for one moment. When had she ever been addressed by anyone in Plymouth with such a speech? She, a Chilton, whose ancestors had been the first to set foot upon the new soil! The blood rushed into her fair old face as she went into the pantry. Then she chuckled.

"Well, the stage is set," she thought quickly. "It is just as I planned, but I didn't think it would succeed so surely." By the time she had taken down the best pink lustre dishes she had composed herself. The supper was a merry one. The girls were hungry, and the alert old lady standing in silence behind their chairs.

"I'd hate to live here always; it is so old and shabby," said Sarah, the eldest.

"Oh, but it could be restored! Isn't it quaint? Look at that chest and the cunning little flax wheel!" It was John's girl, the youngest, who spoke.

"I wonder if it will be mine some day," mused Rachel, the younger sister of Sarah, who had ordered Deborah to get supper quickly.

"No," boomed the old grandfather clock on the stairs.

"Well, I'd not care a rap for all the old furniture in Plymouth. I only came for a little excitement. If Grandma Chilton left it to me I'd sell it in a minute." Thus continued Rachel.

"Well, I'm going to stay if Grandma will have me," said Delight, John's daughter and the youngest of the three. "Father is thinking of marrying again and neither he nor his bride will care for my society," and she gave a brave smile through wet lashes at the old lady bending over the table in sudden confusion.

Just then Richard burst into the room in his old-time familiarity.

The girls were leaving for the pageant, but were not quite out of earshot.

"Hello, Grandma Chilton! Get on your scenery! You're going with me to the pageant. Say," he said, lowering his voice, "your youngest grandchild is a pippin! I guided them up from the station. I'm going to marry her some day."

"Well, there's that!" exclaimed Grandma. "Some things simplify themselves. But you run along with the girls. I've important business with your grandfather."

Half Wrong.

Mr. Turner—Do you think I am acting the fool?

Mrs. Turner—Now, John, you know you never could act!

That Precocious Child.

Luck On the Radio

By Phil Moore

SO long, mother! I'm on my way! Radio's all set for WAAG. Don't touch it and you'll get swell reception. Great concert on tonight. Wish I could stay home and hear it."

Jimmy banged the door, making the pictures dance at the vehemance of his departure.

"It's very queer," mother addressed the dish water, reflectively (she was washing up the supper dishes) "it's very queer! I'm supposed to be capable of keeping the machinery of this house running smoothly. I'm considered capable of helping in every conceivable emergency that arises in the family, from cut fingers to cross-word puzzles, but when it comes to setting the radio, I'm simply not supposed to be capable at all."

Mother emptied the dish water and went on, talking to the dish towels as she put them on the rack to dry. "Tonight," she declared, "I'll have my inning. I'm to be alone until midnight. It's the first night I've had to myself since the radio was installed. I'll play with it all I want to! I'll fish for stations all over the country, and out of it, and nobody shall say me nay. Why, I may even get distance, who can tell?"

She snapped off the kitchen light to the gay tune of "Oh, Katherina!" Then she settled herself before the radio, removed the loud speaker, put on the ear-phones (mother liked the ear-phones best, contrary to the rest of the family), and prepared to change the station. Just as she did so, the pleasant voice of the announcer began:

"We are offering tonight five prizes for the five telegrams received before 10 o'clock stating which selection, in the sender's opinion, the orchestra rendered the best. Winners will be announced at midnight by the leader of the Little Joe Jazz Baby Orchestra who will select the lucky messages, blindfolded, from a box in which all telegrams will be placed. Just send in your telegrams and you may win a trip to Washington for a week, all expenses paid. Take a chance. Steve Brodie did."

"I'm going to take a chance," said mother, aloud. "I've always wanted to gamble and my family wouldn't let me. While the cat's away the mice will play. Let me see which selection do I think they played best? Well—I only heard, "Oh, Katherina."

She despatched her telegram over the phone and came back, replaced her ear-phones and began to "fish" for stations.

"If I could only get distance," she kept saying to herself, "I wish I could! But if Jimmy can't and Helen can't and Pa can't, I don't suppose I can."

Distance with a long D was the one thing the Thurston radio would not get. Although it was a wonderful set, it never had caught anything farther West than Chicago. Jimmy said the aerial was too long. Father said it was too short. Helen said she thought the Rocky Mountains interfered. Be it as it was. Chicago, thus far, was the limit.

Before mother knew it it was 11 o'clock. "My goodness," she said "I must get back to WAAG and hear who wins those prizes."

But where was WAAG? Why, she'd picked it up off and on all the evening. She was sure it was 30 and 45 on the dials. When she set the machine there, however, nothing came but vacuous roars. She reached for the log book that Jimmy had so carefully compiled. Then she remembered WAAG had changed its wave length, and Jimmy hadn't recorded the new numbers. She'd have to hit on it herself.

But she couldn't! In despair she twirled the dials vigorously. Jimmy and Helen and Pa could have cried out at her lack of delicacy in handling the machine.

"Perhaps they're silent for a little while. I'll set it at 30 and 45 and wait. I'm sure it was 30 and 45 before."

So she waited—and waited—and waited—

She awoke with a start. She'd been sound asleep. How long, she wondered? Hark! Somebody was speaking over the radio. She strained her ears. Then:

"This is San Sebastion. Puerto Rico—"

Mother sat bolt upright!

"The next number by the orchestra will be 'La Paloma.' This is KXYU, Puerto Rico!"

"Puerto Rico! I've got Puerto Rico!" Mother forgot she was alone. "Come, come, quick, somebody. I've got Puerto Rico!"

"Did you call, mother?" Jimmy came into the room from without.

"Yes, I've got Puerto Rico."

"Go on! You're kidding." He snatched up a pair of ear-phones and listened a moment.

"My word, ma, you have," he admitted.

"Didn't you hear the telephone ringing?" Helen entered, in a flutter. "It was Mrs. Curtis, mother. She says you won a trip to Washington for a telegram you sent in to WAAG tonight—"

"Goodness, gracious, mercy me!" quavered mother. "But listen, Helen, Puerto Rico—"

"Let's put it on the loud speaker." Jimmy suited the action to the words. "Now, mother, tell us how you got it, anyway."

"Why," replied mother, airily, "I was fishing and fishing, and I just got it, that's all. It was very easy. I wonder you haven't stumbled on it yourself."

"I'm not going to tell 'em how it was," she said to herself. "It's all luck on the radio, anyway, and good fortune was with me, even if I did fall asleep."

"It's mother's night on the radio, all right, tonight," said Helen. "My goodness! I'll say she's some winner."

She's Disobliging.

Mother—Why can't you children play together ten minutes without quarreling?

Bobby—Sister won't jump off the roof when I'm a fireman.

"You said these goods were all wool. Here I find a ticket sewed inside on which is printed, 'All cotton.'"

"Well, don't you see that ticket is sewed on to scare the moths away?"

The Visions of Dr. L.

By Margaret Taylor

THE shrill, piercing voice of authority sounded in the street. A careless motorist is signaled to halt and tyrant and martyr confer. Soon there is a riot of hissing, smoking motors. Then confusion.

Hopelessly hemmed in, a horse-drawn vehicle, slow, cumbersome and now almost a curiosity. Pride of yesterday, relic of tomorrow.

Trailing close behind, a huge motor truck. Impatient at being dedayed the driver gave vent to his contempt and indignation. Mad shrieks of the exhaust whistle.

Up ahead the storm has now fortunately subsided. The czar of the highways signals "Go!" and the waiting cars spit and roar and are off, like so many infuriated beasts dashing for liberty.

A girl stops to appraise an excinsive photographer's display. She is the sweet, modest young person who is reading much about careers and the laudability of ambition, and is greatly encouraged thereby. But knowing nothing of their perils, her aim is perfection of contour, plus a voice that will rival Farrar's.

Her fancy soaring among the clouds, she stands before these imposing portraits, fascinated, her slightest gesture revealing hero worship.

Standing at some distance and looking on, old Dr. L., wealthy and retired, soliloquized and chuckled. For to Dr. L., observing humans and their foibles was what study of insect life was to Fabre. A passion.

Seeing the doctor standing there alone, mumbling to himself, you probably would have classified him as being associated with some quack cult who go in for the dernier cris in isms and complexes.

Not so. The aged physician preserved his health and kept alive the spirit of youth by mingling with excitement. He liked to be alone and believed implicitly in hobbies. Thus, when he felt the urge, Dr. L. would go forth, much like an explorer.

It had been his privilege, as a leading member of his profession, to acquaint himself with the banalities of Main street, as well as the whispered bon mots of the select drawing rooms. While thus contemplating, the doctor felt a timid tug at the tail of his coat. Reluctantly and not a little annoyed, he turned and faced a middle-aged man of doubtful appearance, who asked, in a voice tempered with pleading and menace, for the price of a plate of beans.

The doctor frowned. He had no sympathy with beggars. To him the degraded station implied improvidence of youth, laziness and dissipation; a condition, except in the case of the blind or crippled, as sinful as it was unecessary.

Unwittingly following the practice of a lifetime, Dr. L. analyzed pauperism as a disease, self-inflicted, and the penalty of neglect. . . . Thus, in his professional manner, he prescribed work and a bath, and dismissed the beggar with no cash and ten dollars' worth of advice.

Then, wishing to be alone with his thoughts, the doctor entered a cheap restaurant. Soon he is joined by the smart young man who knows more about Muscle Shoals than the entire Ford engineering staff, who forthwith tries to engage the doctor in conversation. For the victims of the S. Y. M. are the meek, the tolerant listeners who yield to a stranger's craving to air his views, and who lend ear to innumerable insipidties, though they have rebellion in their heart.

But Dr. L. is concerned with thoughts of his own, and the uncrowned savant is silenced with a deprecating wave of the hand.

Alas, how impossible a millenium when the unlearned refuse to be enlightened? Thus he of the twin-six intentions and flivver capacities. The doctor becomes drowsy and there pass through his mind in rapid succession visions of—

Iscariot, grown contrite and on bended knee, daring to hope, despite the enormity of his crime, that heaven might grant him a painless hanging; of a new Soviet, born of bitter experience, honoring its international obligations and reconciled with the world.

The pictures fade. We seem lost by the pace set by chimerical fancies and by the stern but good man. We stand amazed, incredulous, before this strange tableau.

For Dr. L. is, at heart, the next man—any man—you meet.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

SON OF THE DESERT.

Dromda the Camel went down the mountain and down the mountain. And the pass seemed twice as long to Peter as he had thought it coming up. Perhaps this was because on the journey upward Peter had found Camel's hump comfortable to lean against, while now not only could Peter not lean back against it but the poor Boy had all he could do to stay on Dromda's back. One false move and he would have gone catapulting over Camel's head, which was certainly much lower than his heels!

Jolt, jolt, jolt. Peter had a splendid bird's-eye view of the rocky road before him, but he didn't enjoy the scenery very much. He was too busy trying to keep from reaching the base of the mountain before Dromda. Every road, though, no matter how steep and rough, has its ending. By and by Dromda the Camel stood on level ground.

"Whew!" gasped Peter and took off his cap to mop his brow. Then the Boy's heart stood still. Dromda was making a strange sound. Something was wrong! Had the journey up and down the long, long trail made the Camel ill? Peter bent forward, then bit his lip to keep from laughing out loud, he knew the Camel would not like that! For Dromda the Camel was singing in a queer cracked voice:

"A son of the desert am I, am I,
Back to the desert I roam!
To the shifting sands and the cloudswept sky
Of my childhood's home, sweet home!

ONE FALSE MOVE AND HE WOULD HAVE PITCHED OVER DROMDA'S

"To the heat and cold and the wind monsoon,
To thirst through the long hot day!
At night by the light of the silver moon,
Through the wastes to make my way!

"Glaring sun shines from high, I close my eye,
From the nose shut out the sand,
From my pouch's store I drink when I'm dry.
I know where to find green land!"

Penn State Portals To Open This Week

State College Looking Forward To Big Attendance For Coming Term

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 7.—With the start of "Freshman Week" activities on Thursday, the Pennsylvania State College will officially open its doors for another academic year. Approximately 1,000 freshmen will arrive here on Wednesday to begin the program of instruction that has been arranged for them in advance of the college opening one week later.

Professor W. S. Hoffman, college registrar, announced some time ago that he had filled his quota of 1,000 new students, of whom about 100 are girls. All have been advised to be on hand for the opening assembly of Freshman Week on Thursday. From then until the following Tuesday night the first year students will be kept busy with registration, physical examinations, psychological tests and instruction concerning the use of the library, how to study, history of the college and other phases of college life that will better fit them for the opening of classwork next week.

Indications point to a capacity student body when college convenes on September 15.

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—The State Department of Highways today announced the revocation of 21 drivers' licenses and the blacklisting of two persons for violation of the motor code for the past week.

The majority of the revocations were for intoxication. There were four revocations for each offense of reckless driving and larceny.

Richard Clarke of Philadelphia lost his license on the charge of being an habitual violator of the laws. Charles Hausman, Allentown, was placed on the blacklist for driving without the consent of the owner. Included in the revocations for reckless driving was George Kiehl of Lancaster.

Old Hotel Register Goes Into Oblivion

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 7. — The hotel register, reminder of the days when large, brass cuspidors dotted the corridors and the proprietor was wont to show Major Hoople, the celebrated explorer and his kin to their rooms, has joined long skirts, good beer and horse-drawn street cars.

The register was withdrawn from the William Penn Hotel yesterday and in its place was an individual card register for each guest, removed after signing to the private hotel files.

One of the reasons for the change, it was said, was to eliminate the practice of individuals perusing the old-fashioned register at their leisure and becoming acquainted with the names of guests.

JACK DEMPSEY TRAINS HARD FOR COMING FIGHT

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor Internat'l News Service

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7.—Can a man who has been out of the ring for three years achieve almost perfect condition and, yet, permanently lose his judgment of distance? This doesn't stand to reason and it is the only question, as I see it, that Jack Dempsey will have to answer between now and the night of Sept. 23.

His condition is excellent. His speed has lost none of the old sparkle during the years of idleness. He is hitting well—whenever the opposing chin is there to be hit. More times than is good for the young man's serenity, the chin is elsewhere. Dempsey is missing a lot of punches, although camp followers assure me that he is doing so with less frequency than at Saratoga.

That is well. If Jack Dempsey is to beat Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship of the world, he must hit him. Nobody ever scored a knockout or earned a decision by fanning the other man's pompadour.

However, if one would believe half he hears and all he sees, this element of uncertainty is the only thing that will serve to make a contest of this fight. Give Dempsey condition, give him his speed and the old will to win, and you have quite a fighter. Add even a dash of his former accuracy and it is difficult to see how any fan of the present era can beat him; least of all a heavyweight whom one might term a rather insincere hitter.

Hitter vs. Boxer

But he can't hurt Tunney without hitting him, if he continues to miss right up to the day of the fight, then it is possible that the challenger might be able to stab his way to the title.

This however, brings back the old argument of the hitter versus the boxer; the former might only have to land one good one to bring the stepper down to his own speed. If he lands it in the first round—which, by the way, always has been Dempsey's best—the fight is usually a brief one. If he lands it in the last round, he can and often does change the entire complexion of the fight. Dempsey will bull's eye at least one of his punches in ten rounds.

Another angle that the critics apparently ignore is that Jack Dempsey in a workout is quite another person from the Jack Dempsey under fire in the ring. He crowds his man, there, hitting short, murderous punches that, naturally, haven't the same chance of missing. This leads that Martin Burke and others were slipping yesterday came at long range.

He boxes that way in the training camp for two reasons. One of them is to develop foot work; the other to conserve the current supply of chins. If Dempsey swarmed over these babies every time out, he'd have the camp to himself overnight. Off-hand, I would say that it is an excellent bet that he will cut loose, without fear or favor, in the last ten days before the fight. By that time he won't care whether the boys leave or how soon.

Champ Not Worried

The intelligentsia also has been at a loss to account for the fact that the champion has been and is being hit with great readiness. I doubt if Dempsey is greatly worried about this state of affairs. Every man he has fought has hit him. All he asks is that they keep on trying, so that he can get a clean shot at the button.

Besides, this is the man who was hit on the jowl by Firpo, Carpentier and Willard and, if he could laugh that collection off, it is difficult to see how Tunney's light hitting can annoy him.

The chances are that Dempsey is figuring on marching right into everything that Gene might have in order to get in close for the killing, if any.

That he will be in condition to absorb punishment is now a foregone conclusion. Dempsey worked forty minutes yesterday and, at the end, breathed as easily as a man in a Morris chair. He perspired profusely in the first minute of play, another favorable sign. A third was the fact that his legs—hard, brown and trim—moved that wonderful body of his about as though operated on steel springs.

As for my original question, it would seem entirely plausible that Dempsey will reclaim some measure of his accuracy within the remaining two weeks. Whatever it may be, it should be enough.

Pennant Races In Both Leagues

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. — The positions of the pennant contenders in both of the leagues were unchanged this morning as a result of an epidemic of Mexican stand-offs in the holiday doubleheaders. The Cardinals, still one game ahead of the Reds in the National League race; clash with the faltering pirates again today while the Reds take on the Cubs.

As the Yankees and Indians both split double-headers, New York's lead is still six games. The even break was to New York's advantage, however, as both teams now have only twenty games to play. Washington took third place away from the Athletics, but the Senators trail Cleveland by four games.

Charm Beats Strong Field

Futurity Event Raced On Heavy Track; Guy Ozark Wins

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—Charm, the defeated second choice in the Hambletonian stake at Syracuse last week, made good at the opening of the Grand Circuit meeting in connection with the state fair here Labor Day, beating a high class field in the Horseman Futurity, feature of the race card.

The event was raced over a very heavy track, in spite of which developed into a high class contest. Charm set the pace in the first heat, but John Madden's filly, Catherine, outsprinted her at the end, running in 2:09 1-4.

In the next two, Charm, again off in front, was the best, Catherine finishing fast in the final and only being beaten by a nose. The winner is owned by H. J. Schlesinger of Milwaukee and was driven by Ben White.

Wins Feature Event.

The feature event for the aged horses was the $5,000 stake for 2:08 trotters which was won by Guy Ozark from the Harriman stables. In the first heat Guy Ozark took the lead on the upper turn, but was beaten in a hard drive by the Senator in 2:05 1-4. Guy Ozark again got to the front on the upper turn in the second heat and this time the Senator could not catch him. In the third heat Cox got Cupid's Albingen away flying and the big gelding led all the way, winning easily. The final heat between the three heat winners was raced after dark, Cupid's Albingen breaking and Guy Ozark beating the Senator in a driving finish.

LOCALS DEFEAT ERIE 6 TO 4

Jack Flynn Pitches Steady Game For Locals In Erie Victory Sunday

The New Castle club of the O. & P. league took a fall out of the Erie Sailors at Erie on Sunday afternoon to the tune of 6 to 4, with Jack Flynn pitching a steady game to outpitch Henry and Lauers.

The New Castle team was considerably strengthened by the addition of Jack Reeder, former Virginia league player, who filled in at short and secured a double and scored a run in addition to taking care of three hard chances.

Hoffman with four hits, including two doubles, was the feature clouter of the game, while Buzzard, McCullough and Robertson had two hits apiece for New Castle. For Erie the hitting of Fleming and Munch was a feature.

Flynn limited the Erie sluggers to eight bingles.

The New Castle victory at Erie on Sunday had a very damaging effect on the league standing with the result that Erie was knocked out of first place and Akron slid under the wire winner in the second half of the league. Akron also won the first half and are the O. & P. league champions.

Two Quarterbacks Report At Nittany

State College Blessed With Good Pilots After Three Lean Years

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 7—After three seasons of groping about for a field general to pilot the Penn State eleven Nittany coaches are ready to start the 1926 season with two quarterbacks who gained valuable experience last year.

They are "Cy" Lungren, Philadelphia boy and John Pincura, a Kiski product. Both won their letters last season.

In 1924 and 1925 Coach Bezdek was forced to start the season without a signal caller and to develop some halfback into the position before the start of the big games. Hank Lafferty filled the breach in 1924 and Bill Helbig did likewise last year until Lungren and Pincura could be developed.

This fall the two pilots are starting in where they left off last Thanksgiving day and it looks as though Penn State would be better fortified in field generals than for a number of seasons. Lungren will likely get first call at the start because of his speed, but Pincura is a cool, heady player who can enter the game in a pinch and make good.

High Football Team Resumes Training At Ben Franklin Field

With the opening of the fall term of school today, Coach Phil. H. Bridenbaugh lost no time in getting the football candidates down to intensive training for the opening game with Mars High on Saturday, September 18. The boys were put through a hard workout this afternoon at the Ben Franklin Field in a resumption of activities started during the week spent at the training camp at Muddy Creek Falls.

While nothing definite has been announced as yet by Coach Bridenbaugh it is understood that a least 25 more young hopefuls will be added to the squad with the opening of school. Many of the boys who are to become candidates have been out of town on vacation trips and working in other cities and were unable to get back for the training camp.

"Bill" Cowboy Kirk, has returned from Montana and will make some of the boys step to hold their berths. Kirk has taken on considerable weight this summer and also has grown with the Montana wheat, he stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs around 175 or 180 pounds. Kirk was a second string lineman last year and is expected to hold down a regular job this fall.

The squads, three in number were put through a strenuous rehearsal this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock due to the fact that no school sessions were held today, but every afternoon hereafter the practices will start about 3:30 o'clock said Bridenbaugh.

Earl Turk last year a half-back on the Red and Black team reported for training and its likely to be found at a half-back berth again this season. Turk has been laid up for the past several weeks with a severe cold and also missed the training camp.

THREE COUNTY LEAGUE GAMES ON WEDNESDAY

The Lawrence loop tilts Wednesday will start at 6 o'clock but the first of the series between the O. & P. team and Ellwood will be played at 3:30 Saturday.

There are several Lawrence county league games to be played on account of postponements, but the Wednesday card is as follows:

Bessemer vs. Energy at Energy. Wampum vs. Neshannocks at Coaltown and Mahoning vs. Ellwood City at Ellwood City.

Material For Yearling Eleven Remains Unknown As Yet Heads Say

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 7—Just what material will be available for the Penn State varsity eleven of 1927 will be revealed on Thursday when the freshman squad will report to Coach B. M. Hermann. The entire first year class will be on the campus this week for the "Freshman week" activities and candidates for the grid team will be called out at once.

Penn State followers are hoping that some promising timber will be uncovered, for but three members of last year's freshman squad have survived the scholastic axe and advanced to the varsity field.

Cincinnati Reds Cancel Game Here

Business Manager Carm Sacco of the New Castle O. & P. league team made the announcement today that the management of the Cincinnati Reds had dispatched a telegram to this city canceling their scheduled exhibition game here for September 9.

The Reds gave as their reason for canceling the game here Thursday that owing to the fact that they were in the throes of a pennant fight in the National league they would be unable to bring their regular lineup to New Castle for the very simple reason that they could not afford to take any chances on their stars being injured. The Reds, however, promised to send a second string team here for the game, but Sacco wired them that unless they could promise to send their regulars that the game would be stricken off the schedule, and it was.

Cincinnati at the present time is fighting St. Louis and the Pittsburgh Pirates for the supremacy of the Heydler circuit, and according to many of the dopesters they have a fine chance of copping the honors, and it was for that reason alone that they did not wish to make the trip to New Castle, and further than that they have a double bill with the Pittsburgh team for this week and that would be too much of a strain on the players.

The Reds, however, have agreed to give New Castle an open date for next season.

LITTLEWOOD'S PIGEON WINS

Local Man's Bird Wins 1,700-Mile Fly From Brandon, Col.

For the past 20 years, Harry Littlewood of 231 Smithfield street has been raising pigeons. Some of them were winners and some were not, but Harry has kept plugging along, confident that some day he would raise a real champion.

He has succeeded in his ambition, his bird "Goofus" having just won the 1700-mile fly from Brandon, Col., in 22 days, winning over a classy field of homing pigeons.

This is the longest fly ever attempted by pigeon owners of Pennsylvania and Littlewood feels elated over the remarkable showing of his bird.

Scrimmage Work Starts For Westminster Squad

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 7.—If hard work will aid a football team, then the Westminster College grid squad in training here since last Wednesday, is getting some place. With "Dyke" Beede, apt pupil of Wally Steffen, Carnegie Tech tutor, and John Lawther, a former Westminster star, in charge of the coaching duties, the gridders have been sent through practice drills which have left them weary at their close. Each day the work has been heavier but it is evident that the blue and white jerseyed lads are beginning to see what it is all about.

The squad received the surprise of its life Saturday afternoon when Beede order a scrimmage session. This delicacy was served after only three days of preliminary training. However, the boys jumped into the play with a vim that was delightful to see. The drill continued for almost two hours.

Although the scrimmage was strenuous, casualties were few. Joe Smith, a center candidate from Youngstown, lost several teeth, while several others received bruises which were forgotten when Monday's work started.

Labor Day was no holiday for Beede's charges. Practice was called at 9:30 a. m. Despite a heavy rain and a field that was covered with pools of water, no let-up was permitted until 12 o'clock. They were then told to be back on the field at 2:30 p. m.

Several new lads reported over the week-end. Among them were Gerry Sweet, a product of Academy High School, Erie. He is a lineman and when he weighed in, tipped the scales at 248. Freed, a Youngstown lad, Campbell, Pittsburgh youth, and Henderson of Akron, O., have also joined the squad.

New Castle Wins At Beaver Falls

Manager Bill Steen Relieves Rodenbaugh In First Inning; Wins 5-4 Victory

After Rodenbaugh blew up in the first inning at Beaver Falls on Monday afternoon, Manager "Bill" Steen relieved the former County League hurler and pitched New Castle to a 5 to 4 victory over the Beaver Falls Elks in a ten inning game.

Steen took up the burden in the first chapter after the Elks had scored three runs off Rodenbaugh and with only two gone, Steen gave but four hits for the remainder of the game and in addition banged out a double and single that produced three tallies. Semler was on the hill for the Elks and allowed the locals eight bingles of which McCullough led the attack with a double and two singles, while Weimer and Steen had two hits apiece.

Hughes and McGinley were the only Harvey players to solve Steen and Rodenbaugh for more than one safe hit.

With two bases occupied in the fourth inning Manager Steen doubled and two men scored, in the sixth Steen's single scored another run, while New Castle took the victory in the first of the tenth inning. Ross walked, Weimer got an infield single, Grabfelder forced Ross at third, Buzzard lined to Romele but Buffington allowed the toss to get away from him and Weimer scored from second. Steen pitched a steady game in the tenth and the Elks could not get a man on base.

Romele starred in the field for the Elks taking care of eight chances without an error. Grabfelder and Hoffman starred for New Castle.

Veteran Local Ball Player Thanks Many Friends For Handsome Gift

Jess Huff, for the past 35 years, a star of the New Castle sandlots, was more than pleased with the tribute paid him by local fans Saturday when the old Pennsy Shop team played the Mahoning club of the County league in an exhibition game which featured the "Huff Day" program staged by his many friends and admirers.

In addition to the silent tribute to the veteran infielder by the hundreds in the stands he was presented with a material reminder of the occasion in a handsome gold watch.

Huff is more than delighted with the present and what it stands for and today was profuse in his thanks to the friends who made the thing possible.

"I want to thank all my friends for the honor they accorded me "Huff Day" and to say that I certainly appreciate the fine watch which they so kindly presented me with. Words are rather futile in such a case so I will just confine them to a sincere "Thank You" and hope that everybody will know how much I appreciated the whole program Saturday," Huff said today in asking the News to thank the ball fans for the affair they staged for him.

Wampum Slams Neshannocks

Boyle Is Hit But He Manages To Keep Them Scattered And Wins

JONES PLAYS GOOD GAME FOR "NOCKS"

In a loosely played game at Wampum a tilt featured by heavy hitting, Wampum smothered the Neshannocks Monday afternoon 15 to 5. Although Boyle was hit 13 times they were kept scattered after the third inning.

The Neshannocks bunched eight of the 13 in the first and third innings which gave them five runs but Boyles tightened afterward and whenever the "Nocks" unburdened their clubs afterward he closed them up like a clam. Coates and Travers were hit hard.

Jones made his debut as a shortstop for the Neshannocks and handled five difficult chances without an error. He also played a good game at bat, getting a double and three singles. Latiano, Grinnen, Boyle and Dombeck also made themselves felt in the hitting column.

Famous Catches — By Feg Murray

An athletic event is like almost everything else in life—there's a catch in it somewhere. There are catchers in baseball who are looked upon with great favor by their managers and there are "catchers" in boxing, whose managers would be glad to get rid of them at a dime a dozen. Then again there are certain catches that stand out above others either because of some unusual important incident connected with them.

Such a catch was Harry Hooper's in the last game of the 1912 world series between the Giants and the Red Sox. Hooper's great feat came in the sixth inning when he made a backward leap against the outfield fence to grab Doyle's apparent home run. And it was in the tenth inning that Snodgrass made his famous muff of Engle's fly. The catch that Fred missed was as famous as the one that Harry made.

The other day Babe Ruth who has the happy faculty of keeping his name in the public prints went out to Mitchell field on Long Island and caught a baseball dropped by Capt. H. F. McClelland at an altitude of about 250 feet. The Babe failed on his first six attempts at higher altitudes and it isn't to be wondered at as the plane was traveling 100 miles an hour.

"Brick" Muller famous All-American end of the University of California caught many footballs in his gridiron career but none that went so far as the one dropped from the top of a tall building in San Francisco last year.

Zane Grey the well known author-fisherman made a record catch this summer when he hauled in a 582-pound broad bill swordfish after a five and a half hour struggle at Catalina Island. That broke the record of 528 pounds set by Harry Mallen of Los Angeles in 1924. A short rod and regulation 24 thread line were used.

Feg Murray Says.

The pitcher of the firemen's nine seems to put a lot of smoke on the ball.

PULASKI TAKES DOUBLE BILL

Eighteen Innings Required In First Game Of Labor Day Bill—Eggett Fans 22

It required eighteen innings, the longest game on record in Lawrence county this year, for the Pulaski A. C. to secure a 3 to 2 victory over the New Virginia team on Monday afternoon at the Pulaski grounds. Pulaski also won the second game, a short seven-inning affair, 4 to 2.

One of the features of the long game was the fact that both pitchers went the distance, Eggett for Pulaski and Holdoup for New Virginia, with the former holding a slight edge by holding the New Virginia team to seven hits over the 18 innings, while the Pulaski boys found Holdoup for 14 blows.

Michael, with five hits, led the Pulaski team at bat, while T. Ayers, Rodgers and R. Ayers also hit timely for the winners, with Thomas and Wilhelm the best for New Virginia.

Not an extra base hit was recorded in the long game, which is considered also as a record. Eggett, with 22 strikeouts in the first game, also set a new record for Lawrence county playing this year.

Stowe and Etzrott formed the battery for Pulaski in the second game, while Tollinson and Gough were the battery for New Virginia in the nightcap.

Improve Dairy Barns In Western Counties

Lawrence County Listed For Demonstration By State College Men

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 7.—Twenty-four western Pennsylvania counties are to have barn improvement work demonstrated within their borders during the next two weeks, E. G. Lantz of the Pennsylvania State College agricultural engineering department stated today. The three major problems to be solved are lighting, arrangement of interior and ventilation. Lantz is in charge of the work, which is a co-operative undertaking of the college, the Philadelphia Interstate Dairy Council and the Portland Cement Association.

The counties in which demonstrations are to be staged are: Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Cambria, Cameron, Clarion, Clearfield, Crawford, Elk, Erie, Fayette, Forest, Greene, Indiana Jefferson, Lawrence, McKean, Mercer Somerset, Venango, Warren, Washington and Westmoreland.

Work has been in progress in three southeastern counties, Chester, Delaware and Lancaster, for the past several months. In these counties 38 individual projects are now in progress. Each will stand as a demonstration of what can be done with the old bank barn to make it more convenient and healtful for dairying. All of the barns being used were voluntarily offered by the owners for demonstrations when the proposed work was announced.

"Wherever we find tuberculosis free herds we find a man interested in ventilation", Lantz declared. "Having gone to the expense and trouble to get a clean herd, the dairymen now want to maintain it in a healthy condition."

A new ventilation system which promises to be very successful has been designed by Lantz and his association in the work.

Endorse Refusal To Negotiate New Strike Settlement

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The central committee of the mining association today endorsed the refusal of the executive committee to negotiate a national agreement with the striking coal miners.

The request of Winston Churchill chancellor of the exchequer, that the operators negotiate a national agreement has been referred to the district associations.

The action of the central committee lessens the hopes for resumption of peace negotiations in the coal strike.

New Quakes Felt In Fayal Islands

(International News Service)

LISBON, Sept. 7.—New earthquakes have been felt in Horta, Fayal Island, according to reports received here today.

Although the quakes have been slight they have thrown the population into new panics.

Streets in Horta are still closed due to obstructions from the recent earthquakes and fear that new tremors may cause more buildings to fall.

Pledge to the Public
on Used Car Sales

1 All used cars offered to the public shall be honestly represented.

If a car is suitable only for a mechanic who can rebuild it, or for someone who expects only a few months' rough usage on a swapping trip, it must be sold on that basis. Each car must be sold for just what it is.

2 All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

This is possible because tremendous reserve mileage has been built into every Studebaker, which it is impossible to exhaust in years.

3 Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

The public can deal in confidence and safety only with the dealer whose policy is "one price only—the same price to all." For, to sell cars on this basis, every one of them must be honestly priced to begin with.

4 Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used.

It is assumed, of course, that the car has not been smashed up by collision or other accident in the meantime.

© 1925, The Studebaker Corporation of America

YOU can buy any used car from us with complete confidence under the famous Studebaker Pledge. You can feel confident that the car will serve you well—that it's worth the price you pay for it—that we want to keep you permanently satisfied. Here are three exceptional values now waiting for someone.

STUDEBAKER 1924 BIG SIX SEDAN—Sport model, newly painted. Bumpers, stop light and other equipment including trunk. Beautiful and serviceable. Down payment only $425.

STUDEBAKER 1924 SPECIAL SIX TOURING—Just repainted pearly gray, with a fine red stripe. Renickeled and entirely reconditioned by experienced Studebaker mechanics. Brand-new Kelly Springfield tires. Windshield cleaner, mirror and other extras. A beautiful car that will render new car service.

STUDEBAKER 1924 SPECIAL SIX TOURING—Painted blue with gold stripe. 3 excellent tires, bumper, motometer and other extras. This is a fully equipped car that has had exceptionally good care.

Used cars can be bought on a liberal Budget Payment Plan. A small down payment—the balance in convenient monthly installments.

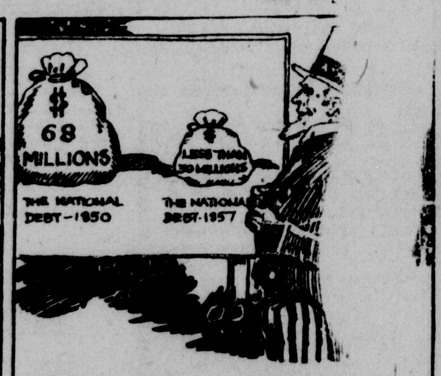
HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

The Be... Buchanan's Administration.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

Registered U. S. Patent Office. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

WITH THE INAUGURATION OF JAMES BUCHANAN (MARCH 4, 1857) AS PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, THE NATION LOOKED FORWARD HOPEFULLY TO FOUR YEARS OF PEACE. IN HIS ADDRESS, BUCHANAN PRAYED FOR HARMONY AND AN END TO THE QUARREL OVER SLAVERY.



IN SPITE OF THE TROUBLED POLITICAL SITUATION, THE NATION HAD PROSPERED AND ITS NATIONAL DEBT, WHICH IN 1850 WAS 68 MILLION DOLLARS, HAD BEEN REDUCED TO LESS THAN 20 MILLIONS.

THERE WAS SUCH A LARGE SURPLUS IN THE TREASURY FROM REVENUES FROM THE WALKER TARIFF OF 1846, THAT IN FEBRUARY, 1857, THE RATES WERE REDUCED BY FROM 20 TO 50 PER CENT.

BUSINESS WAS BOOMING, AND THE COUNTRY WAS ON THE CREST OF A WAVE OF GREAT PROSPERITY. THE ONLY DARK CLOUD ON THE NATIONAL HORIZON WAS THE PERSISTENT SLAVERY CONTROVERSY.

N.Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—After a firm opening, in which the railroad, equipment, oil and a few of the utility stocks registered moderate gains, the stock market developed an irregular trend in early trading today.

There was no indication that bullish interests in the railroad stocks would continue the board advance in prices, though New York Central was well bought above 147.

The rise in oil stocks which carried the independent oils to fractionally higher prices, was based on the reports of declining producting in California and Texas, and the firm market for oil products. Atlantic Refining was a leader in this group, with Marland, Phillips, Pan American and Sinclair responding promtly to more aggressive buying.

Call money renewed at 4½ per cent and funds were offered in the outside market at fractional concessions from that rate.

A 5 point advance in Pullman to 101 featured the equipment stocks. Rubber and tire stocks were also strong.

Rats In U. S. Equal People In Numbers

Best Of Cats Are Found To Be No Match For Vicious Pests

Man, proud and arrogant, has long looked upon himself as a great huntsman. Wild beasts have been his comparatively easy victims. But where lions and tigers have succumbed, one far less heroic, the rat, grows stronger, bolder, and more numerous despite the unceasing attacks of the great huntsman.

The rat, say those who have made a study of him, is an organized enemy of mankind, disciplined like a soldier, fierce, clever and warlike. According to Prof Henry H. Donaldson of the Wistar Institute, the rat population of the United States is equal to its human population. This makes nearly 120,000,000 rats, an extraordinary figure. And the United States is less troubled by these pests than are most other nations.

In this connection a classic tale among the huntsmen of rats is recalled by Peter Vischer in Popular Science Monthly. The skipper of the British freighter Ethelhilda had this idea. When he brought his craft from the west coast of Africa into New Orleans not long ago, government officials, suspecting there were rats on board, announced they intended to fumigate with poison gas.

"It's totally unnecessary," protested the skipper, quite incensed. "I have a tom-cat. A rat couldn't live on the same boat with him!"

Nevertheless, the Ethelhilda was fumigated. And through the irony of fate, Tom was left on board in the excitement. But he was found again, dead—completely surrounded by rats. Twenty-four of them lay within five feet of their traditional enemy.

Century-Old Firm Finds First Papers

Agreement Between Lord And Taylor Is Discovered In Seattle

From a tin box, carefully put away in a Seattle home, has recently come to light a bit of paper bearing on New York's commercial history. It is a partnership agreement by which was established a business firm which, in the century of its existence has won its way up from a Catherine street basement to a Fifth avenue shopping centre. The agreement reads:

"To all to whom these presents shall come;

"This is to certify that Samuel Lord and George W. Taylor of the City of New York have agreed to form a partnership to be conducted under the name of Lord and Taylor, that the business to be conducted is the dry goods business generally with all its usual appendages, that the said Samuel Lord and George W. Taylor shall be equal partners in the business, each having contributed the sum of one thousand dollars, that the said Partnership is to commence on the second day of May, one thousand eight hundred and twenty six, and terminate by mutual agreement."

The agreement was signed on April 28, 1826. In the previous October, the packet Constitution, from Liverpool, had brought one Samuel Lord. As the forty-fourth on the passenger list he was entered, "male, age 22, occupation iron moulder, England."

Apparently the iron moulding trade was not particularly flourishing in young New York at that time, or perhaps other pursuits offered better prospects. At any rate, the young man from England set up shop-keeping early in February. He carried on business single-handed at 47 Catherine street for three months, until he was joined by George W. Taylor.

Discovery of the original partnership agreement is the reward of a long search under the direction of Samuel W. Reyburn, president of the firm today. The tradition had long held that the firm was established in 1826, but documentary evidence was lacking to prove the date. The first step taken was to locate the earliest advertisements. —New York Times.

Dr. C. H. Holcomb Says Treatment In France Is Up To Individual

A splendid audience greeted Dr. C. H. Holcomb Sunday night at the 1st Christian church to hear his first mention of his trip abroad.

The following are some observations made while he was spending his summer in Europe.

"The first question asked one on return to the states is how were you treated by the people of France and England. The only answer I can give is that we experienced no difficulty whatever in any section of the country. I think President Coolidge was right when he said that there were some Americans who should stay at home. A person who carries a chip on his shoulder all the time will find some one to knock it off. Americans who boastfully assert themselves in any section of the world will find some one who dares to challenge their importance. It is always policy to so control oneself that while in Rome one can do as Romans do. But the person who boasts his citizenship in hotels on board ships, at depots, or on trains may be sure to find someone who loves his native land just as much as Americans, and why not.

"The way to appreciate the position of a foreigner in America is to go to Europe and become subject to the detailed regulations of immigration officers which are different in every land. When you think America has gone to the Bow-wows, and you have a dark brown taste in your mouth about everything that the government does, the best remedy in the world is to go to Europe.

I observed that even though there are some who believe that there is more drinking in this country since it has gone dry than there was before, I yet prefer our conditions to those of Europe. While we were terrified with the report during the war that many battleship crews were paralyzed for days with drink in London and Liverpool, yet the same condition exists today. But then it was our boys who were drunk and to us that was terrible; today their boys and girls, men and women are drinking as never before in the history of England. There are three million men out of work in England and beggars are everywhere.

My little French guide told me as we passed over the battlefields that the battle of the Marne was lost by the Germans because they had more bottles than bullets. Drinking in France is on the increase. There is much more work for those who desire it in France than England. They have rebuilt the destroyed towns and cities with great rapidity.

Belgium remains silent, but is steadily working on in sorrow. Germany has 500,000 half-fed children in the rural sections and poor sections of the large cities.

The American foreigner in Paris will note that the latest styles for women are skirts above the knees with knee-pads such as were used by the women of 1830, Sodom in the days of Lot could not possibly have invented so many different ways of wickedness as is found in modern Paris. Yet America rather boasts of accepting styles from Paris.

Most motion pictures are made in America that are now showing in Europe. Religion is considered more as a coat which is put on or taken off at convenience, and it is mostly left off.

American money sounds good to France and they sure work every possible way to get Americans to part with it. Some hotels charge 10 per cent extra for tips, and then when you leave every employe of the hotel will stand at the door with his hand out for more.

The experience of being an American foreigner in Europe is well worth all it costs.

Many Wild Flowers Increase By Picking

Writer Speaks Kind Word For Motorists Who Raid Rural Gardens

Do you love flowers?

In McCall's Dorthy Giles speaks of a subject important to all lovers of wild growing things.

"Many true lovers of wild flowers must shudder at thought of the thousands of automobiles turning cityward on Sunday evening with their running boards piled with wild flowers of all descriptions."

It is reassuring to learn from Dorothy Giles that while some of the most tempting blossoms wither almost immediately, there are many wild plants that are not harmed by being picked.

"Being flowers of the open fields, they do not wither so quickly as to make the cutting of them a wasted effort. The handsome ironweed, which is now so decorative along our roadsides, is one of these, so, too, are the many late summer asters, goldenrod, loosestrife, Bouncing Bet, toadflax—once a garden plant but now escaped to the freedom of the fields; Queen Anne's lace, which with orange field lilies make a particularly lovely bouquet, and one which will last in the house for three or four days.

"Best of all, by picking our wild flowers with economy—and how I wish that every seeker after flowers would carry a pair of scissors or a sharp knife and cut flowers instead of pulling them—we are going to have more and not fewer wild flowers every year.

"Reforestation is going forward in many sections of the country. Only the hiker, who is careless with matches, the picnicker whose gipsy pattern is an empty sardine tin, and those motorbandits who ravage the roadsides of every spray of bittersweet and are not any too careful of the farmers' orchards. When these thoughtless ones—for they are usually more heedless than willful—whose plea is that they 'just love wild flowers' are content to 'love 'em and leave 'em,' there will return to our hills and woods, the beauty that was theirs long ago."

"The Slick Guy"

Nearly every one of us has seen the checkered-suit person with the velvet tongue. How smoothly he once told of the merits of this product or that—and raked in perfectly good coin for purchases that were often worthless.

The "slick guy" is seldom seen today. When the wise person goes to buy, he knows what is good in value and fair in price.

Simply by glancing over the advertisements in your paper, you can see where to go for the best buys. You can compare values and check up prices without even stirring from your easy chair. You know in advance just what you are going to get and how much it will cost. And you can have the satisfaction that comes from knowing your money is wisely and safely spent.

Nowadays, no one need be at the mercy of the "slick guy." There are still a few people who fail to read the advertisements—and "take a chance." Don't be one of them.

Advertised products are safe buys.

Y., Sept. 7. — Marie Allen, eight year old, of No. 369 Hudson street, this city, is in the Millard Fillmore hospital here in a serious condition from injuries received when she was struck by an automobile here at Hudson near Wadsworth street, late Sunday afternoon. DeRivera Reveals Recent Attempt At Spanish Uprising

By GEN. PRIMO DE RIVERA
Spanish Prime Minister.
Written for International News Service. (Copyright, 1926, by International News Service.)

MADRID, Sept. 7.—The action of the artillery corps was a protest against the royal decree of June 6, concerning promotions.

It was not revolutionary in character nor was it a rebellion against the acts of the government.

Failing to win the support of public opinion, which condemns attempts to disturb the calm and tranquility which has reigned in Spain for three years, the artillery corps surrendered entirely and unconditionally.

The ringleaders of the movement will be judged by special military tribunals, which will decide who were responsible and fix the measure of their guilt.

are against young men who are living this month on next month's pay.

Some of these days you will run into a real opportunity which requires a little cash to handle, and, as the saying goes, you will be "out of luck."

If you go to the trouble of investigating the early careers of men who are in prosperous circumstances today, you will find nearly always that they had a Savings Account instantly ready to take advantage of opportunities when they came.

Don't think this is mere preaching. It is an absolute truth, and young men who fail to heed this advice will live to admit the error of their careless spending.

Four Probes In Chicago Wreck

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Four separate inquiries were begun today to fix responsibility for the disastrous wreck on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad here last night in which 5 persons are known to have been killed and at least 50 others injured.

Beside the official railroad investigation, City, County and Federal authorities are conducting inquiries.

Hits Excursion Train

The wreck occurred when a fast southbound suburban train crashed rear-on into a crowded southbound excursion train while the latter was unloading passengers at Clybourn station, inside the Chicago city limits.

The last two coaches of the excursion train were telescoped by the locomotive of the rear train. As soon as the injured could be extricated from the tangled mass of debris, they were rushed to nearby hospitals. Several of the more seriously injured may die.

Automobile Topples Off Ferry Boat Into Monogahela River Near Waynesburg

(International News Service)

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—The body of John Guriele, 30, of Bentleyville, today had been taken from the Monongahela river at Rices Landing, near here, following a plunge in which Guriele, together with a brother, a cousin and two other men, toppled off a ferry boat landing in an automobile.

The other men, Steven Guriele, brother of John, of Cokesburg; a cousin, also named Guriele, of New York City; Steve Singa of Bentleyville, and Frank Cormik of Crucible were returning from an outing, with Guriele, and had parked on the ferry landing, witnesses said, when the brakes on the car slipped, plunging the car into the water.

All except Guriele were able to swim to shore and suffered no ill effects. Guriele, it was believed, was trapped in the car.

The body and the car were taken from the water an hour after the accident.
